An Invitation to Accept

The Senate should accept promptly the American China Policy Association's invitation to investigate it . .

It should look specifically into the activities of Alfred Kohlberg, who apparently is the real power in the American China Policy Association

Mr. Kohlberg organized the association. He finances it. Its headquarters are in his office. He charges off part of its expenses against his business operations importing textiles from China.

A Senate investigation should find out in revealing detail what Mr. Kohlberg does to influence opinion and legislation in favor of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist Government -if government it can still be called.

What are his activities with respect to influencing members of Congress? He has confirmed reports that he has been feeding material to Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin for the latter's vicious attacks on the State Department. He verified that he has supplied material to fascist-admiring, ex-Father-Coughlinite William J. Goodwin, who was a paid, registered foreign agent of the Chiang Kai-shek "government" (Goodwin resigned, he said, after the spotlight was turned on his activities in the McCarthy

Do not Mr. Kohlberg's highly organized efforts to bring pressure on Congress, in behalf of more American millions for Chiang, constitute lobbying? If so, shouldn't he be prosecuted for failing to register under the Registration of Lobbying Act?

Have lawyers and others with political influence been retained at fat fees to do jobs for Nationalist China so that their sentiments would — naturally — be pro-Chiang whenever the matter came up? If so, what does Mr. Kohlberg, who knows all about what the United States should do in China, know about that?-St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Chenango Union: "It is a basic principle of democracy that might does not make right. When that principle is disregarded by any individual or group of individuals, whether it be a labor union or an association of employers or a political party, our system of liberty and justice for all is endanger d."

Feeding on the Absence of Reforms

It is something to be against the isms, but it is something to be against the things that the isms feed on.

The record of the isms is that they have flourished in the absence of reforms.

When the farmer experiences one crop failure, he tightens his belt and renews the fight. If prices are low one years, it was in the scheme of things for him to plant more and work harder the next year. But when the farmer, year after year, produced his crops and received a below-cost price for his produce, a situation favorable to literally suck the isms was created. We hate to think what would have happened had the depression in the early thirties lasted much longer. The laborer was not receiving a living wage. The farmer, so the system ruled, was not entitled to electricity. He along with the working man was relegated to the status

We do not know what'll happen under the debt burden and a budget gone hay-wire, but if there is an explosion one thing is certain and that is we won't lost any more than was lost under Hooverism; it'll be lost in just a different way. And it'll be lost with everyone knowing that this country had tried to give everyone a fair chance to live and let live.

Irrespective of the huge debt and the budget bugaboo and all the ism talk notwithstanding, we feel in our very souls that this country is farther from the isms today than it was in the last days of the Hoover period when there was no great tax burden, when those who headed the government had free rein to act as they wanted to act, and without the social planners and re-

And we should remember that the vast part of the existing debt was created to protect all of us, that a few crumbs were dropped to help relieve the plight of those who could not, despite repeated efforts, help themselves.

A Courtesy Week

Worchester (Mass.) Telegram.

It is perhaps one of the more discouraging signs of our times that it became headline news when the citizens of Mount Vernon, N. Y., a Westchester County community, decided to try out the gentle art of being courteous to one another for a whole week.

Visitors to Mount Vernon this week are likely to be surprised to find how much real courtesy people can muster up, although it must be said that Mount Vernonites say they are usually pretty polite anyway. This week, however, they will be even more polite; there will be smiling traffic cops, eager assistance to help elderly folks across busy streets and a return to an era when folks seemed to take courtesy as a matter of course, and not something for which to be awarded a special medal.

It all started when a trio of teen agers, of all people, persuaded Mayor William H. Hussey that he should proclaim the week as a "courtesy week." The mayor agreed with the youngsters that perhaps much of the world's troubles do come from the fact that too many persons are inconsiderate of one another. Perhaps Mount Vernon could lead the way back to a courteous age, a period of gallant manners when life was casual and a lot happier.

It is to be hoped that this will be so. It is perhaps slightly encouraging that the idea for a courtesy week did come from some

Washington

Coach Stuart Maynard of the Williamston High School, who is to direct the recreation program here this summer, announced yesterday that two definite appointments had been made to his staff so far. Bobby Carter will be in charge of operation of the swimming pool and is expected to put season tickets at reduced prices on sale this week-end, and Bobby Rogers will serve as life guard at the pool and help with the morning recteation program at the high school grounds, especially softball and baseball. The pool opens for afternoons and and three night a week beginning next week but morning hours for the program will not be observed until after the Daily Vacation Bible school has closed its two-week session. The baby pool will be operated agein this year but the name of
