Campaigning Already And For What?

Tuesday, November 2, 1937.

Since he has been governor, Clyde R. Hoey has spoken in a number of eastern counties. It is admitted the governor is an able talker, that possibly he enjoys talking, but is it possible that the chief is doing all this talking just because he enjoys it? His frequent appearance in this section where MacDonald went on a rampage just a little over a year ago may mean the governor is trying to repair some holes in the fences and keep in the fold a few straggling votes that will be needed in years to come.

The way the governor is getting around these days would indicate he is planning to run for the governorship again and against Ralph MacDonald, at that.

The governor's visits into this section are gaining him a lot of friends, and eastern people, generally, recognize him as their governor more than they did some of those chief executives born right in the east-

Speak on, Mr. Governor, and remember that the more you champion the rights of the people and the more stress you place on secondary road improvements, the more friends you will gain in this section.

Approval But Not Support

In his fire-side chat the other night, Alfred Landon, former Kansas governor and Republican presidential nominee, said: "Liberty and freedom should enable all who want to work to get good jobs at good wages." His party never made much of a record toward that end, but it is today heaping criticism upon the present Democratic administration in trying to do just that.

Continuing Mr. Landon said, "Liberty and freedom should mean that men and women have decent hours of work and satisfactory working conditions." The sweat shop has flourished in the past, but the New Deal has done much to outlaw the practice. Yet, the New Deal is censored, charged with going communistic because it bends down to help the laboring

Again, Mr. Landon said, "Liberty and freedom should mean a fair distribution of the rewards of production and should prevent an unhealthy concentration of wealth and economic power in individual hands." Here, it is hard to tell who is speaking, President Roosevelt or his opponent in the last campaign. Mr. Landon knows how wealth was centralized, and he knows how it is being decentralized. And while he may be sincere in his statement, does he honestly believe the Old Guard, his associates or superiors, would ever agree to any move or threat to decentralize great wealth? It is contrary to the rec-

And again, Mr. Landon said, "Liberty and freedom should mean that a man may have the opportunity to acquire possessions of his own, business of his own, and that the corner grocer will not be discriminated against, either by great privileged competitors or by government." Too often in the past, great business organizations have dictated the government policies and eliminated competition in the directors' meeting

Mr. Landon's aims as outlined in his chat run a close parallel to the acts of President Roosevelt and the New Deal. And, yet, Mr. Landon in the same chat charges the President with failure as an adminis-

Mr. Landon, idol of two states, voices his approval but withholds his support.

Educators To Themselves

Greensboro News

One of the latest contributions to educational thought and progress in North Carolina comes from a meeting of the state high school principals last week at Winston-Salem where, it is the Winston-Salem Journel reporting, those in attendance "nodded agreement to a declaration that the state must participate in federal aid if it hopes to have schools on a par with

For our part, let it be said at the outset that we do not have the extreme fear which some opponents of federal aid seem to have over Washington dictatorship of the schools as a result of federal financing. Some more or less satisfactory agreement might be worked out as has been done in fields served by other federal grants. There is, to be sure, inherent danger of a school pattern not cut to meet our particular needs and problems, for it must be readily agreed that a government agency which supplies the money has the right to say how that money shall be spent.

But we find ourselves more interested in the approach and the particularist views of the principals' speaker, S. G. Chappell, of the Charles L. Coon high school in Wilson, to which general agreement is reported to have been given. Principal Chappell averred, among other things, that New York spends five times more on its schools than North Carolina does, that much of the difference goes to higher salaries for teachers although a considerable part is diverted to greater educational services, that if our children are going to compete with children in other sections of the country the schools of North Carolina need money from all over the country behind them, that there is nothing to fear from federal dictatorship of the schools, that North Carolina schools are already controlled by a dictatorship from Raleigh and that "federal control couldn't be any worse than what we

Crop Control Law Is Expected From Special Session

Remainder of the Roosevel Program May Go Over to Next Year

Washington- Enactment of cro ontrol legislation and little else expected from the extraordinal session of congress summoned

President Roosevelt assigned th pecial session a five-point program but scarcely could have believed would be completed by the tim congress adjourns shortly befo

After crop control, Mr. Roosev asked enactment of legislation for proper land use, establishment minimum wages and maximu hours, reorganization of the execu tive departments and amendment to strengthen anti-trust laws.

Whether crop surplus contr shall be by compulsory or volu tary methods must be determine undoubtedly is the will of a major ity of its members by voting the a ministration the requested power Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace leans to compulsory oper tion, but Chairman Marvin H. Jon of the house agriculture committee has plunged for voluntary contro the administration is likely to con promise on that one.

Outside the terms of the prospe tive bill itself, an obstacle arises i the senate where it has been agree that the first order of business aft farm legislation shall be the anti lynching bill passed by the house

Southern senators have filibustered such legislation before and probably will do so again. The filibuster might begin informally and unavowed in the prolonged senate discussion of crop control. But an overlarge cotton crop will tend this autumn to persuade southern statesmen to aid the administration in any program to sustain prices Development of a crop control compromise and determination of the anti-lynch bill debate easily may consume in the senate the five or six weeks of special session before the holidays. If that were not enough there is an inevitable senate wrangle over neutrality and the implications of Mr. Roosevelt's Chicago statement that America "actively engages in the search for peace' 'and contemplates a "quarantine" of offending aggressors.
