Farmers Relish Taylor Barbecue
Coming together as a strong unit in one of the most forceful farmers' organization in the county, Martin County farmers in the New Carolina warehouse here last Friday night showed their taste for Farmer Van Taylor's barbecue. Several hundred farmers and quite a few business men from over the county, recently organized into one of the strongest farm bureau units in the State, attended the free feast and ate sparingly of the tempting barbecue, Brunswick stew, slaw and good country cornbread.

Climaxing an extensive membership drive, the supper was given free to the membership, leaders in the organization and others interested in the advancement of agriculture in the county donating a total of eleven pigs and quite a few cash dollars.

Farm Bureau President C. A. Roberson and others assisted Mr. Taylor, the group really making a success of the event. A vote of appreciation was extended Mr. Taylor and his assistants by the members after repairing to the courthouse for a series of addresses.
