"For God and Country"

Italy, Germany, and Japan have signed a tri-power anti-Communist pact. They are going to save the world from the Bolsheviks.

Such pacts are not new, and this is not the first time that Italians have organized crusades.

Once it was for the greater glory of God that armies were raised in Europe to spread bloodshed and misery fighting the Arabic people, who believed that Christ was great, but Mohammed greater.

Later, Europe was made a bloody shambles for a hundred years while Rome fought to suppress the "heresy of Protestantism," a struggle which still goes on in Spain.

Then there came the triple alliance against "mob rule" and democracy, and mighty monarchs banded together to safeguard the divine right of kings from attacks by the rabble.

The English people had to chop their king's head off to win the right to democracy.

The French had to feed their monarchs to the guillotine, and also a goodly number of the nobility before they could start their long struggle for freedom.

The American people had to fight a bitter revolutionary war against a stupid king and unreasonable parliament before they won their liberty.

The Russian people, unable longer to tolerate the corruption and oppression of their rulers, had to murder the Czar and all his family and most of their innumerable dukes and princes in order to take the first short step on the road.

England was an outcast among nations after her revolution. Her envoy was expelled from the Russian court. France and Holland committed acts of open hostility and threatened war.

Her people were denounced throughout the civilized world for their "radicalism," "atheism," and "sacrilege"—or what today is called simply "Communism."

And the French, in their turn, were branded a race of fiends and mad men after their revolution had let loose the pent-up hatreds born of centuries of tyranny.

The American revolution likewise was condemned and American envoys to foreign courts were looked upon as spokesmen for a nation of dangerous, godless anarchists.

The rule of Stalin today is hardly more absolute—or, in many ways, more violent—than was that of Oliver Cromwell after the English revolution. And the mad determination of Trotsky to set the world ablaze is no madder than was that of Napoleon. But there is the difference that Napoleon seized and held control of France, whereas the other Russian leaders expelled Trotsky.

Certainly, no one would call Russia today a democracy, any more than was France under Napoleon or England under Cromwell; but she has come a long way in 20 years and, if history repeats again, as it so often does, the Russian people may eventually win that freedom which the English, French and Americans take for granted.

Let it be hoped the march of democracy will bring liberty also to Spain and China, regardless of Italy, Germany and Japan, or the momentary successes of their dictators.

Socialized Medicine

Four hundred and thirty of the nation's most distinguished physicians, including at least one Nobel Prize winner, have signed a declaration to the effect that it must be the duty of the medical profession to cooperate with Government in measures for the conservation and improvement of the public health; that their profession imposes upon them a social responsibility which they must shoulder.

In doing this these doctors have gone on record as opposing the powerful American Medical Association, which has repeatedly opposed every effort to "socialize" the practice of medicine, on the plea that it would result in doctors becoming public servants, subject to order from political sources and being inadequately compensated for their services.

The plan of the eminent physicians, indorsed by the New York State Medical Society, would gain some of the objectives of social medicine without state control of the medical profession. It calls for adequate medical care for everybody regardless of ability to pay; for better medical education, finer medical research, and the financing of medical progress by cooperation of private, local and Federal agencies. A program which assures the best medical care at a nominal fee or no fee at all, will go far toward elevating the medical profession in public esteem, and do a great public service.—Gates Co. Index.

Social News

BELLFLOWER-DOWNS

Miss Sidney Elizabeth Downs and Peter Bellflower, both of this county, were married in the office of Register of Deeds J. Sam Getsinger here Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Rev. Jas. H. Smith, pastor of the local Baptist church, performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Bellflower is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Downs, of this county. Mr. Bellflower is the son of Mrs. Lucy Bellflower, also of this county, and the late Peter Bellflower. They will make their home in the Hassell community.

WHEALTON-BRINSON

Miss Lottie Brinson, of Morehead City, and Alvah Whealton, of Plymouth, were married in the Christian Church parsonage here Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. John L. Goff, pastor of the local Christian church, performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Whealton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Brinson, of Morehead City, is well known in eastern North Carolina. Until recently she was assistant in the city clerk's office of Morehead City. Mr. Whealton, formerly of Morehead City, is a prominent druggist in Plymouth, where the young couple will make their home. He is the son of Mrs. J. W. Whealton, of Morehead City.

COOKE-COOKE

Miss Elsie Cooke and William Cooke were married in the Episcopal church in New Bern Wednesday noon, the ceremony being marked by its simplicity. Only members of the immediate family and a few intimate friends of the young couple were present.

Mrs. Cooke is the attractive and popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allie L. Cooke, of New Bern. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Cooke, of Williamston. He has made his home in New Bern for the past several years and is prominently connected with the insurance business there.

After a short visit here Wednesday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Cooke continued to Washington City and Baltimore where they will spend several days before making their home in New Bern.

Fires Are Hazard To Country Homes

Cold weather brings an increase in fire hazard to country homes, warns David S. Weaver, head of the agricultural engineering department at State College.

This is due mainly to faults in the construction of chimneys, flues and other parts of the heating systems, he continued.

Another source of danger is that of allowing inflammable material to collect around stoves, fireplaces, chimneys, or flues where a carelessly dropped match or a spark may ignite it.

The use of soft brick and poor mortar in an attempt to build chimneys inexpensively is responsible for many a defect that has cost a farm family its home, Weaver added.

No beams or other things should be attached to a chimney for support, he continued, as any weight on a chimney is liable to pull it out of line and cause it to develop cracks.

Flues and chimneys should be cleaned frequently, and particularly at the beginning of the cold weather period when fires are kept burning to warm the home.

Weaver urged that all farm families check over their heating systems to make sure there are no defects that may lead to a serious fire.

Less Monthly Discomfort

Many women, who formerly suffered from a weak, run-down condition as a result of poor assimilation of food, say they benefited by taking CARDUL, a special medicine for women. They found it helped to increase the appetite and improve digestion, thereby bringing them more strength from their food.

Naturally there is less discomfort at monthly periods when the system has been strengthened and the various functions restored and regulated. CARDUL, praised by thousands of women, is well worth trying. Of course, if not benefited, consult a physician.
