Moving For Favored Position

Meeting down in Sea Island, Ga., a swanky retreat for those who have the fare, some of the nation's biggest business tycoons, took action for favored positions in the tax world and in the nation's economy, war or no war.

They did the spade work, designed to undermine an excessive profits tax and substitute a national sales tax. A national sales tax has the angelic blessings of the National Association of Manufacturers.

The group, numbering about 100 of the top business men of the nation, would impose no price controls for at least a year.

They would suspend the anti-trust laws during the emergency and crop the wings of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act by limiting its scope.

They have the gall to ask that and then condemn a struggling working man for asking a living wage.

What Some Would Do

There is no telling what some people in this fair land of ours would do to discredit the present administration. They have fired one volley after another into it, and then harp about the administration's shortcomings, shortcomings they helped manufacture.

There's no question but what some would prefer war on a world-wide front, poverty at home and a complete break-down of our economy rather than see the Democrats win.

Once by the grace of God, a truth is born into the world, and it can never be expelled. Nor can it be defeated. All who see it thereafter conscripts in its service. We must have faith in truths, in ideas, in the finer forces that work quietly, as seeds grow, and never tire, never sleep. At the same time, we must use all means within our power to realize our ideals in practical life.—Joseph Fort Newton.

We all like to meet a man who greets us with a cheerful word and a smile. There never was a man who did not have his share of troubles and disappointments. The difference is that some let their troubles get them down and ride them, while others refuse to be whipped outwardly, and though they carry a heavy and a worried heart they greet the world with a smile and a word of cheer.—Theodore Roosevelt.

A building can rise only as high in the air as its foundation is sunk into the earth. No twenty-eight-story structure can stand on a four-story foundation. Strive day by day to lay a secure foundation upon which you can build a worthwhile future. You can determine how tall you will grow tomorrow by how deep you are willing to build today.—George I. Francis.

In your mind you conduct the great commerce of daily thought. Every thought you think and cultivate contributes something to the sum total of your life. Resolutely rid your mind of erroneous, useless, destructive thoughts by substituting strong, helpful, constructive thoughts. Stand guard at your mental door.—Grenville Kleiser.

"A rattlesnake is much safer than a treacherous friend. The first will give one a signal of danger before loosing its reptilian temper; the second will gladly push one into the pit of grief without the least warning."

Every time we entertain thoughts of love, sympathy, forgiveness, and faith, we add to the well-being of the world, and create fortunate and successful conditions for ourselves.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Too many of us forget to put foundations under air castles.—Exchange.

For War And Lower Taxes

There's a group running wild in this country, begging for war and, at the same time, pleading for lower taxes.

Some would start wholesale atomic bombing; others would pit Chiang Kaishek's troops in Formosa against the Reds in Korea. If such action foments World War III, why, that'll be all right, but they would insist on fighting and lowering taxes at the same time.

For a while it looked as if the world was to be divided into just two groups, communists and anti-communists. Now, it seems the ranks are being deserted with all going into the ranks of the crazy.

There is a capacity for heroism in all of us. We never really know the joy of life until we have loved enough to suffer. The most unhappy person is the one who has run away from duty.—Dr. Walter R. Cremins.

In the very debts of yourself dig a grave. Let it be like some forgotten spot to which no path leads, and there, in the eternal silence, bury the wrongs that you have suffered. Your heart will feel as if a great weight had fallen from it, and divine peace will come to abide with you.—Charles Wagner.

Love your work; turn a deaf ear to slander; be considerate in correction of others; do not be taken up by trifles; do not resent plain speaking; meet offenders half way; be thorough in thought; have an open mind; do your duty without grumbling.—Marcus Aurelius.

Do today's duty, fight today's temptations; do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things you cannot see, and could not understand if you saw them.—Charles Kingsley.

I never want to forget that it is more important that I deserve to win than that I win. If I can have the assurance that I deserve to win, I have the feeling that I am right, and that is worth more than victory.—W. A. Huxman.

To me it seems as if when God conceived the world, that was poetry; He formed it and that was sculpture; He varied it and colored it, and that was painting; and then, crowning all, He peopled it with living beings, and that was the grand, divine, eternal drama.—Charlotte Cushman.

A man by himself is no man, is very dull, is very blunt, but if his fellow men come and quicken him by their presence, speech or example, he is so whetted by this means that he is much more comfortable, skillful and better than he was.—Peter Moffett.

"A more glorious victory cannot be gained over another man than this: When the injury begins on his part, the kindness should begin in ours.

"We are constrained to admit that if every man would do the best in his power to do, and that which he knows he ought to do, we would need no better world than this."

"Don't expect to enjoy the cream of life if you keep the milk of human kindness all bottled up."

There isn't any map of the road to success; you have to find your own way.—Exchange.
A formula for youth: Keep your enthusiasms, and forget your birthdays.—Eugene Lyman Fiske.

Permit your mind to dwell on pleasant things if you would be happy. Evil thoughts, like green apples, upset the whole system.—O. W. Holmes

Should you happen to stumble on the pathway of life, get up—go again, and do your best. There never was but one perfect man, and they crucified him.—Selected.

When you are so devoted to doing what is right that you press straight on to that and disregard what men are saying about you, there is the triumph of moral courage.—Phillips Brooks

Look not sorrowfully into the past, it comes not back again. Wisely improve the present; it is thine. Go forth to meet the shadowy future without fear, and with a manly heart.—Longfellow.

"Yes, each man spoils the one he loves And gratifies her wishes— The rich man showers her with gifts; While the poor man dries the dishes."—Exchange.

False pleasure will be, is chastened; it has no right to be at peace.—Mary Baker Eddy.
All earthly delights are sweeter in expectation than enjoyment; but all spiritual pleasures more in fruition than expectation.—Pelham.

Junior Red Cross Drive Under Way

A 2-week campaign enrollment in the American Junior Red Cross is being conducted this week in all grade and high schools of the Martin County Chapter. Mrs. Edith Davis, Junior Red Cross chairman of the Martin Red Cross Chapter announced today.

Members of the enrollment committee include Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Frances Monteth.

As in the past years, all students Mrs. Davis said, will be encouraged to earn enrollment fees, which amount to 50 cents for each elementary schoolroom and $1 for each group of 100 in the high schools. And funds they raise over and above that required for enrollment fees will be used for projects of the Junior Red Cross here in the county, as well as for support of the organization's activities nationally and for children in other lands.

The Junior Red Cross affords fine opportunity for the county's youngsters of school age to engage in humanitarian service for which they're fitted, and badly needed, not only for hospitalized and needy in this county but also in behalf of youngsters in other countries who still are feeling the after effects of war.

"We not only aim toward enrolling every youngster of school age but we want to develop our JRC service projects to the point where every newly-enrolled Junior will have a chance to take an active part.

'Blood On Moon' A Big Western

Laid on a western Indian reservation shortly after the Civil War, RKO Radio's dramatic adventure "Blood on the Moon" co-stars Robert Mitchum, Barbara Bel Geddes and Robert Preston in an action-laden romantic drama.

Mitchum has the role of a wandering cow-puncher and Miss Bel Geddes that of a wealthy cattleman's daughter, with Preston as a ruthless adventurer who plots with a crooked Indian agent to get the cattleman's heard away from him. The puncher hires out as a gunman on Preston's payroll, but the more he sees of his employer's methods the less he likes them, and he decides to quit his job and leave the country.

But Preston won't permit this, and after a bitter quarrel Mitchum joins forces with the cattleman and the cattleman's militant daughter. How he does it makes for the exciting climax of the offering, with Mitchum, trapped with Miss Bel Geddes in a mountain cabin, engaging in a deadly duel with three of his enemies.

One thrilling situation after another blends with the dual romances of the story to make an unusually piece of screen fare. "Blood on the Moon," plays at the Vicar Theatre Wednesday.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our son and brother, Joshua L. Williams, who was killed Nov. 27, 1949.

Our son and brother: who was so near

Has been taken away and is gone. It grieves our hearts, it is hard to part

With one who was so kind. Where shall we go to tell our woe or lose our troubled mind.

In wisdom ways he spent his days Much comfort he did find, but he is gone.

His race is run and we are left behind.

A loving son and brother so good and kind.

No friend on earth we will find For each of us he did his best; May God grant him eternal rest.

We often sit and think of you and of the way you died.

That you could not say good bye before you closed your eyes. Mrs. Lonnie Williams and Children.

NOTE OF THANKS

I am most grateful to my neighbors and other friends who were so thoughtful and helpful during my recent illness.

Mrs. Josephine Cox.

NOTE OF THANKS

We wish to sincerely thank all of our neighbors and friends for every act of kindness shown us during the illness and death of our husband and father. We want to thank each and every one for the beautiful cards, letters, flowers and visits. They meant so much to us in this hour of trouble. The tender feelings and loving expressions will never be forgotten.

Mrs. Joseph R. Harrison and Family.
