Talking About Uncertainty

Remember back yonder when the National Association of Manufacturers and other domineering voices of privilege and bigness were crying about uncertainty? Remove the OPA, drive the scoundrels out of Washington, cut off the bureaucrats' heads, lynch the fellow who dared work in the name of government for all the people. That was their tune. They promised that if controls were lifted, uncertainty would vanish and all would be well. Well, inflation is with us, and if ever there was uncertainty about anything and everything it is staring us full in the face with flaming eyes. Today, the working man is paying within a few cents for a 24-pound bag of flour what he paid for a 48-pound bag a short time ago. Those fellows who wanted the government to step down from its pedestal and give them full power to reign and ruin, have just about got the nation to the brink of ruin. They are responsible for strikes now and not the poor girls who are pleading for a living wage.

Ahead of His Time

In the opinion of some, World War II and all its disastrous effects did not lay the foundation for lasting peace. So many of us, including high officials, believe, with or without reason, that another and more costly world war must be fought. Crying out against such a danger, Robert Lee Humber, in an address in this county recently, said that no such war is needed, and went on to declare that peace can be secured by a world federation supported by authority.

Writing recently about the anniversary of Briand's Pact of Peace, RESUME D'OPINIONS in a Boston paper commented on the Briand-Kellogg Pact, and offered about the same line of reasoning as advanced by Humber, as follows:

"In many ways, it is true that the Pact of Paris was wishful thinking, but it was the right kind of wishing. It was earnest, honest wishing for peace, but it is clear by now that in addition to wishing for peace, we must be ready to create the conditions of peace and be prepared, by force if necessary, to defend the peace."

Mr. Humber said that we must create a world federation with sufficient force to maintain the peace. Will we resort to that promising suggestion, or will we go mad and bankrupt trying to out-distance another nation or combination of nations in an armament race?

Economic Nonsense Offers Signals

One may subscribe to the Wall Street Journal, study Babson's reports, follow the Washington News Letter, digest World Report, keep company with leaders of American business, but he'll get no clearer warning signals of what is in store for this country than those offered in the following economic nonsense:

Mass purchasing power is going down and individual savings have been slashed by more than 50 percent in recent months.

Prices are still rising, making it necessary for one to spend $1.57 today for what he could buy for $1 in 1939. Wholesale prices are just about at the same point they were just before the big crash after World War I.

Production and inventories keep piling up while purchasing power goes down.

Corporate profits, in the face of cries of poverty from the big guys, were never higher than they were last year and they are still going up. Profits, after taxes, last year were figured for the corporations at 12 billion dollars, an amount about equal the gross income of the farmer. At the present rate, corporate profits will push toward fourteen or fifteen billion this year, if—

It has been pointed out that such a condition simply doesn't make sense. But it is economic nonsense, and in it we see a situation that cannot last.

SHELLING PEANUTS

We have added to our peanut sheller a device that enables us to give you even better service than we have in the past. We have shelled peanuts for the farmers of Martin, Washington, Edgecombe, Bertie, Chowan and Hertford counties for the past 3 years. We have shelled more peanuts each year, therefore, we feel that our peanut sheller has built its own reputation. The farmer is the one to pass judgment on the efficiency of any machinery pertaining to the operations of farming. We want you to ask about our sheller and you will be a customer to be added to our list.

We are now shelling every day and for your convenience will shell at night if requested.

every grade and hill, monarch of the farthest horizon. It's wanted for bigness, and the deep comfort of low-set, cushiony seats — wanted for the floating ease of soft all-coil springing, and the sure-footed stride of a car that's big enough and brawny enough for its job.

It's wanted for styling that already has set the pattern for years to come — it's wanted for fun, for adventure, and for year-round, all-round full family use.

The demand for it? Great, of course. The supply? Mounting as fast as Buick's beaver-busy production staff can free up the supply of the fine materials that go into it.

So with patience, one can be yours. With patience, that is — and the foresight to get your order in now.

You're practically that, of course, the minute you take over any new 1947 Buick. Never before has any automobile so completely won the country by its beauty — so clearly defined the shape of cars to come.

But really to take the stage and hold it — to cut a dashing figure in the smartest of smart company —

It is without question the most wanted version of America's most wanted car.

It's wanted for the freedom that's yours when its handy control swings back the top — and the sky becomes your roof and the birds your travel mates.

It's wanted for the lift and surge of its satiny straight-eight Fireball power plant, master of

A FINGER TOUCH — and the door window runs up or down automatically. Other handy controls raise or lower the top and adjust the front seat.

When better automobiles are built BUICK will build them
