Winter Weather Is Aid To Farmer In TILLING HIS SOIL

Alternate Freezing Will Do More Good Than All the Tilling In the Spring

"In winter, the weather will help cultivate your soil if you give it half a chance. "The alternate freezing and thawing in cold weather will do more to make a good seed bed than all the tilling you can do in the spring. "But if your land is to get the full benefit of this freezing and thawing, it must be broken in the late fall or early winter," said E. C. Blair, extension agronomist at State College. Plow now for land to be planted to corn and cotton. This is especially important on read clay soils and on fields where there is vegetation to be turned under, he continued. A rough, freshly plowed surface also absorbs and retains more moisture for next spring's crops than does land with a hard compact surface. Blair also pointed out that winter freezes kill insects in great numbers. The killing action is more effective in freshly plowed land, as the insects are more exposed. In the coastal plan, he added, many farmers do not realize the importance of turning under early such crops as soybeans, cowpeas, velvet beans, and corn and cotton stalks. If they are turned under early in December, they will be well rotted in the soil by planting time next spring. This means that the soil will be filled with rich organic matter that increases the amount of plant food in the land and also helps it absorb more moisture and resist erosion. But this will not be the case if plowing is delayed until next spring just before time to plant corn, cotton and other crops. Place Fresh Mash for Hens In Feed Hoppers Each Day For best results, fresh mash should be placed in the feed hoppers each day for laying hens. This will result in more feed being consumed and will also give the poultryman an opportunity to check on the amount consumed and to regulate his feeding before any drop in egg production is noticeable. It is a good practice to add this fresh mash at some definite time each day as this has a tendency to increase consumption. Before adding however, the mash that remains in the hopper from previous feeding should be removed. It's our family's whiskey, neighbor - and neighbor, it's your price!

Neighbors dropping by for egg nog

That's me mixing the egg nog and my brother in law Tom with his back facing you. My brother William is sort of half sitting on the sink. Coming in the door - that's Larry Burkes. It's old Nat Weeks with his hand in his pocket. The party with the pipe, folks around here just call Cap. Harry E. Wilken

There's no egg nog I know of near so tasty as our Family's Whiskey makes!

I thought maybe you'd like to know what our distillers think is the way of mixing an egg nog that's got a tastiness like nothing else. It's made of the exact same whiskey as is used by our distillers for our egg nogs. Our own Family's Whiskey - made according to the personal Family's Recipe of us Wilkens - our family having been distilling folks ever since anybody can remember. You just ask for The Wilken Family Whiskey. And here's the way you mix your egg nog.

EGG NOG - 1 tablespoon Sugar or 1 oz. Rock Candy Syrup. 1 fresh Egg. 1/2 glass fine Ice. 1 wine-glass Wilken Family Whiskey. Fill up with milk.

Mix in a bowl or shaker in an "old nog" shaker, and strain. Grate a little nutmeg on top and serve.
