

News As Reported In The Enterprise Forty Years Ago

July 29, 1910

The friends of Miss Viola Rogers, of Everetts, are glad to note that she is improving after a long illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherrill Salsbury, of Hamilton, delightfully entertained about forty of their friends at "Salsbury Park" last Thursday. Delicious barbecue, tomatoes, slaw, salads, cucumbers, breads, cakes, and ice cream were served and thoroughly enjoyed. After dinner the guests enjoyed croquet, tennis, observation races and other games, and at a late hour took their departure, all declaring they had never spent a more delightful day.

Mrs. R. W. Salsbury, of Hamilton, entertained the Hamilton Book Club at her hospitable home on Main street. Several visitors were present. "The Floral Love Story" contest proved interesting.

Mrs. J. P. Boyle, of Hamilton, entertained at luncheon last week in honor of Miss Anna Clark.

Mrs. M. I. Fleming returned last week to her home in Hamilton, after a short visit to her parents in Enfield.

Efficiency Expert Promotes Gadgets

The average American business man may be a bungler when it comes to managing a home, as any vacationing housewife can tell you, but he shines in producing the gadgets that help the Little Woman run her home more efficiently. At the recent National Housewares Show in Atlantic City business men who may never have boiled an egg or done a week's wash were credited with producing eight work-savers that have helped free American women from the kitchen slavery. Benjamin A. Ragir, president of Ekro Products Company, world's largest producer of household implements, cited these major inventions as having done the most to lighten the housewife's burden in recent years: 1) gas and electric refrigerators, stoves and home freezers; 2) pressure cookers; 3) specialized cutlery; 4) streamlined kitchen tools; 5) modern, lightweight cooking utensils; 6) detergents and other cleaning agents; 7) frozen and other processed foods and concentrates; and 8) better working conditions due to improved kitchen architecture and lighting.
