A Sad Commentary

Over in Powellsville, Bertie County, they are growing cabbages in the middle of their main street, automobiles and other traffic finding it impossible to travel in the mud. And if they can grow cabbage there, then just think of the potential crop in the hundreds of rural sections with their thousands of miles of mud, deep mud, too. (And the North Carolina State Highway and Public Works Commission is responsible," a direct report from that town charges.

It is a sad plight the rural folk of North Carolina find themselves in just now, and at the same time the powers that be hurry plans to sink millions in the Albemarle Sound, a place that rightfully belongs to the fish. The rural people of this state will tell you that they are almost certain they have been sold out, that a short cut might be built through Camden County and a bridge thrown across the Albemarle, all just to save the face of one recent high official. When it was suggested that retiring officials of high rank be presented with automobiles, nothing was said about building them a short cut and a bridge and at the expenses of others who hold first claims to considerations.

If the highway commission can find no better place to sink its several millions reported in its surplus fund than for Pete's sake divert it. There are a thousand ways to spend money more judiciously than in the way the highway commission has spent it in the past, is spending it now and will probably continue to spend it in the future.

Several miles of all-weather roads could be built in each of the 100 counties with the money the commission is setting out to sink in the Albemarle, and a legislature, supposedly sent to Raleigh to represent the people, continues to stand idly by while the all-powerful commission continues its wild rampage of rule and splurging.

The contracts lets for the super structure do not become binding within thirty days and it is not too late for the rights of the people to be protected.

Profit Control

Action in the North Carolina General Assembly a few days ago indicates that the big issue of liquor control is turning into a battle for the control of profits. In the first skirmishes, it is quite apparent that the State is going to get the decision, or it will receive a sizeable share of the profits, throwing another problem into the hands of the individual control units. The county units will either have to increase liquor prices to maintain the present percentage profits or forego a percentage of the profits. Just to what extent increased prices for legal liquor will boost the bootleg liquor business, no one knows, but it is a settled fact that a big wrangle over the profits will have its effect on the illicit trade.

The county liquor boards, particularly the one in Martin County, has not held back in control boards, but as far as outward progress is concerned, the Pitt County board is thought to be taking the lead. The board in that county, according to reports received here, is instituting an educational program of its own against the use of alcohol. And, no doubt, the action of the board there will have more to do with advancing the cause of legal liquor sales and resulting control than big profits which, after all is said and done, is admitted to be secondary in the liquor program.

Alumni Values

Alumni of State College demand "autonomy" because they are angry in an unimportant football squabble. The danger to the college is that they may get it.

Already as a part of the Greater University the institution has been chosen as the seat of engineering education in higher learning in North Carolina. Action has already been taken to improve its faculty and to develop its curriculum in the effort to make it the great technological institution in the Greater University which it ought to be. This advance was made at State College over the protests of some of the friends and some of the faculty of the University at Chapel Hill who wished to continue courses in duplication there.

Under consolidation, State College has already been set upon the way to becoming a great institution. But for the sake of football some of its friends would have again that "autonomy," the synonym for which is dispersal and competition in higher learning in North Carolina.

Fortunately for North Carolina, the purpose of State College lies in the youth who will come to it for the high order of technical education which technical times require, not in the alumni whose education has brought some of them to the point of excitement over no higher problem than football.

NOTICE!

TO ALL THE CITIZENS OF THE TOWN OF JAMESVILLE OR ANY OTHERS LIVING ELSEWHERE WHO MAY OWN PROPERTY HERE:

I take this method of notifying you that Town Taxes for the year of 1935, July 1st, to July 1st, 1936, have been past due since July 1st, 1936, and will be advertised and sold not later than March 15 or April 1st, 1937.

Right many have paid, but there are a number who have not, and, in justice to those who have paid, we will be forced to collect from the others. All single men, 21 years or more, also owe poll tax. We have, and have had for some time, a bonded tax collector, who has been to see most of you, and you can see Mr. H. H. Sexton, who is authorized to give you a receipt for any money paid. The condition of the streets is such that something must be done, and the board cannot go any further than we have funds to pay for; therefore, I urge you to see the tax collector and pay your taxes so we can go forward as soon as the weather permits and fix up the streets and clean up the town and save us the expense and embarrassment of advertising your property for taxes.

Hoping to have your cooperation,
I am,
Yours very truly,
Luther Hardison

ROYSTER'S produced for me last season a tobacco crop of fine quality which sold for an average of $562.35 per acre for the entire crop. It was one of the finest I ever raised. I am glad to recommend Royster's to all my friends.
DOCK AYERS.

I used ROYSTER'S for the first time last year and raised the finest crop ever grown on this farm. It sold for an average of $506.13 per acre. Royster's is superior to any fertilizers I ever used.
MARVIN LEGGETT.

If you'll use ROYSTER'S, you, too, will say the same thing. Thousands of crops have been testing ROYSTER Fertilizers for half a century. After all, isn't use the best test for a fertilizer?

You can make doubly sure of highest quality, field-tested fertilizer if you will only insist upon having Royster's.

We also sell Lime, Cottonseed Meal and Potatoes. Ask us about our service plan. It will save you money.
