

Tobacco Stocks Drop Slightly

Stocks of all types of leaf tobacco totaled 3,672 million pounds (farm-sales-weight) on October 1, 1950. This is slightly lower than on the same date last year when 3,690 million pounds were reported by dealers and manufacturers in the United States and Puerto Rico.

Higher stocks of most types did not compensate for the lower holdings of flue-cured leaf.

During the third quarter, July-September 1950, approximately 800 million pounds entered stocks through purchases and deliveries compared with 810 million for the same quarter last year. The marketings consisted of around 180 million pounds of flue-cured tobacco with the remainder composed of Maryland and cigar-leaf.

For the southern types, holdings of flue-cured decreased around 4 percent from a year ago, as contrasted with increases of 2 percent in Burley stocks, 5 percent for fire-cured tobacco, and 8 percent for dark air-cured.

For the cigar-leaf types, stocks of the filler types were 5 percent larger than a year earlier, binder types increased 10 percent, and shade-grown was up 5 percent.

The auction sales for the 1950 flue-cured tobacco crop began in July, and producers marketed around 780 million pounds during the quarter—slightly less than was marketed before October 1 last year.

Stocks of flue-cured leaf in the hands of dealers and manufacturers totaled 1,857 million pounds compared with stocks of 1,941 million on October 1 a year ago.

State College Tips To the Housewife

The velvets, velveteens and corduroys, being worn so much this year, need special treatment to keep fresh appearance and wear well, say clothing specialists.

Velvet, whether silk or rayon, is a more delicate fabric than cotton velveteen or corduroy, and marks or crushes more easily, especially when damp. Dry cleaning rather than washing is recommended for velvet. Many corduroys and some velveteens may be washed at home, but it is safest to test a sample in advance to see if it is fast in color or shrinks.

Steaming velvet is the easiest way to smooth wrinkles and life crushed places. Hang velvet garment on a hanger in a steamy bathroom for an hour and then let it dry. Be sure it hangs free—perhaps from a shower bar—so that nothing touches it until it is entirely dry. Small garments or velvet pieces may be steamed over the spout of a tea kettle.

Corduroys may be pressed on the wrong side when slightly damp to remove wrinkles.

Velveteens also may be pressed but they take a little more care. Here's how: Lay a strip of velveteen right up over the ironing board. Then press the velveteen on the wrong side after dampening slightly. Press until nearly dry, then brush the right side to lift the nap. The strip of velveteen over the ironing board takes the place of the "velvet board" used by dressmakers and tailors for pressing napped fabric. It is especially helpful to prevent mashing seams, hems, or other double thickness of velveteen.

Interesting Bits Of Business in U. S.

Soap sales hit the skids during 1950's first half, slipping 11 percent from 1949 peaks. Meanwhile, a synthetic detergent "clean-up" balanced the loss, resulted in an industry-wide sales gain of nearly 4 percent. . . . Columbia Records has wound up its two-year dispute with RCA Victor. The company that opened up the long-playing field with its 33 1/3 rpm's has at least decided to experiment with a few of the "45's" which Victor has been plugging. Victor started making LP's a few months ago. . . . The trend to supermarkets shows no signs of slackening. Approximately 56 per cent of Super Market Institute members are readying plans to build this year; another 37 per cent have remodeling projects in the works. . . . Manpower woes arising from the Korean crisis are already pinching many firms. And the unemployment total on Aug. 1 was estimated at about 3,200,000 - down over a million from the peak early in 1950.

Married men are considered to be the best listeners. It's probably another case of practice makes perfect.

THE RECORD SPEAKS . . .

Accident record figures, already far ahead of previous records, continued to climb in the 49th week of 1950, according to highway patrol reports. At least one of the recent accidents were caused by glaring headlights, it was reported.

The following tabulations offer a comparison of the accident trend; first, by corresponding weeks in this year and last and for each year to the present time.

Comic Books Not So Bad After All

Publishers of comic books, especially those dealing with crime, are breathing a little easier as a result of a survey conducted by a Senate Committee investigating their effect on children. Nearly 100 public officials, publishers and child guidance experts were asked if they thought there was any relationship between reading comic books and juvenile delinquency. The answers, including one attributed to J. Edgar Hoover, were preponderantly "no." In the hands of an unstable child, the FBI chief said, horror comics might prove disturbing. The majority advised restraint in presentation of comics and guidance or control by the parents of children overly excitable.
