Cucumber Yield Is Off Ten Bushels

North Carolina farmers are now expecting their smallest cucumber crop for "fresh market" since 1936, Russell P. Handy, junior statistician of the State Department of Agriculture, said today.

"The 1941 cucumber production is indicated at 270,000 bushels, or 21 per cent under the 340,000 bushels produced last year and 23 per cent below the 10-year (1930-1939) average of 351,000 bushels," Handy added, basing his information on the June 1 Federal-State Crop Reporting Service summary. "The indicated decrease in production this year compared with 1940 is attributed to a smaller acreage for harvest plus a decrease in the prospective yield per acre."

North Carolina growers have an estimated 3,600 acres in cucumbers, 10 per cent less than last season, with a prospective yield of 75 bushels per acre, or 10 bushels under 1940.

Tar Heel farmers sold their 1940 crop for an average price of 58 cents per bushel or for a total of $197,000. The State's cucumber crop for "fresh market" is produced mainly in Duplin, New Hanover, Sampson and Wayne counties.

"Dry weather has affected the 1941 cucumber crop, but not to as great extent as other crops," Handy reported.

For the second-early group of states, including Alabama, North Carolina and Virginia, the 1941 cucumber production was indicated to be 372,000 bushels, 19 per cent under last season and 23 per cent below the 10-year average.

Halifax Visits 1775 Shrine

Viscount Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, reads the engraved plate on the original pew in St. John's Church, Richmond, Va., from which Patrick Henry made his "give me liberty or give me death" speech. The little girl is Mary Tuck, great-great-granddaughter of the patriot.

Things To Watch For In The Future

General Motors is readying an electric auto-horn control that automatically disconnects the horn whenever the car is stopped (Yoo-hoo, Mabel, c'm on out!)... Bell laboratories have worked out a telephone instrument that you can "dial" just by speaking the number desired—the vocal sound waves are translated into impulses that locate the number uttered... Newest in portable radio receivers is one by G. E. that has an airplane-type storage battery that can be re-charged simply by plugging into any electric outlet—and it can be "playing" during the re-charging... Camera and motion picture film to be made of nylon soon—some made experimentally has proved to be fireproof as well as more durable than any previous films... Oddest item yet in the nylon news is that hereafter the "silk threads" that distinguish the paper used for printed Uncle Sam's bank notes will be of that synthetic instead of real silk... An attachment for your car's gasoline tank that automatically toots a whistle while the last gallon is being put in.
