Those Opposed

Much of the opposition directed against Governor Scott's "Go-Forward Program" has come from those who enjoy benefits others are not privileged to enjoy. The opponents, or many of them, refer to the program as one calling for a "spending orgy," and go on to say that times and conditions are "just so uncertain."

Some of those who are opposed to providing adequate facilities for schools, are said to send their children to private schools and to the social centers. What they are able to provide for their own, they would deny

As for uncertain times and conditions, such have existed from time immemorial. And while there is an admitted limit, one must admit that there have been few periods in all history when it was convenient to go forward in the real sense. Just now in this period of uncertain times and conditions, we are spending more for beverages, gambling and other questionable things than we are spending for state government, county government, town government, schools, churches, charities.

Times and conditions may be uncertain,

For Mother

but one thing is certain and that is there are those in Raleigh who apparently haven't the honest-to-goodness guts to buck the interests and go forward in the name of the people and their needs.

TUESDAY AND THURSDAY

Not Very Encouraging

Gaining momentum since the end of World War II, organizations such as the Junior Chambers of Commerce have repeatedly gone on record for questionable things. Some of the units have boasted as an accomplishment the opening of liquor stores, and others have supported legalized gambling. The right to endorse, work for and glory in such acts is not to be denied.

It is not very encouraging when rising youth take the side of such questionable things, and do little or nothing on the side where real culture, religion, morals and basic foundations for society are begging for a helping hand.

Where Wiley, Aycock, Horner, the Grahams and others pleaded for education and noble ideals, we now find the rising sprouts championing the cause of questionable things. It is an ill omen for the future of

Good, but Bad

Motor vehicle fatalities dropped again in 1948. The decrease, even though it was less than one percent, is all to the good.

Motor vehicle injuries, however, rose again in 1948. The increase, amounting to almost eight percent, is a bad sign.

Much emphasis is placed on the death rate in accident prevention work. This is natural because death always makes the headlines. But it is dangerous, too, because it is so easy to become complacent.

In their 1949 booklet of street and highway accident data, just released, The Travelers Insurance Companies urge that states, cities and communities look to the injury rate as a true measure of success or failure in their safety campaigns. The hundred persons saved from death are living tributes to the safety job that has been done, it is pointed out. but the injured millions should be constant reminders that the job is far from complet-
