

News As Reported In The Enterprise Forty Years Ago

NOVEMBER 25, 1910

Mr. and Mrs. James Grist Station entertained at dinner on Sunday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Kader Biggs Crawford and their young sons, Kader B., and Asa Henry, who were christened on that day by Rev. Mr. Gordon at the Church of the Advent. The sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Station, Mrs. W. H. Crawford and Mr. F. W. Hoyt. The young children were presented by their parents. The guests sat down to a bountiful feast served in true Southern style and for an hour and a half enjoyed the excellent dishes prepared for them. Mr. and Mrs. Station are ever cordial to their friends and dispense hospitality lavishly. Those who were present were: the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. K. B. Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Crawford, Mrs. C. W. Kellinger, Miss Anna Crawford, Mrs. M. C. Crawford, Mr. F. W. Hoyt and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Dunning.

The town of Williamston should be in such a financial condition that it could provide a better pump at the well. If the water is not very palatable there should at least be an easy way to procure same.

"Tarzan And The Mermaids" Here

Tarzan, Edgar Rice Burroughs' ape-man character, plunges into tense drama in Sol Lesser's current production, "Tarzan and the Mermaids," which RKO Radio releases. Combining adventure with romance, the hero of African adventure is involved with an amphibious costal tribe. Johnny Weissmuller and Brenda Joyce portray the stellar roles, and Linda Christian is featured.

Tarzan, on a fishing trip, is astonished when he snares a "mermaid" in his net. She is a native girl fleeing from a betrothal to a living tribal god. The men of the tribe reclaim her after a battle. Tarzan and Jane follow in a plan to rescue her and they discover that a brutal white man is masquerading as the god and is ruling the natives through fear and superstition.

How the unconquerable hero manages to save the girl and to week was the entertainment of The Afternoon Book Club by Mrs. James G. Staton at her residence on West Main Street. The business session of the Club was presided over by Mrs. S. A. Newell, President. The hostess with that fine sense of appropriateness of thing, had arranged for the pleasure of the guests a "Turkey" contest. The dining room had been arranged with simple but beautiful effect, the polished table with exquisite doilies and silver, carnations and cut glass presenting a most attractive picture. Those present were: Mrs. S. A. Newell, Mrs. T. J. Smith, Mrs. F. U. Barnes, Mrs. A. R. Dunning, Mrs. A. S. Coffield, Mrs. J. H. Saunders, Miss Annie Mizell, the Misses Barnes of Murfreesboro and Katie Ausbon, of Plymouth.

Smallest Cotton Crop Since 1871

Based upon information as of November 1, the far flung cotton crop is forecast at 170,000 bales. If materialized, such a production would be 64 percent below that of 1949, 71 percent below the ten-year (1939-48) average, as well as the smallest crop produced in this State since 1871. The average yield per acre is placed at 147 pounds of lint. This is 112 pounds below the 1949 per acre yield of 259 pounds, 226 pounds less than the ten-year average, and the lowest since 1889.

According to Census Bureau reports 127,000 bales were ginned to November 1 this year, compared with 322,757 bales ginned to this same date last year.

The 10 boys and girls who sold pullets in the first annual Rowan County 4-H Club poultry chain sale received an average price of $2.56 each for their birds.
