

Does Your Husband Want A Necktie? . .

Many monkeys could pick out neckties with better colors than those selected by some husbands, says the Better Vision Institute—in commenting on recent experiments which indicate that the color vision of monkeys is very similar to that of normal human beings.

"Although many animals, as cows and dogs, have very little ability to distinguish color values, recent experiments conducted at the University of Wisconsin show that the higher monkeys can perceive colors with approximately the same facility as humans with normal color vision. The animals were studied in tests wherein they were taught to find food illuminated by a patch of colored light.

"About five out of every 100 men in the United States have defective color vision in varying degrees and encounter difficulty in picking out neckties and making other color selections. Whether or not similar defects in color perception are as prevalent among the male apes is not known to science."

Egg Production To Be Increased More

Uncle Sam wants North Carolina hens to lay 65,120,000 dozen eggs in 1942. This is an 11 per cent increase over the 58,667,000 dozen eggs which it is estimated will be produced in the State this year.

C. F. Parrish, head of the Poultry Extension office at N. C. State College, asks that the word be passed along to the hens through the farmers. "Farmers can tell it to the chickens in terms of more and better feed, and in better poultry management—including comfortable housing, protection against diseases, plenty of water, and careful breeding and culling," Parrish declared.

The call for increased egg production in North Carolina is a part of the nation-wide "Food for Freedom" campaign recently instituted by the United States government. North Carolina's goal is a comparatively small share of the national production of 3,700,000,000 dozen eggs sought in 1942. However, the percentage increase in this State is exactly the same (11 per cent) as the national increase.

Parrish also said that the South-eastern states are asked to produce 14.1 per cent more chickens and 10 per cent more turkeys for slaughter in 1942. This includes broilers. "North Carolina must bear its proportionate share of this increase," the extension leader stated.

Continuing, Parrish explained that the government is anxious to increase its shipments of dried eggs to Great Britain and the other nations fighting the dictatorships in Europe, and at the same time to insure adequate supplies of poultry products for every American family.

"Your county farm or home agent will be glad to give you full information on poultry feeds, housing, management, disease and parasite control, and sources of baby chicks," the specialist advised farmers.

Ukraine
The Ukraine, a large part of which has already been occupied by Nazi forces, accounts for about three-fourths of Russia's sugar and one-fourth of wheat production.

Cotton
A campaign has just been launched by wholesale grocers which would promote a wider use of cotton bags for the shipment of food and other products.

Chapel Hill, North Carolina, Has The Oldest State University Building in the Nation . . .

The twelfth of October is an anniversary date worthy of a great tribute. It is the birth date of a former North Carolina University president, and of the gallant Confederate hero, Robert E. Lee. The discovery of the new world by Columbus on the 12th of October is another historic gem to the credit of this important date.

When reviewing events of special consequence in the progress of our state, a person finds another 12th of October very significant. That was the date in 1793 of the laying of the corner stone of the first North Carolina University building, Old East dormitory. This structure has survived depressions and renovations.

U. S. Chutists Practice Attack on the Panzers

An army parachute squadron from Fort Benning, Ga., descends to earth during demonstration they put on as part of tactical showing of new army equipment and training staged at Fort Belvoir, Md. These chutists seem to be attacking an "enemy" tank, the backbone of the panzers. Members of Congress and noted diplomats saw the demonstration.

leader who had given freely of his energy and time on behalf of the establishment of this institution of higher learning. He is known as the "father" of the University of North Carolina.

Kemp P. Battle left a picture of what happened on the occasion of the laying of the corner stone. A long procession of people, for the first time marched along the narrow road afterward to be widened into a noble avenue. Many of them were clad in the striking, typical insignia of the Masonic fraternity. General Davie, the Grand Master, was arrayed in the full decorations of his rank. They marched with military tread, for most of these men had seen service on the battlefield. Many were scarred with wounds of the Revolutionary War.

These patriots were serious in their task of placing the foundation stone of the great educational institution which fulfilled the North Carolina constitutional requirement that "all useful learning shall be duly encouraged and promoted in one or more universities." It is very appropriate that each October 12th is observed as founders' day by the students, the faculty, and the alumni of the University of North Carolina.

Happenings In The Jamesville School

The Boy Scouts are going camping Friday night, near Gardner's Creek.

Marie Lilley and Mildred Moore spent the week-end in Robersonville.

Inez Ange, a pupil in the fourth grade, spent the week-end in Scotland Neck.

Miss Opal Brown, a former teacher in our school, spent the week-end with her family near Jamesville. Miss Brown is now teaching in Asheboro and enjoying her work very much.

Miss Gladys Ange, of Jamesville, visited friends and relatives in Newport News last week-end.

Miss Louise Dail spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. H. C. Sullivan, Jr., in Hertford.

The Home Economics classes are making great progress in their work this year. They are making dresses. The classes are quite proud of their new equipment.

Several children were out of school last week due mostly to a number of mild cases of mumps.
