

Happenings In The Jamesville School

The Jamesville Senior class had a very enjoyable trip to Chapel Hill Saturday, Sept. 20. After attending the football game, the class motored to Raleigh for supper. While in Raleigh the seniors visited the former Jamesville graduates who are in school there.

The seniors recently organized a social club. The name of the club is Entre Nous. The purpose of this club is for each member and their teacher, Mrs. Hyman, to become acquainted with the different parents of the class. The club will meet once a month. This month it will meet with Arthur Wallace Lilley.

The ninth grade entertained Friday morning with a very interesting program featuring Dr. Askem. Those failing to answer their questions thereby gaining a place on the program were: Murray G. Davis, Mildred Moore, Frances Coltrain, Bernice Gardner, Clifford Corey, Ann Modlin and Ben Lilley.

The third year home economics girls feel very proud of their sewing room for which they just completed new curtains.

The tenth grade boys and girls have selected a ways and means committee to begin planning and raising money for the junior-senior banquet. They have started early so they will be able to give the seniors and visitors the best banquet they have ever attended. We hope them great success.

The faculty is planning to give a play, "Mama's Baby Boy," October

Dixon Erected Mill on Cane Creek, 1753; Same Mill and Same Building in Use Today . . .

Reading between the lines in history books would be fun. Try it by turning to page 661 in volume I of Ashe's History of North Carolina. Near the bottom of the page this sentence is written, "On the night of the 22nd the British army lay at Dixon's Mills, on Cane Creek, in Chatham County." This was one of the several stops made by Cornwallis between the Guilford Battleground and Wilmington.

The mill mentioned is standing today and is operated by a direct descendant of Simon Dixon, who established it in 1753. A few miles south of Burlington, this Cane Creek mill is located at Snow Camp. Anyone who wishes to read between the lines in Ashe's history should stop and ask for Mr. T. M. Williams, the miller. He is a very pleasant and obliging man who is approaching his diamond jubilee birthday. You will hear the story of Cornwallis' taking Simon Dixon's rock house for headquarters. To protect his life it was necessary for him to escape to a distant refuge. Mrs. Dixon left her home in British possession and planned to stay with neighbors. Soon she missed her pipe and tobacco. When she returned for it, guards had been placed at the doors, with orders that no one should disturb Cornwallis. She was determined to enter her home. The guard was equally determined that she should not. The commotion outside the door was heard by the British General, who came to the door. It was her home and he permitted her to find her pipe and tobacco.

For additional reading between the lines, call on Mr. J. G. Pike, whom you will find busy on his farm at the age of 80; but you will find him very interested in history. They put on an advertising campaign in Williamston and Plymouth last week and appreciate the cooperation received in both places. We are expecting a large crowd to attend the play.

The 4-H club held its first meeting for the year Friday morning. New officers were elected for the year. The club has a large number of new members this year.

Miss Reba Coltrain, a student of the tenth grade, visited her sister, Mrs. Hardie Parisher, of Williamston last week-end.

Miss Lois Parks, Miss Louise Dail, Miss Sadie Rogers, Miss Grace Rogers and Miss France Nelson enjoyed a bus ride to Williamston Saturday and spent the day shopping.

Travel Light On Way To The Army

Selective Service registrants en route to Army induction centers should "travel light," taking nothing but essentials so as to avoid inconvenience to themselves and to the armed forces, Brigadier General J. Van B. Metts, State Director of Selective Service, cautioned today.

One small bag should be sufficient to carry the things a selectee needs until he is given his equipment by the Army, the director declared. He said:

"Never guess his years correctly. He will tell you of Cornwallis' driving 70 cattle to Cane Creek and killing them in an open field near the old Cane Creek Friends' Church. The beehives were taken into the church, and ax marks were left on the benches. These were erased some time ago by the burning of the original church.

The greatest tragedy was after the passing of Cornwallis' army and the return of the family. Soldiers had been sick with typhoid fever, and Simon contracted the disease and died. His widow lived on until 1793.

"If you wish, take a small bag with a few clean clothes, a few handkerchiefs, socks, soap, towel, and other necessary toilet articles. These are not essential, for you will be issued necessary equipment by the Army, but they may come in handy should there be any delay in your induction. "Leave jewelry, large sums of money, and other valuables at home, for they may be easily lost. If possible, take a little spending money for such needs as you may have before your first pay-day. Take some postal cards or stationery and stamps, a fountain pen, and an inexpensive watch if you have them."

Selectees were warned by Director Metts to leave automobiles and motorcycles at home. Commanding officers will tell the men on their posts if they may have these vehicles and the soldiers will then have an opportunity to get them from their homes, he pointed out. Unnecessary articles taken to induction centers must be returned to his home by the selectee at his own expense or otherwise disposed of, Director Metts said.
