Let's Have The Facts

The Railroad Operating Brotherhoods are calling a strike vote among their membership. The step is perfectly legal, and is little more than what is being done by corporations and by millions of individuals.

As a result of the action, a bombardment is to be expected in the press and over the air. The bombardment is permissible in a land of free speech, and there can be no argument on that count as long as both sides have the opportunity to make their own speeches. But what both sides should remember is that the public is entitled to the basic facts. It is hoped that the plain facts will be presented for it isn't enough for the laboring man to say that he isn't making enough to meet living costs and it isn't enough for the railroad management to say the worker is receiving big money.

Strange as it may seem, industry in some cases has appealed to the authorities for pay increases for their workers, admitting that the frozen wage scale was not fair. It is indeed gratifying to learn that one industry in this county recently increased the wages for its workers, and informed the authorities of its action. The step may not be in strict harmony with legal principles, but measured in terms of right and wrong, the action is justified in our humble estimation.

Getting back to the railroaders, the burden is believed to be on the shoulders of the workers to prove that they are entitled to a wage boost. But until more basic facts are submitted by both side without color and without bias, one cannot justly condemn either.

We Must Have Our Say

According to the Office of War Information, about 2,200,000 long distance telephone calls are being made in this country each day. We just must have our say, and in the face of such a record as that some of our allies might think we do nothing but talk.

In addition to our verbal rampages over thirty billion pieces of U. S. mail, weighing over three million tons, were handled in this country in 1942.

The American Way Of Life

By Ruth Taylor.

What is the American way of life? The phrase is frequently that sometimes it seems a trifle threadbare at the corners, its lustre dulled by familiarity. Our public speakers—particularly at campaign time—act as though it were an "abracadabra" or magic word that could unlock hidden troves of treasure.

Of course you know the full meaning of the phrase but have you ever tried to explain the American way of life to someone who did not know America, who was not steeped in the traditions of democracy?

I have—and let me assure you it is no easy task. But it does make you stop and think what you really mean by the American way of life. Here is what I found I meant by the phrase.

The American way of life is the way of opportunity for all. It does not mean an equal distribution of all good things, but an equal chance to work for a living at a fair wage. It means free enterprise—free to develop, but not unbridled license to exploit either man or natural resources. It means an equal opportunity to learn, not an equal ability to get ahead without work.

The American way of life is the way of self-restrained freedom. Under it we may freely express our own opinion—but we abide by the decision of the majority. The American way of life implies a decent respect for the beliefs of others, whether or not we agree with them. Under it freedom is permitted up to the point where it impinges upon the rights of others.

The American way of life is the way to progress through the utilization of every resource—not merely the natural ones of the earth, but of that greatest resource of our nation—the intelligence, the initiative, the productive power latent in every individual, regardless of class, creed or color.

The American way of life is the way to the rainbow's end, to the fulfillment of the dream of brotherhood. We Americans may have different faiths, different backgrounds, different speech, different color. We have the same way of work, the same way of life. We know the same sorrows, joys and hopes. The American way of life is the way by which we may achieve the desire of all for a world unvexed by war, untroubled by want or fear.

The American way of life is our way. Let us walk in it for centuries to come, its road made steadily smoother by the patient feet of each generation.

"The communication facilities of the U. S. have been expanded to handle millions of words more every day—probably the greatest and fastest exchange of intelligence the world has ever known." And, yet, so many of us learn about all we know by reading the comics and listening to the politico propagandists.

FROM BUSES TO "BAZOOKAS"

Teamwork's the main thing with bazookas. This team is deploying to stop enemy tanks so their buddies can widen the battlefield. Bazookas are death on tanks, and our team will stop 'em cold.

Never before did we quite realize the similarity between buses and bazookas. For it's teamwork in Carolina Trailways that has enabled us to handle tremendously increased wartime travel, with practically no new equipment. It's teamwork that has helped us solve other trying and difficult problems. We're all pulling together, from traffic manager to dispatchers, drivers, maintenance men, clerks and ticket agents.

You too can do your part in this "teamwork" . . . by observing a few simple rules: If you must travel, see your Trailways agent first . . . arrange your trip in advance. Go week-days . . . be prompt getting to the terminal . . . carry just one suitcase.
