of the board of trustees. The four doctors who own the building and lease it to the hospital corporation, and the corporation, in turn, will rent them office space and facilities. Dental offices will be rented to Dr. Wm. H. Gray, Jr., who will move from his present location on South Houghton Street to his suite in the new hospital within the next few weeks.

The four doctors have formed a partnership for the practice of medicine under the name of the Williamston Clinic, and will occupy the left second story wing of the building.

The hospital, built according to modern codes and regulations, has a capacity to accommodate fifty patients at one time. There are separate wings for white and colored patients and a special section for maternity cases with modern nursery.

Its operating rooms, delivery and emergency rooms will be equipped with the latest facilities. The kitchen is modern in every detail. When the hospital is operating at full capacity, it will employ about forty persons.

A home for nurses will not be built at the present time. However, one is planned for the future. No nursing school will be maintained in connection with the operation of the hospital for the present, but nurses, who have gained their training and experience elsewhere, will be on the staff.

The Doctors Ward of Robersonville along with other citizens there and throughout the county have shown considerable interest in the new hospital, and have already proffered financial support. The Robersonville doctors, V. A. Ward, Sr., Walter E. Ward and Joseph Ward, and Dr. J. S. Rhodes, Sr., of Williamston, will be on the courtesy staff. Dr. R. H. Hackler, member of American Society of Radiology and X-ray, is to serve as a staff consultant. Every effort is being made to ably serve all the people of the county.

segregation. He has said time and again over many years that he opposes Federal compulsion in race relations. During his 19 years as president of the University, not one Negro ever enrolled. Graham's record is consistent.

Under the heading, "How Times Change", the Raleigh report continues:

A few days ago, the Raleigh Times — which claims to be independent — came out for Willis Smith.

Here's what the TIMES said little more than a year ago when Graham was appointed to the Senate (after raising his record at the University): "Suffice it to say, and this is no mere matter of State pride, the caliber of the United States Senate should be enriched and raised by the personality of Frank Graham in its body. His statesmanship and his vision will give pause to those members who sometimes trade in the marketplace". — March 23, 1949.

Four members of the jury were excused, Hubert Roberson and W. C. Hopkins on account of illness in their homes. Hilton Forbes, explaining that he had served on the grand jury a year ending last September and that he and the superintendent were both away from the Standard Fertilizer plant, was excused. Since she was the only woman on the jury, Mrs. Eloise Bennett was also excused.

ACHESON AND LIE CONFER WITH THE PRESIDENT

RECENTLY RETURNED from England, Secretary of State Dean Acheson (right) reports to President Truman on the London meeting of foreign ministers. Acheson came to the White House accompanied by United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie (second from right) and Byron Price (standing), UN Assistant Secretary-General. After the meeting, Lie denied he had brought back any message for the President from Josef Stalin, whom he visited in Moscow during his recent "peace mission" through Europe. State Ranks 8th In Breeding Work

J. A. Arey, in charge of dairy work for the State College Extension service, announced this week that North Carolina now ranks eighth in the nation in the number of artificial breeding associations and in the number of dairy herds being served under this program.

Arey's figures came from a report released by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The report showed that North Carolina ranked first in the South in number of associations and herds. However, Tennessee, Louisiana and Kentucky all rank ahead of the Tar Heel State in number of cows being served. Apparently North Carolina associations are more scattered and serve smaller herds, says Arey.

North Carolina has 50 associations serving 9,186 herds and 49,322 cows. Twenty-four bulls are used in supplying the associations.

Wisconsin leads the nation with 411,566 cows enrolled, followed

Program Extends Technical Help

Some thirty countries are expected to contribute about $20,000,000 to continue a technical assistance program that has been launched by the United Nations. The United States will give the largest share — about half — and the other countries will make up the balance.

Sixteen nations have already applied for assistance in a couple of dozen different fields. Already specialists have gone to Ecuador to take a census, to help Haiti fight disease and to help the Philippines make paper. The backlog of requests, it is hoped, will be taken care of under the expanded program.

In addition to the dispatch of experts to assist in the promotion of beneficial programs in the various countries, the United Nations has arranged for sixty-eight specialists to be trained and has sponsored training centers in various places.

The scope of the projects, it seems, parallels the purpose of the Point Four in President Truman's program of world rehabilitation. Results will naturally be slow because it is impossible to change the customs and habits of peoples overnight. Nonetheless, for the amount of money to be spent, the program offers promise of promoting the welfare of under developed peoples by assisting them in enterprises that will eventually achieve permanent results.

Conducting Census In The Americas

Census enumerators, trained in the United States, have been busy by New York with 287,044 cows. Other high ranking states were Pennsylvania, Ohio, Iowa, Minnesota, and Michigan.

The total number of dairy cows enrolled in the associations in 1949 approached the three million mark. One cow in nine is expected to be artificially bred in 1950. Associations are now operating in 47 states and Alaska.
