

Launch Movement For Winter Greens

Bountiful supplies of winter vegetables growing in the garden of every North Carolina farm family is the objective of a new campaign launched by the State Agricultural Workers Council, according to John W. Goodman, assistant director of the N. C. State College Extension Service.

Blessed with a climate that makes it possible to grow vegetables the year around in most sections, North Carolina could easily grow plenty of greens to keep its people supplied with these diet essentials during the fall and winter.

H. R. Niswonger, extension horticulturist, has prepared for distribution to every farm family information which lists vegetables suitable for winter gardens, best varieties, planting dates, amounts of seed needed, maturity dates and seed cost.

In his guide, the horticulturist suggests rape and kale for all sections of the State; mustard and tendergreens for the Eastern and Piedmont sections; collard plants, spinach, and onion sets for the Eastern and Lower Piedmont areas; and beets and carrots for the Tidewater and warmer parts of the Coastal Plain.

Goodman explained that the winter vegetable campaign is being conducted in response to a request from M. L. Wilson, director of extension for the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The tremendous campaign in this State will be conducted by workers of the following agricultural and welfare agencies: Farm Security Administration, AAA, Soil Conservation Service, WPA, Bureau of Agricultural Economics, State Vocational Education Department, and the Extension Service.

Progress

Representatives of the world's greatest wheat-producing nations, Argentina, Australia, Canada, Great Britain and the United States, have recessed their session in Washington until August 18 and report "progress" in the move for an international wheat pool for post-war use.

Skim milk and whey improve the body and flavor of dried soup mixtures when used in quantities up to 25 per cent of the weight of the mixture, government specialists have found.

Wheat

Production of American Spring and Winter wheat this year will reach 950,953,000 bushels, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports.

PROTECTION

For over two years this Committee has waged its "Clean Up or Close Up" campaign to protect the legitimate beer retailing business by eliminating those few undesirable who use their beer licenses as a cloak for unlawful activities.

Law enforcement agencies and the brewing industry both recognize that no program can be entirely successful without the approval and active support of law-abiding citizens.

We ask your cooperation in this work. Please do not patronize beer outlets that tolerate anti-social practices—that compromise ethical conduct.

A CAROLINA CONGRESSMAN, THOMAS CLINGMAN, FOUGHT ONE OF THE "FOURTEEN FAMOUS DUELS"...

Thomas Clingman of North Carolina vs. William Yancey of Alabama is the subject of one of the fourteen "Famous American Duels" discussed in Don C. Seitz's book published in New York in 1929. Prior to the Civil War dueling was the accepted means of settling a dispute when a question of honor arose.

Yancey, one of the most noted southern secessionists, in a value way insulted Clingman. Both were congressmen. The alleged statement that "he wished to have nothing to say with one possessed of the head and heart of the gentleman from North Carolina" was all that was needed to start trouble.

When a man was insulted, usually he forwarded a note stating his grievance. If no satisfactory explanation or apology could be obtained, a challenge followed. Each would choose a friend to be his second, who would attend to all communications and arrangements.

The words sent to Yancey are typical of those used when one gentleman challenged another. Clingman's note reads: "Having failed in all my efforts for an amiable adjustment of the difficulty between us, nothing remains for me but to demand of you the satisfaction usual among gentlemen."

For seconds, Yancey chose John M. Huger; and Charles Lee Jones, of Baltimore was Clingman's choice. The appointed time was three p. m. January 13, 1845; and the place was a spot between the District of Columbia line and Beltsville, Md.

The police were notified and raided the hotel where Huger, Yancey and their friends stopped. The principal and his second escaped by slipping out the back door. Two of the friends were arrested and bound over.

When the "challenger" and the "challenged" reached the dueling ground, the duel was rushed in order to avoid interruption by the police. The weapons were small-bore pistols of the usual dueling length, and the distance was ten paces or thirty feet.

The men were hurriedly placed, and the word was given in a clear, loud and distinct tone: "Fire, one, two, three, halt." Both fired too quickly and missed.

The police arrived and assisted in settling the dispute without further use of ammunition.

This was the end of the only duel that grew out of the proposition of extending slavery to Texas under the annexation treaty, and there was no bloodshed.

N. C. Car Owners Pay 7 1/2 Cents Tax Per Gallon Gas

The combined federal and state tax rates amount to 7 1-2 cents a gallon. Gasoline taxes alone cost the typical North Carolina motor vehicle owner $52.50 a year (almost two weeks' income) and they are by far the largest item in the motorist's yearly motor tax bill of more than $70.
