Odds & Ends

The Ming dynasty which gave its name to the almost priceless Ming vases of that period, ruled China from 1368 to 1644, when the Ming line of emperors was overthrown by the Manchus who established a dynasty that held power until 1912.

College football victories frequently involve the winning of some odd trophies. Michigan and Minnesota play annually for possession of the Little Brown Jug, which a Minnesota fan "borrowed" from a Michigan water carrier back in 1893. Arizona and New Mexico battle for an old rifle, named Kit Carson.

Georges Clemenceau, premier of France during the first World War and known throughout the world as the Tiger of France, came to America as a young man and made his living for three years by teaching French in a girls' school in Connecticut. He frequently told friends in later years that those were the happiest years of his life.

Mrs. McCloskey Died On Friday

She was 76 years of age and lived all her life in Baltimore. Mrs. McCloskey made many friendships during regular visits here with her daughter, but she had been unable on account of failing health to get away from home since June, 1946, when she made her last visit here.

Funeral services were conducted in a funeral chapel in Baltimore Monday afternoon, interment following in the family plot in the cemetery there.

Surviving besides her daughter here, are a son, W. B. McCloskey of Baltimore; and two daughters, Mrs. H. J. McNamara of Baltimore and Mrs. O. H. Illig of Richmond.

SKYSTREAKS TO RECORD

The Navy captured the world's speed record in August, 1947, and, five days later, broke it with the jet-propelled "Skystreak," shown above. Piloted by Comdr. Turner E. Caldwell, Jr., USN, the plane flew 400.7 miles per hour in the first test at Muroc Field, Calif. Within a week Maj. Marion Carl, USMC, set a new mark of 656.6 miles per hour in the same plane. Speaking Well

Six-year-old Margaret, who was suffering from a bad cold, was boasting to her aunt about her remarkable progress at school, and ended by proclaiming that she could read a great deal better than her friend Sabina, who was eight years old.

"Darling," rejoined her aunt, "wouldn't it sound better if someone else said that?"

"Yes," agreed Margaret, "I think it would. I have such a bad cold that I can't say it very well."

United States farmers produced a total of 1,406,761,000 bushels of wheat in 1947 from 73,907,000 acres.
