A Noble Record

In his passing a few days ago, Elder B. S. Cowin left a noble record, one that will live in the deeds of men and women for years to come.

His humble walk through life, his teachings and preaching and his goodness enriched the lives of many hundreds and helped make this section a better place in which to live.

He received few earthly goods for his untiring and devoted service, but surely he found comfort and consolation in the knowledge that he had fought the good fight, that when ill health forced his retirement from active service in the pulpit he could look back on a work well done, and that it was not in vain.

In his diary, faithfully maintained down through the years, his bigness and goodness are strikingly revealed. In the little books he noted forgiveness for those who wronged him. And then there were his little prayers, humbly jotted down and directed to the point with marked simplicity.

While he never aspired to high office, he filled his niche in life beyond the call of duty, serving his Maker and his fellowman in a way that endeared him to all whose pleasure and good fortune it was to know him.

Safely it can be said of him, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

Poor Man

Bob Reynolds is a poor man! Politically, he is about the poorest of the poor; in fact, he is just about poverty stricken.

Financially, he should be in good shape, reports stating that he inherited much from his mother. Then he married into the McLean family of Hope Diamond fame. It could be that he has run through it all, but Mr. Reynolds is very likely to find it an opportunity for all the money he ever thought of the people as he did when he ran against that great Democrat, Cameron Morrison, for the Senate. When he was parading in mockery back then with his little old Ford, it was said that big cars were in the garage back in Asheville.

If Mr. Reynolds is as poor as he says he is, let him go to work with a circus and quit begging.

The Best Defense

By Ruth Taylor

What is our best defense? The answers fly thick and fast every time we twist the radio dial or pick up the morning paper.

"The best defense is a good offense". Build up an atom bomb stockpile. Develop the hydrogen bomb. Manufacture bigger and better airplanes. Set up a strong military force.

"The only defense is to make peace". Call conferences. Compromise ideals if necessary. Divide the world into two spheres of influence.

Maybe I'm wrong. But it seems to me that we have skipped over the first and most important line of defense. The one without which all the other ideas are as nothing.

A nation is as strong as the spirit of its people.

Yes, I know. I said that all during the last war. And, what is more, I'm going to keep right on saying it. We proved it was true then - that our people - you, me, and our neighbors - united in one spirit for the defense of their individual and collective rights as free men and women, were more than a match for the well drilled robots of a dictator dominated state.

But unity of spirit is not a thing to be turned off and on like the switch on your radio. Strength of spirit cannot be achieved over night. It must be built up, for it is composed of understanding, forbearance, and appreciation, expressed in the day-by-day give and take of the democratic way of life.

As far as sneak attacks and the atom and hydrogen bombs are concerned-even as far as peace conferences and international agreements present themselves, we are more or less in the position of the airplane traveler. All we can do for our own protection is to see that we pick a line with good pilots and responsible maintenance crews.

But what we can do to defend this land of ours is to make strong the spirit of the peoples. And that means US.

We need a revival of patriotism. If we truly believe that our way of life, our republican form of government, our democratic way of life, is the one we want, then we, as individuals can best defend it by living up to its high principals. To be concrete, we must put away divisiveness, stop petty bickerings by self-interest blocs. We must seek points of agreement and resolve differences from that base. We must try to understand the other good of the country as a whole.

This is not a job for any one group. The cracks in the wall of our national morale must be filled in with individual understanding. A nation is as strong as the spirit of its people. And the people is YOU.

Preaching But Not Practicing

Senator Harry Byrd and his "economy" committee are preaching but not practicing economy. It is revealed that the committee duplicates another, that neither is producing economy.

But the taxpayers will have to go on footing the bill, because committees get appropriations and members of the committees ordinarily "huddle" the cash in dishing out jobs, financing jaunts and publicizing the activities they want publicized.

Inefficiency

There is a definite trend toward mechanization and modernization in nearly every field except Congress.

In the National House of Representatives, about one month in every session is lost calling the rolls when a machine could do the job in a matter of seconds.

J. G. Crawford, Davie County farmer who produced 6,275 pounds of lint on five acres, has been declared North Carolina's champion cotton grower for 1949.
