The Good in Our Government

When a minor proportion of the total population of a nation is so favored by the government that these few accumulate a great quantity of wealth, then that same government is hardly chargeable with being communistic when it taxes that wealth heavily to maintain itself.

General revolution and chaos were facing this country when Hoover gave up the reins of government and Roosevelt took hold. The New Deal has saved us from revolution and ruin. The same thing that hurt us back in 1932 will hurt us again if given an opportunity, and the same things that helped us in 1933 will continue to help us now.

Let us not forget the good in our government, and deal fairly with all classes of people. We can see the effect of class rule in many foreign countries today where war and bloodshed prevail.

Tobacco Prices

Elkin Tribune

Tobacco growers in this section will be encouraged by the price the leaf is bringing following the opening of the auction season in the border belt markets.

Opening day prices on several markets averaged 25 cents a pound. From nearly every market blocked sales are reported, with very few turned tags.

This will help to soften the resentment against Governor Ehringhaus because of his determined effort to have nothing to do with authorized compacts, but one hates to think of what would have happened if nature had not taken a hand.

As it stands, the farmers will not suffer so greatly because of weather conditions that interfered with the crop. They perhaps will get almost as much for their curtailed production as they would have received had conditions been more favorable. But that is not all that these reasonably satisfactory prices will mean to the tobacco farmer. It means that with no governmental brake on his planting and harvesting, and if there is to be no effective cooperative effort to hold production in line with demand, that next planting season will see the farmers planting and cultivating the weed "like the devil a-beating tanbark," and we'll have another era of long faces and grumbling.

After what the farmers have been through; after they have seen the benefits of crop control, even tho it had to be forced on them, it ought not be necessary to resort to compulsion again. But compulsion in one form or another will be necessary, human nature being what it is.

It is not hard to see why the farmer overlooks the importance of gauging his planting by the law of supply and demand. He has obligations that must be met and his only source of income is what he conjures from the soil. If he knows that he must have a thousand dollars, and if it is necessary to double his production to raise that amount, he doubles. But he doesn't apply the same principle all the way thru. If it looks like prices will be such that he can raise his thousand dollars with half a crop, he decides to let his neighbor do the curtailing and he doubles his acreage. The result is a surplus—and all of us know what that means.

Greenville Market Ready for Opening Sales Next Week

Greenville.—K. W. Cobb, supervisor and publicity director of the Greenville Tobacco Market, stated that everything was ready for the opening of the market Tuesday, September 1, at which time 5 sets of buyers will simultaneously begin the sale of the 1936 crop of tobacco at auction. Already several loads of tobacco have arrived in Greenville for the opening sale.

The 10 large auction warehouses in Greenville have been thoroughly remodeled and overhauled and everything is in tip-top shape for the opening Tuesday, September 1. The 10 mammoth warehouses will be operated this year by warehousemen of experience and ability, who have the nerve and money to back their judgment in seeing that every pile brings the high dollar. The warehouses this year will be operated as follows:

The Farmers Warehouse will be operated by C. H. McGowan, better known to the farmers of eastern North Carolina as "Hugh." In discussing his plans for the coming season, Mr. McGowan says that he has never been in better shape to care for the interests of his customers. Will P. Moore and Biggs T. Cannon, owners and proprietors of the new Dixie Warehouse, have one of the most modern warehouses for the sale of tobacco found in the eastern market. Will Moore, who has charge of sales, is a man of large experience in the warehouse business. Mr. Cannon, who will do the auctioneering, has been connected with the Greenville market for many years. The entire personnel of the Dixie Warehouse for the coming season are all men of long experience in the tobacco industry.

Forbes & Morton Warehouse, operated by W. Z. Morton and Gus Forbes, two as popular warehousemen as there are in eastern North Carolina. This warehouse is under the personal supervision of Mr. Forbes and Mr. Morton, both of whom are experienced warehousemen. This firm has won the confidence of the growers of eastern North Carolina. Their force will be practically the same as in the past several seasons.

Keel's Warehouse will be operated this season by Rufus Keel and Jimmie Taylor. Mr. Keel for the past several years has been connected with the Greenville tobacco market. Mr. Taylor has operated warehouses at Robersonville and Williamston, and also worked on the Greenville market. This warehouse has a very competent force this year and Jackie Taylor, of Martin County, will be the auctioneer. Center Brick Warehouse will be operated this year by a new firm but in no way new to the Greenville Tobacco Market. Dow Lassiter, Jack Moya, and Harvey Ward will be proprietors this season. They are succeeding Simon Moya, who retired at the end of last season. These men are all experienced tobacco warehousemen, having been connected with the Greenville tobacco market for years. Center Brick Warehouse has undergone many improvements.

Johnston Warehouse, located in the heart of Tobaccotown, is to be operated this year under the management of J. M. Johnston. Mr. Johnston is a son of the late F. V. Johnston, who for years was connected with the tobacco industry in Greenville. Since the close of last season many improvements have been made to this popular warehouse. Mr. Johnston has a very fine array of associates associated with him who know the tobacco business from beginning to end.

C. H. Webb, proprietor and manager of Webb's Warehouse, is well known to the tobacco trade of eastern North Carolina, having operated a warehouse here which bears his name, for a number of years. Associated with Mr. Webb this coming season will be W. L. Stanfield, who will be assistant manager and sales manager. Mr. Stanfield has been closely identified with the local market for the past seven years, and like Mr. Webb, is well known among the farmers of this section. Last season he was connected with H. C. Sugg in the operation of Johnston's Warehouse.

Star Warehouse, owned and operated by G. V. Smith and B. B. Sugg, is the oldest warehouse firm in Greenville. Mr. Smith and Mr. Sugg have been owners and proprietors of the Star Warehouse since 1913. During the early part of 1930 their warehouse was burned. Soon afterwards they began to erect one of the largest and most modern warehouses in eastern North Carolina. Much of the progress made by the Greenville market during the past several years is due to the efforts of Smith and Sugg individually and collectively. The personal attention of the owners to every pile of tobacco sold on their floor and a most efficient office force has been a large factor in the success the business has attained.

Gorman's Warehouse will be operated this season by J. T. Timberlake, better known to the farmers of eastern North Carolina as "Tom." Ample lighting and parking facilities are provided growers so that tobacco is always sold under the best of conditions. Mr. Timberlake has associated with him an experienced and capable corps of employees, who will ever be alert to render the highest type of service to its patrons.

Harris Warehouse will be operated this season by Dick Rogers and R. E. Harris, jr. This house was formerly known as Joyner Warehouse. H. R. "Red" Rogers will be sales manager this season. Mr. Rog ers has had 23 years experience in the tobacco business. The entire sales force is composed of practical farmers who have seen long service in the handling and sell of tobacco and this assures the growers of receiving unexcelled service at all times. These 10 warehouses, with their 16 acres of well-lighted floor space, with modern rest rooms and camp rooms, and all other conveniences for the comfort of those who patronize the Greenville Tobacco Market, will be open for the sale of tobacco Tuesday, September 1, with 5 sets of buyers. The 10 warehouses 9 factories and several storages are in a position to handle two and a quarter million pounds of tobacco daily for the 40,000 farmers of eastern North Carolina who sell on the Greenville Tobacco Market.—Adver
