Shrimp

The shrimp, a tiny relative of the lobster and crab, appears on American dining tables more often than other crustaceans. The shrimp industry is the most valuable fishery of the South. Shrimp are caught during the entire year but the heaviest production is from August through December. They live on the bottom of shallow inside waters and where rivers meet the sea.

Only the tail or body of shrimp is marketed. The head which contains the vital organs is removed by the packers. The sand vein is harmless but for the sake of appearance should be removed. Most raw shrimp sold inland are frozen. Frozen cooked shrimp - simmered or French fried is available in some markets, but by far the greatest amount of cooked shrimp is in canned form, either brine or dry packed.

Usually fresh raw shrimp have a greenish-gray color and until recently a pink tinge before cooking meant too much time en route to the consumer. However, a newly discovered variety of shrimp which is pink is now being marketed, called "Florida Pink".

Fresh or frozen shrimp are often cooked in a water stock containing seasonings such as salt, peppercorns, bay leaf, celery, onion, lemon juice, cayenne and clove garlic. The washed shrimp may be shucked and de-veined before or after simmering. If shucked before cooking the shrimp will curl easily. Shrimp cooked in a hurry-just five minutes is sufficient.

The most popular way of serving shrimp seems to be as a cocktail or French fry.

French Fried Shrimp

Combine 2-3 cup milk, 1-8 teaspoon salt, and paprika. Soak 1 pound of shrimp in milk mixture for 30 minutes. Drain shrimp, sprinkle with salt, roll in corn meal and fry until brown in hot fat. Drain on absorbent paper and

Christmas Buying Time Approaches

'Tis the month before Christmas—and once again time to remember the old adage, "Do your Christmas shopping early."

Doubtless, few will heed these sage words of advice, and Christmas Eve will find the usual crowds scurrying from store to store in last minute shopping expeditions.

Shopping for the men is usually a major problem because it is so easy to fall into the old tie routine. This year, however, things are going to be different, the fashion authorities report. Cotton pajamas are destined to take over as the number one gift for men. New designs, smart colors, and trim tailoring in flannel, poplin, and broadcloth make the new pajamas welcome packages in masculine Christmas stockings.

serve hot with lemon juice or lemon slices. An almond sauce will bring out the flavor of fried shrimp.

Jellied Shrimp Salad

1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
1-4 cup cold water
1 1-2 cups tomato juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1-2 cup diced celery
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 cup shrimp, halved lengthwise

Soften gelatin in cold water and dissolve over hot water. Add tomato juice, lemon juice, salt and chill. When beginning to thicken add shrimp and celery. Pour into ring mold and chill. Serve on lettuce leaf and fill center with dressing.

Congressman Ralph Gwinn Of New York Charged With Being Leader

The activities of Republican Representative Ralph Gwinn of New York illustrate the way in which many GOP Congressmen cooperate closely with special interest lobbies.

Congressman Gwinn was described by the "Louisville Courier Journal" as an integral part of an extreme right-wing lobby. The active agency of this lobby is the Committee for Constitutional Government.

Representative Gwinn's chief service to the CCG is his Congressional frank, through which the lobby is able to get much of its material printed cheaply and mailed free. The New York Congressman also inserts into the Congressional Record large amounts of anti-administration material, which then becomes eligible for free mailing.

The Committee for Constitutional Government is headed by Edward A. Rumely, who during World War One acted as a German propagandist and, after the war, was found guilty and sent to jail on charges of violating the Trading with the Enemy Act. He was pardoned by President Coolidge.

The CCG has been a valuable ally of many other big lobbies. When the real estate lobby sought control of rents, the CCG took part in the campaign. When a national health program was proposed, the CCG fought it along side the anti-health lobby. It has long been a supporter of the National Association of Manufacturers in the move to have corporate and high bracket individual income taxes lowered.

Representative Wright Patman, (D) (Tex.) described CCG operations in these words: "Practically every piece of propaganda turned out during the speeches, articles and statements from Ed Rumely's phony constitutional committee has been saturated with the obnoxious odor of fascistic bias. . . You cannot escape the fact that what Ed Rumely and his committee are trying to perpetrate upon the American people is a violently reactionary government."

It is this operation that is, through wide use of Congressman Gwinn's frank, paid for in part by the taxpayers.

In one case, several million pieces of material attacking such programs as rent control, federal aid to education and public housing were mailed in 900,000 envelopes. For these envelopes on which a special message was printed, Gwinn paid the government a price of less than two tenths of a cent each.

House mailing room officials estimated that the cost of stuffing the envelopes came to nearly $3,700. Further government-paid labor was used to pack the envelopes in boxes, and the first-class postage fee footed by the taxpayers amounted to $27,000.

Further evidence of the New York Congressman's close affiliation with the CCG is found in correspondence on file with the House Lobby Committee, showing that he has sent copies of his speeches to Rumely for editing before having inserted in the Congressional Record.

JUST THE SAME

At Wakelon the other day, Herbert Privette and Tommy Temple were discussing a certain lass who passed them in the hall.

"I don't see how you can see she's got legs like Grable," said Herbert.

"She has the same number," Tommy replied.

Guaranty Bank Is Using Picture Ads

The Guaranty Bank & Trust Company is beginning this week a series of advertisements on true facts concerning North Carolina which should be of special interest to every one in this community.

The Guaranty Bank & Trust Company is sponsoring this series of advertisements in order to sell North Carolina to North Carolinians. To sell pride in our state, pride in what it grows, pride in what it manufactures and pride in the great future which lies ahead. A promotion to boost business, industry and our people is the aim.

Especially should the series be of interest to students of schools, civic organizations, and others interested in the early history of our state, historical sites and garden spots for which North Carolina has become famous.

For instance, one of the series will picture the birth place of Andrew Johnson, a great North Carolinian who became President; the first railroad in North Carolina; the Confederate Prison at Salisbury; Fort Macon; the marker of O. Henry, famous North Carolinian who is considered the state's greatest literary figure; the legend of the dogwood, the State Flower; first governor of the state who was Richard Caswell; history of the State Hospital for the Insane; the Mint Museum at Charlotte; North Carolina's famous Pirates; first North Carolina State Fair; First State Capitol; Banks Wild Ponies; William Gaston, the author of The Old North State; Thomas Wolfe; how the State nickname "Tar Heel" originated; the history of the textile, furniture industry; cotton and tobacco, and many others.

SINCLAIR BUILDS NEW PIPELINES TO HELP MEET RECORD OIL DEMAND

MORE OIL BY PIPELINE. Faced by an unprecedented public demand for petroleum products, Sinclair Refining Company is going all-out to increase deliveries to motorists and fuel oil users. As part of its great $150,000,000 expansion program, Sinclair is adding hundreds of miles of pipeline to its already existing lines.

Some new Sinclair lines are already speeding gasoline and fuel oil over the all-weather route from refineries to key delivery points. Moreover, Sinclair is also enlarging its refining capacity and intensifying its search for new crude supplies. In the future as in the past, look to Sinclair for Better Products, Better Service.
