

Shirley Temple In Film At the Watts

A new delightful comedy presented by James Nasser and based on the character, Corliss Archer, created by F. Hugh Herbert, hits the screen of the Watts Theatre Thursday and Friday, through United Artists release. It is called "A Kiss for Corliss," with gifted Shirley Temple playing for the second time on the screen the bobby-soxer who has the happy faculty of getting into scrapes that leave her family and friends in a state of happy befuddlement. The earlier picture woven around Corliss Archer was called "Kiss and Tell."

Handsome David Niven shares stellar honors with Shirley, in the role of a suave man-about-town, in other words, a high-class heel, with whom she gets amusingly involved. Tom Tully plays her father, and Gloria Holden her mother. Darryl Hickman is her long-suffering adolescent boy friend and Virginia Welles is her girl friend.

"A Kiss for Corliss" was produced by Colin Miller and directed by Richard Wallace from

"Mystery Street" Is Viccar Film

"Mystery Street," new M-G-M thriller, showing at the Viccar Theatre Thursday and Friday, is more than an exciting motion picture. It is a dramatic story behind the story of thousands of newspaper headlines—the hidden murders which annually are written off the records as "accidental deaths." It brings to the screen for the first time in film history the most modern methods of crime detection as developed at Harvard's famed Department of Legal Medicine. Sequences taken in the Department, as well as other scenes of Harvard, Boston and the Cap Cod area, were filmed on actual location.

The cast is headed by Ricardo Montalban and Sally Forrest, with other featured roles filled by Bruce Bennett, Elsa Lanchester and Marshall Thompson. Montalban, headed for a dramatic career after scoring in Technicolor musicals, recently appeared in "Battleground" and "Border Incident." Miss Forest, now under contract to M-G-M, is the discovery who charge of the interesting set decorations. Shirley's wardrobe, so beautifully suited to a small-town teen-ager, was designed by Eloise Jensen.

United Nations Plan Observance

United Nations Week.—The United Nations Secretariat has set October 16 to 24 as United Nations Week in 1950. During this week the peoples throughout the world are called upon to arrange special programs and religious services that focus on the United Nations—its work, its achievements, its plans for the future. "Churches have a signal opportunity during this week," says the call, "to co-operate with all community organizations in the development of a strong moral and spiritual support for the United Nations. Only such support will make possible a more effective world organization."

gained overnight fame as the unwed mother in "Not Wanted."

Bruce Bennett last scored in "Treasure of Sierra Madre"; Elsa Lanchester, one of the screen's outstanding character actresses, comes to the new film from her hit in "Come to the Stable"; and Marshall Thompson last played Ricardo Montalban's fellow G. I. in "Battleground."

"Mystery Street" was directed by John Sturges "Gun Crazy," "The Return of October"). It was produced by Frank E. Taylor, former New York publishing firm literary editor. The screen play is by Sydney Boehm and Richard Brooks; the story by Leonard Spigelgass.
