School Principals In Dinner Meeting

Holding a dinner meeting in Robersonville's Wilson Hotel this week, members of the Martin County Principals' Club named several committees to handle public relations, programs and athletics.

The club has scheduled meetings for each second Monday at 6 o'clock, and will be entertained in Jamesville on January 14.

County Tax List Takers Meet For New Instructions Monday

Recently named by Supervisor M. Luther Peel the ten Martin County tax list takers met Monday morning in the county court-house next Monday morning at 10:00 o'clock when instructions will be offered for handling the 1946 tax job.

Supervisor Peel this week would make no prediction as to the trend of personal property values, but he

MEETING

Members of the county and community Tripe A committees in this county will meet in the agricultural building here next Tuesday morning at 9:30 o'clock to discuss the 1946 farm program.

While no major changes are expected in the general Tripe A program for next year, soil conservation practices and payments will be altered to meet individual cases. It is possible that so much will be allotted the county for soil building practices, that it will be possible for individuals to participate in the program to a greater extent than was the case in past years.

Bookmobile Making Schedule Next Week With A Few Changes

Closing Of Schools To Affect Hours Set For Stops At Various Centers

Recorder's Court Has Twenty Cases

Up until noon yesterday, twenty cases had been placed on the docket for trial in the Martin County Recorder's court next Monday. Most of the cases were continued from previous sessions, but several were placed on the docket this week.

Only two more sessions of the court will be held this year, Judge J. C. Smith announcing that the tribunal will not meet on Christmas eve day.

The docket prepared for next Monday carried a varied list of alleged violations, including, one bad check charge, two drunk and disorderly, eight assaults, one allowing a non-licensed driver to operate a motor vehicle, one no driver's license, one interfering with an officer, one speeding, two larceny and receiving, one affray, one hit-and-run and one drunken driving charge.

Minor Wreck On Main Street Here Wednesday

No one was hurt and very little damage resulted last Wednesday evening when a truck driven by Geo. T. Purvis and a 1941 Buick driven by Sherman Woolard Croom of Greenville figured in a sideswiping accident on Main Street here near the apartment building. The car was owned by Rev. J. A. Nimmo. Damage was estimated at about $30 by Officer C. R. Moore who investigated the accident.

Few Register For Draft During The Month Of November

Twenty-nine Martin County young men—eighteen white and nine colored—registered for possible selective service in this county last month, it was announced by the draft board this week.

The list includes several veterans of bitter battles in World War II. They entered the service ahead of Selective Service, and are now registering as a matter of course with little or no likelihood that they will be called again for service.

The registration for the past month is a bit small, and according to reports a few 18-year-old lads failed to register during or before that month. It was also learned that the cases are being investigated and unless the youths choose to register their names will be turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for action.

County Young Man Tells of Experiences In Armed Services

Simon A. Perry, Jr., Recently Wrote To Parents From Sapporo, Japan

Writing a few weeks ago from Sapporo, Japan, to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon A. Perry, Sr., RFD 2, Williamston, Pfc. Simon A. Perry, Jr., reviewed a few of his experiences in the Army. In Co. L, 307th Infantry, APO 77, Care Postmaster, San Francisco, Calif., the youth was wounded but apparently is recovered and hopes to get home soon.

His letter follows: Thought I'd drop you a few lines to let you know that I'm well and doing fine. Hope this finds everyone at home the same. Guess it's getting plenty cold back home now. This weather reminds me of home very much, only we have had some snow. I received the Enterprise yesterday for the first time since I left Cebu. Boy! I was really glad to get it. There were three of them, and one had the piece in it about E. H. Manning, Jr. I sure did enjoy it a lot. I'll have to get down tonight and write something about the Pacific or at least as much as I know. If you ever wrote E. H., I want you to tell him I enjoyed it a lot. Mom, I think I have time to give you a brief sketch of where I've been and what I've done. Anyway, I'll try.

I'm writing this from the island of Hakkaido in Japan, near the town of Sapporo. It is one of the largest cities on this island and it's population is about 200,000.

I guess I'll start about the time I left home. I left on September 28, 1944, and had a journey to Fort Bragg. I stayed there fourteen days and on Friday, the thirteenth, we were loaded on a train, and didn't any of us know where we were going. On the train was Edgar Gurganus whom I knew all my school days. I finally made up my mind to ask him where we were going, and he told me, Camp Wheeler, Ga., but not to mention it to anyone else. There were quite a few boys that went with me from Martin County. We stayed at Camp Wheeler fifteen weeks after which we had our furloughs.

While I was at Wheeler out on bivouac, my sergeant and I pitched tents together. One morning we found four puppies close to our feet in the tent with us. I carried two of them home with me and I would like to see them now.

I left Camp Wheeler, February 2 and I was lucky enough to spend my twenty-first birthday at home. I left home February 11 for Fort Ord, California, and stayed from eight to ten days there. Then we were loaded on a train and we didn't know where we were headed. After a day and a half on the train we finally stopped at Fort Lawton, Washington. We were loaded on trucks and carried to a place to sleep. We stayed there for seven days and we were ready to ship out again.

They took us down to the docks where the band was playing and the Red Cross served us coffee and doughnuts. I finally boarded the ship, the "U. S. General Collins." We put out to sea on the morning of March 7. It was plenty rough for the first two days. There were quite a few of the boys that got sea sick. There were about fifty nurses on board and they really did get sick. Fortunately I didn't get sick at all.

In five and one-half days we landed at Honolulu and were loaded on what the boys called "cattle cars." We went about twenty miles to the 13th R. D. and were there four weeks right to the day, and then were loaded on another boat. This time we had a long voyage and was on the "U. S. S. Braxton" for 16 days. We stopped at Eniwetok during the time. I got off the boat again in Saipan where I stayed eight days. We were loaded on another boat and this time it was the "U. S. S. Lanier," and we knew where we were going. It was Okinawa, where I'll always remember. We got there May 6, 1945, and we were back in the 74th R. D. for a day and then we were told we were going to the 7th Division. So we moved up a little further and stayed another day and were assigned to our company.

They were calling our names off and I was hoping that Bruce Peele

Grant Eight Divorces In the Superior Court

Road Terms Drawn In Number Of Cases Late Last Tuesday

Completing the trial of the criminal docket late last Tuesday afternoon, the Martin County Superior Court, in a one-week term for the trial of criminal and civil cases, cranked up its divorce mill Wednesday morning and completed its work before noon. Adjourning the term a few minutes later after hearing a motion or two, Judge John J. Burney with Jailor Roy Peel went to the swamps squirrel hunting.

Judge J. J. Burney Adjourns Court And Goes Hunting Wednesday Afternoon

Following the opening preliminary divorce mill ground out eight absolute separations at the rate of twenty per hour. The jury and clerk were busy coming and going, and if there was any opposition to the divorce pleadings it was not voiced that morning.

All of the divorce actions except one were based on grounds of two years' separation. In one case, the litigants had been separated for almost fifteen years. A court official pointed out that in many cases these days, separation is not the sole aim, that the complainants so often want to marry again, and that divorce is a prerequisite.

A minor, Ruth May Nichols, by her next friend, Annie Eliza May, was granted a divorce from Ben Octavio Nichols, the case having been based on adultery.

The following divorces were granted on two years' separation; Ethel Woolard from Julius Woolard; Cora Roberson Barnes from Ernest Barnes; Marshall Gray Moore from Wannie Mae Moore; Adell James from David L. James; Hubert Roberson from Mary Elizabeth Roberson; Clifton C. Andrews from Lorraine Andrews; J. Elsworth Mizell from Dorothy Mary Mizell.

Before adjourning court, Judge Burney, "slept" by the 12-month road term given Nettie Parker, and reduced it to six months. Proceedings not previously reported: His case having been continued from the September term for final judgment, Jesse Ben Roberson, charged with an assault with a deadly weapon, was sentenced to the roads for eighteen months by Judge Burney Tuesday. The road term was suspended and the defendant placed on probation for five years on condition that he pay Hugh Morgan Gray, the prosecuting witness, $400 and an additional $100 for doctor's bill and satisfy the court costs.

Aged Man Is Burned Out of Second Home

For the second time in less than a week, Sherman Bonds, aged colored man, was burned out of a home here, the first fire on Thursday evening of last week burning up approximately $750 of his hard-earned cash in addition to most of his other earthly belongings.

Following the first fire, Bonds moved into a home with Willie Faulk, a tenant hardly half a block away on Sycamore Street near the water plant. Both of them were at home last Wednesday morning when fire, apparently starting from a defective flue, burned through the roof of the kitchen before either of them knew it. Workmen at a nearby saw mill saw the fire and turned in an alarm. The old man was led from the house for the second time ahead of a fire within a week.

Announce Change In Date For Orthopedic Clinic

The date for holding the next orthopedic clinic in Tarboro has been changed to Monday, December 17, it was announced by the welfare department this week.

HOLIDAY

The local production unit of the American Red Cross has closed for the Christmas holidays and will not reopen until Tuesday, January 8, it was announced this week by Mrs. N. C. Green, chairman.

Two Defendants Bound Over By Justice J. L. Hassell

Two defendants, Andrew Stillel, charged with assaulting a female, and Hazel Knight, charged with an assault with a deadly weapon, were bound over by Justice J. L. Hassell this week for trial in the county recorder's court next Monday.

They were the only two cases called by the trail justice this week.

Local School Honor Pupils Listed For The Second Period

The names of 120 pupils appear on the honor list for the second semester in the local schools, Principal Sam Bundy announced this week. Miss Estelle Crawford, teacher in the schools, was absent and the names of honor pupils in her room are unavoidably left out. Of the 120 pupils meeting the scholastic requirements to have their names included in the list, only a round dozen are in the high school.

The list follows, by grades: First Grade: Billie Thornton, Nancy Britton, Jane Peele, Henry Handy, Joe Murphy, Floyd Thomas, Clayton Weston, Emma Godard, Peggy Godard, Ann Harrison, Mary Jean Hunt, Blanche Manning, Eugene Davenport, Milton Goff, Jimmy Hardison, Robert Williams, Mary Lou Cox, Ann Darden, Priscilla Gurganus, Mageline Hoggard, Betty Taylor.

Historical Review Of the Old Hickory Division In Europe

Several Martin County Young Men Served In Battles With The Thirtieth

(Continued from last issue) (The story below reviews the glorious part the Thirtieth (Old Hickory) Division had in winning World War II. Since several Martin County boys were in the Division, the record most certainly will be read with interest in this county.)

The fifth and final installment in the series follows: The Germans counter-offensive into Belgium on December 16th altered those plans. Nazi General Von Rundstedt had to be quickly stopped in his advance to split the entire Allied northern front. Within a few hours the Division was on the move. After a 48-hour march, the advance elements were thrown in to reduce the German spearhead at Stavelot, Belgium. When the main body of the Division arrived the Old Hickory troops gained control of their wide sector of the Bulge with sensational speed and halted the northern expansion of the German salient. This thwarted the plan for storming Liege and doomed the ambitious scheme of the Nazis. The Division slaughtered thousands of Hitler's soldiers and knocked out scores of tanks. The morale and fighting ability of the Nazi Panzer units were utterly crushed when the 30th Division tore to flimsy shreds Hitler's favorite and highly touted 1st SS Panzer Division, that same unit which shot in cold blood American prisoners at Malmedy. So decisively did the Division whip all opposition, that captured German prisoners nicknamed the 30th "Roosevelt's SS troops," explaining "The 30th is always thrown in where the going is the roughest."

With its job in the Bulge completed, the 30th secretly prepared for the job that had been interrupted a month and a half earlier. In what loomed as its most difficult river-crossing operation, the 30th stormed over the flooded Roer River south of Julich early in the morning of February 23. Using more than 11,000 gallons of "oil" and nearly 2,000 smoke pots, the Division capitalized upon the complete surprise it effected through the use of this "manufactured fog," and crossed the river with few casualties, quickly carrying the fight northeastward almost to Dusseldorf on the Rhine.

During this drive to the Rhine German resistance varied with the spirit of the individual commanders. Some garrisons fought fanatically until they were killed. Others yielded, showed little will to fight. The veteran 30th, as always, took advantage of the breaks where they occurred.

The Division was once again secretly pulled out of the vicinity of the front lines and moved back to Echt, Holland, where the troops started practicing on the Maas River. Training with the Navy and combat engineers, the doughboys confidently contemplated their next job.

The 30th Infantry Division, aptly described as the "work horse" of the Allied Armies in the west, had many "firsts" but was now confronted with its "greatest" assignment when its battle veterans stormed the impressive Rhine River barrier on March 24. Smashing across in assault boats, again under billowing clouds of manufactured fog, the Old Hickorymen participated in the largest coordinated amphibious operation since the D-Day invasion of Normandy. They broke through the mightiest defense Germany could prepare and opened the way for the speedy advance to the Elbe River en route to Berlin.

For five days after crossing the Rhine, the 30th fought against organized defenses. Its old enemy, the 16th Panzer Division, was rushed from Holland, across the front of the British Second Army, and committed on a narrow sector before the Old Hickorymen. The 30th met varying degrees of resistance, ranging from occasional sniper fire to stubborn "hill-death" fighting, and the prepared defenses crumbled before the experienced conquerors. Racing past thousands of flying white flags, the

Illness Closes The Bear Grass Schools

Striking a bit suddenly and spreading rapidly, influenza or colds and infections forced a closing of the schools at Bear Grass last Wednesday, a full week ahead of the schedule fixed for the Christmas holidays. Classes there will not be resumed until after the holidays, it was announced.

With an average daily attendance of 288, the school there reported 109 absences Tuesday. Several of the teachers were sick and the suspension of activities was almost imperative.

Complete reports from all the schools in the county could not be had, but apparently there is no large number of influenza cases in most of the districts. Farm Life and Williamston first reported numerous cases and many absences, but conditions in both communities are believed to be improving.

Achievement Day For Club Members

The Martin County 4-H and home demonstration club members will observe Achievement Day in the county courthouse tomorrow. All club members have been invited and any other interested persons have a cordial invitation to be present. The meeting will begin at 10:30 a. m. Members will bring a picnic lunch.

Medals will be given to the best all-around 4-H club boy and girl. Cash awards will be given to project winners. Summary of all club activities will be made at this meeting. A full program has been planned by the club leaders, C. J. Goodman and Mrs. Margaret Pearce.
