Individuals Add Much To Savings

The Securities and Exchange Commission has issued a report that during the second quarter of the present year individuals in the United States added $1,800,000,000 to their liquid savings. This was about $800,000,000 more than in the first quarter but far below the average of recent years. During the second quarter, the report showed, individuals increased their holdings of cash and deposits by $1,000,000,000; added $900,000,000 to their equity in government insurance; $700,000,000 to their equity in private insurance; $600,000,000 to their holdings of United States government securities, and $300,000,000 to their investment in savings and loan associations.

Mortgage indebtedness of individuals, however, also increased during the period. According to the statement, individuals increased their mortgage indebtedness by $1,000,000,000 and other consumer indebtedness by $600,000,000 and reduced their holdings of securities other than government by

Urges US Press To "Pipe Down"

Writing a short time ago in the Editor and Publisher, newspaper trade journal, Editor Robt. U. Brown called on the United States press to "pipe down" and stop so much war talk.

Brown wrote: "Where are the sturdy voices for peace we once had among the newspapers of this country? This continual war talk isn't going to help. . . . All we have to do is continue to think and talk of war and we soon create the national state of mind that is ready for war. . . ."

"We don't want war. Neither does Russia—in spite of her bluster, diplomatic attitude.

"We don't know how it started but war talk has spread like wild fire among our people. It's dangerous and foolhardy!

"What we need is a lot more calm, dispassionate reasoning. Therein lies a duty of the American press. . . . We think it is possible for our reporters and our editorial writers to report and comment on these diplomatic maneuvers without injecting war talk into their stories and editorials. Also, we believe it is necessary for these same editorial writers to counsel public figures in our own country to tone down their utterances concerning a future war. . . ."

"If we have war let somebody else start it—let's not talk ourselves into believing it is inevitable or necessary. That could happen."

$100,000,000. "The increase of $1,000,000,000 in individuals' cash and deposits reflected for the most part a $700,000,000 increase in time and savings deposits as compared to $1,000,000,000 during the first quarter of 1947," the commission said, adding: "Checking accounts also showed an increase during this quarter amounting to $300,000,000, in sharp contrast to a decline of $2,400,000,000 in the previous quarter. There was little change in currency in the hands of individuals compared to a $500,000,000 drop during the first quarter."

The report also noted a net increase of $400,000,000 in individuals' holdings of United States savings bonds and a $100,000,000 increase in other government securities.

The Red Cross was organized by Clara Barton, a Civil War nurse.
