

New "Home Front" Jobs For Women

A new crop of "home front" jobs for women loomed last week when War Manpower Commissioner McNutt issued his "work for war or fight" order for men between 18 and 35. The first list of non-deferables included workers engaged in selling antiques, liquors, confectionery, flowers, jewelry, novelties and tobacco. While many such shops throughout the country are already run entirely or partly by women, many others face closing unless they can recruit women to replace male help which must be sent to war plants or to the front.

On a scale, eventually, there will be new vistas for women workers in industries either now or later to be listed as "non-deferable." Personnel directors in a multitude of factories, large and small, throughout the country, began last week laying out plans for recruiting and training of women, even though their plants have not yet been included in the non-deferable list. Small business owners, such as tailors, furriers, tobacconists, etc., already have begun to apply for part-time work at war plants in order to earn deferable status. For their own sake and for the benefit of consumers dependent upon them for supply, they are going to try to retain their businesses, by employing women to "spell" them while they're working in war plants.

Army Jungle Boots Made From Cotton

Washington — Because leather shoes last only a few weeks under jungle warfare conditions, the Quartermaster Corps of the War Department has developed a new boot of cotton in tropical climates. Cotton provides about 90 percent of the material going into the boots, according to the Quartermaster Corps.

Both crude and reclaimed rubber are used in the sole of the boots, and the cloth top is dyed olive drab. The tops are approximately 12 inches high, providing protection against thorns and insects. Advantages of the new type boot are that it provides a cool, porous covering for the foot and can be cleaned and washed easily.

GENERALS HAVE CHOW ON NEW GUINEA BEACH

SHOWN ENJOYING THEIR BREAKFAST on a New Guinea beach after a exciting night are Maj. Gen. Edwin Forest Harding (left) and Brig. Gen. Hanford MacNider. Gen. Harding had to swim a mile to shore after his small boat was dive-bombed and strafed by the Japanese. Luckily, General Harding was not hit.

undernourished. Sluggish elimination compelled me to take strong laxatives frequently. I felt full of toxic poisons and I often ached in every muscle. The least exertion seemed to tire me out.

"Retonga gave me wonderful relief. My appetite increased, and I have gained weight. I sleep restfully and it is a blessing not to have to take those strong laxatives like I did. I feel like a different person, and I wish I could tell everyone about Retonga."

Retonga is a purely herbal gastric tonic combined with Vitamin B-1 and is intended to relieve such symptoms as described by Mrs. Bolen when they are due to loss of appetite, insufficient flow of gastric juices in the stomach, constipation, and Vitamin B-1 deficiency. Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at Clark's Pharmacy—adv.

THE LETTER-BOX

SOLDIER WRITES

Dear Editor:

Well, it is Sunday, almost sunset. It has been a beautiful spring-like day. The boys are out in front passing the old apple around, making it appear almost like a big league training camp.

We are minus a few men. Just recently the band led a battalion away for some unannounced destination, probably to finish training and make ready for combat service somewhere abroad. They were 1,200 stalwart and strong men with strong minds and strong bodies with a determination to win.

I went into my barrack the other morning to get at my task—that of getting it in shape, and saw a note lying on an officer's cot. It read, "Good-bye Mc. It has been a pleasure knowing you and I hope we meet again some where. If not on this earth let's not miss being together at the final check-up. We are bound to you. Well, I am shaking hands with you for that good-bye." It was signed, "Charlie." Officer Mc came in at lunch time, picked up the note, and as he read it, tears rolled down his cheeks. He said, "Jackson, that is what makes me mad as hell. One of the best friends I ever had is gone. May never see him again."

I was standing on Company Street as the band went by and as the men passed with their packs strapped on their backs. I knew quite a few of them, and it was good-bye "Ted" Jackson, Good-bye "Grandpappy" Jackson, Good-bye "Pops", keep the old camp in shape. It won't take us long. We are going to have a reunion when it is all over back here at Tyson." It was just a little saddening. A lot of these men I have learned to like and admire. Some of them I'll never see again. I almost wanted to go with some of them, but frankly they haven't had to tie me to keep me off the troop train.

They continued to yell as they passed, declaring, "Just wait until I get at those Japs. Take care of this camp. We are going after the Japs.

We'll whittle down Germany in six months and then Japan will be bound to go." That's the spirit in this camp.

Well, this camp is about 85 percent northern troops. You know Wheeler Martin should be here for he would feel at home. They are all New York, Illinois, New Jersey, Michigan, Rhode Island, Ohio and western Republicans. And they are a fine bunch of soldiers. I get along very well with them myself.

That'll be all for this time. I'll be writing again some time.
