Help The Band

Friday, September 12, has been proclaimed Band Day in Williamston. An appeal for $1,500 has been issued and the preliminary response has been very gratifying.

A comparatively small town in a county not far from here recently raised $5,000 for its school band. It is believed that the people of this town will recognize the value bound up in a group of tender-age musicians and give them all the support needed.

Many postwar projects have been discussed and planned. The Williamston High School Band is the first to emerge as a going and most promising concern.

One Can't Help But Wonder

When one reads about tobacco heiresses; Miss Doris Duke and Miss Libby Holman, for instance, and sees how many millions they have, and then observes a snotty-nose child riding to market on a load of tobacco which will sell for barely enough to keep life and soul together, he can't help but wonder.

Oh, possibly it's just the irony of fate that such a condition exists. But we strongly maintain that the farmer should not be branded as a communist because he pleads for more money with which to provide his younguns some of the good things in life, to properly educate them and to give them a wholesome, healthful environment.

vention in New York a short time ago. It was a great event. New York's policemen were instructed not to molest the merry-makers when they drew their water guns, shouted, whooped and cut up. The Legionnaires shouted when their leaders declared that we must be strong, that we must be ready to fight. The Legionnaires sat silently when a voice pleaded for peaceful action and ultimate peace.

A recent report from Moscow tells about the Red Legion of Russia holding a meeting there at the same time our boys were celebrating over here. The actions of the Legionnaires there were appraised as being little different from the antics employed in New York. Moscow people could not sleep for the noise and Moscow policemen were instructed not to molest the Legionnaires just as New York policemen had been instructed. The Russian Legionnaires applauded when their speakers called for preparedness for any eventuality.

There we have it, the facts clearly indicating that somebody is being misled somewhere.

The Americans in New York were told that Russia is just about or almost ready to attack us. The Russians are told in Moscow that the United States is just about or almost ready to attack them.

The peaceful people in both nations may cry out in vain in the wilderness as individuals, but we feel certain that if all those who believe in peace would rise up and shout, their cause would come out of the wilderness and turn back the war mongers.

Let's not forget, in connection with all the debate about Russia, that the Russians are entitled to enjoy unmolested any form of government that they desire.

A wise man knows when to sell his business.
