Ask Volunteers To Help Hold In Check Inflationary Prices

(Continued from page one) with such a condition existing the country is not in position to let price control lapse. Mesdames W. E. Old, R. H. Goodmon, R. L. Coburn, Frank E. Weston, Alec Jones, H. G. Horton and Coy Roberson attended the meeting and tentatively agreed to aid the work locally. Plans for making the first survey check are to be outlined as soon as a meeting of the group can be scheduled. These volunteers will limit their work to approximately 35 grocery outlets in Williamston. Their work will enable the price board clerks to make surveys in the other towns and rural areas in this and other counties, Mrs. Folger explaining that volunteers were being asked to aid the work in other towns and communities.

Jas. S. Whitehurst Reviews Record Of Carrier Shangri-La

(Continued from page one) cess and wondering what would be the outcome. A short time later, we began to find out for back to the ship well ahead of the rest of the flight, came two bombers carrying casualties in their gunner's cockpits. The first plane landed smoothly and first aid and rescue men swarmed over the plant. It was too late, for the crewman Alfred Bonozoni, ARM 3c, had died of loss of blood when his leg had been shattered from flak. Then the second plane landed as easily as the first for the pilots were doing all in their power to lessen the pain of their injured crewmen. The second crewman, Walter Kaufmann, ARMC, had been more fortunate than the first. His legs also had been shattered by flak, but he had remained conscious throughout the return flight. Ripping away his flying togs, he applied a tourniquet from his first aid kit to one leg, and having no material for the other, had ripped out the wire to his earphones and fashioned a makeshift tourniquet for the other, saving his life. Then the remainder of our flight began to return and the crew was due for more excitement. One plane could not get its tail hook down and had virtually no rudder control for the plane had been hit by flak cutting the cables in the tail. Ordinarily the pilot and his gunner would have ditched the plane in the water, and would have been picked up by a destroyer rather than chance a crash landing on the deck. This pilot had some highly important photographs taken over the battleship and he wanted to make sure those films reached the ship undamaged. (In the next installment Seaman Whitehurst tells of the second day's raids on Kure, the rescue of a Flying Boat which had just completed a rescue of its own close to Japan, and more exciting raids on the Jap homeland.—Ed.)

Stolen Auto Recovered On Streets Saturday

Stolen in Wilson on January 6, a 1934 Ford coach belonging to Jesse C. Luper, RFD 1, Elm City, was recovered here last Saturday. The car was parked near the rear door of Chesson's garage on Houghton Street earlier in the week. Workmen, thinking it had been left there for repairs, pushed the car into the garage at night and pushed it out each morning for several days. When no one offered any instructions, the garage owner notified the officers and highway patrolmen were called to identify the car. Pfc. Slade J. Revels, son of Mr. and Mrs. Slade Revels arrived home Friday night from the Philippine Islands to spend a 60 day furlough. He has to report to Fort Bragg the 19th of March for reassignment.

Boy Scouts Report Their Activities

In spite of the bad weather there were nine Scouts of Troop 29 present at its last meeting, Mr. D. C. McEhorn was present as a representative of our sponsors, the Williamston Lions' Club. He told us that the first time we had a 100% attendance we would be invited to a supper at the Lions' meeting. We look forward to this with expectation. All Scouts were asked to bring a slip of paper with his name and rank on it, to the next meeting so we may get our advancement straight. Leslie Godard made application as a new member of Troop 29. Welcome! We held several interesting discussions on advancement and first aid. The blazing arrow patrol will have charge of the next meeting. Julian Mason.

NOTE OF THANKS I wish to thank my friends and neighbors for their kind expressions of sympathy after the recent death of my beloved father. Mrs. M. M. Levin.
