end-in-the-form of increased relief costs. The bill must be paid sooner or later or revolution, bloodless or otherwise, is certain to follow. It would be far better to recognize those home owners living under inadequate housing conditions and fit them into the basic patterns of our economic life than it would be to strip them of all their earthly possessions and mortgage their future unto death.

America is manufacturing relief subjects so rapidly that agriculture and industry combined will do well to feed and clothe the increasing numbers by the time another new generation reaches maturity. Where there are thousands that can't be helped there are millions headed for the relief roll who could be fitted into the profits system picture. We hire and fire with a view of saving a dollar in labor costs today, and forget that maybe we'll be paying two dollars for relief later on.

The relief rolls hold many potential customers. If they can be removed and enabled to participate in the exchange of goods, some one will save relief costs and someone will enjoy an ever-increasing flow of trade.

The National Administration has made noble efforts to rehabilitate millions and bolster home markets, but we, as a people, have not awakened to the meaning of that work. We continue our relentless drive for greater profits today, forgetting all about tomorrow.

An Instrument For Delay

The United States has just recently let contracts for the construction of several new battleships, and in another four years we will be ready for war. England, rushing an extensive rearmament program, will possibly be ready for war in another one or two years. France, never slowing down its arms program, will possibly be ready for war in even less time than a year or two. Germany, apparently ready and anxious to go, has agreed to wait. Other countries are continuing their preparations for war.

They continue to talk about the Munich agreement, but it appears that that agreement is an instrument for delay rather than an instrument for the maintenance of lasting peace.

Sounds More Like Dictatorship

For weeks the politicians were firing their guns for the November election, the Democrats talking about democracy and upbraiding the Republicans. The Republicans did not have so much to bray about in the way of accomplishments, but it talked long and hard about what the Democrats had done.

After hearing much about true Democracy, one naturally turns to see the practical side of the strange thing. A look into the Eighth North Carolina Congressional District reflects something that looks more like dictatorship than democracy. Jumping across the Seventh, one finds a few men naming the man for Congress from the Sixth District. Legal, probably so, but the activities are hardly characteristic of that democracy so loudly proclaimed on the stump throughout the land just a few days ago.

Dry Storage Place Is Needed for Seedcorn

Keep your powder dry! This is the old Army slogan.

Keep your seedcorn dry! That is the advice given farmers by A. D. Stuart, seed specialist of the N. C. Crop Improvement Association at State College.

Each year much valuable corn is lost in the State through improper methods of selecting, storage and testing, says Stuart. As a result many growers obtain inferior crops the next season, when proper care and treatment the year before might have brought higher yields and sounder seed.

With field selection of corn over, the first step in obtaining desirable seed is to place the selected ears in a dry, well-ventilated room. The ears should be stored in such a way as to allow a free circulation of air around each ear. This may be accomplished by any one of the several types of seed corn hangers or "trees."

A satisfactory hanger may be made with woven wire and any two-by-four uprights. The woven wire, which should have meshes large enough to permit ears to be passed through easily from side to side, is fastened by two two-by-fours of suitable length and a convenient distance apart. One length of the woven wire is placed on each side of the uprights in a manner such that the complete rack resembles a double woven fire fence with the meshes opposite and four inches apart.

The seed should be checked in January or February for germination.

New Chemical Controls Peach Tree Borers

A treatment with the new chemical, Ethylene, Di-chloride Emulsion, for the control of peach tree borers was demonstrated on the farm of M. O. Fletcher of Beaufort County by J. O. Rowell of the State College Extension Service. Fifteen trees were used to test the new material and records will be kept on the results.

To the Buyers of SHEET or ROLL Metal ROOFING

Demand SUPER Channeldrain ROOFING Made of COP-R-LOY

FOR SUPER PROTECTION AND SUPER ECONOMY

WHEELING SUPER Channeldrain ROOFING

You have the privilege to get the best for your money when you make a purchase, therefore why fool around and have something offered to you that is said to be "just as good". That is what is being told roofing buyers every day . . . If it is just as good, why not demand the original Channeldrain roofing, either in O. H. steel or Cop-R-Loy. Remembering the word Cop-R-Loy on Channeldrain is your absolute protection against rust—it gives many years longer service and cannot leak.

This is the only roofing of its kind on the market. Deep emergency drain channel for efficient drainage, and new improved end lap with tight edge. Made of genuine COP-R-LOY extra heavy coated with pure zinc for long wear. "When It Rains It Drains." We have it with all accessories.

Yes, we know there are some brands of sheet roofing that sell a little cheaper than Channeldrain. However, when you consider lasting value, Channeldrain is the cheapest because it gives many more years of service than the average 5-V roofing.

Yes, Channeldrain is absolutely leak proof—when it rains it drains. There is no other roofing made that has the same drain as Channeldrain.

Now, if you want sheet roofing, demand from your dealer Channeldrain. And if you want roll roofing, demand Wheeling Cop-R-Loy roll metal—something better for your money.
