Local Gridders Still Dining Out

They're still eating out—those much feted Williamston State Class A Football champions. Last week they held to an every-other night schedule as Harvey Ross got them started with a steak dinner. Roy Ward followed on Wednesday night with barbecued chicken and Friday night the Baptist Church came through with its banquet for the lads.

Further clippings on the game are coming in. Last week Ross Fronberger came by with a copy of the column-long story that appeared in the Gastonia Gazette under a banner headline. While it naturally leaned to the Bessemer City side of the picture some of the paragraphs are worth noting: "In losing a heartbreaker, 19-13, to the much larger Williamston team, the gallant Bessemer lads fought right down to the wire, holding at bay boys who could make any AAA team in the state. "Although it was a bitter pill for Coach Frank King and his young crew to swallow, nevertheless, praise came in from all sides on the brilliant stand the Yellow Jackets put up against an almost hopeless situation."

"Apparently fired up about the freak play that endangered their lead, Williamston came right back to score before the half ended."

"Coach Frank King was proud of his boys in defeat. 'I thought they played their hearts out, and I am really proud of them.' "And, of course, Coach Stuart Maynard of the Williamston Green Wave was a proud man."

Bondurant Wins Honor at U. N. C.

Rush Bondurant, Jr., freshman at Carolina, won two trophies for athletic activities there this fall. His most important one, won all by himself, is the championship in intramural wrestling in the 137 lb. class. In reaching the title he won six matches including one over last year's winner. The other was won with the help of his team mates on the volleyball team which took the campus championship.

Rush was a standout in the local backfield last year, doing his best job against Ahoskie, and also did a lot of shooting for the basketball team of last season. He also is a mighty handy little fellow on the tennis courts.

SOMETHING FOR THE BOYS WHO KEEP SCRAPBOOKS

Hail To Williamston
It isn't often that the subject of sports reaches our editorial pages but on the other hand it is a very rare occasion when this section can claim a State championship in any sport. So rare, in fact, that our memory fails to recall such sporting glory falling on any of the high school teams in our neck of the woods.

But times have changed and now our nearby county of Martin can rightfully claim the State Class A championship in football for 1950. As recorded in our sports pages, the Williamston Green Wave, after starting off the season with three straight defeats, wound up by winning the State Class A crown Friday night when they downed Bessemer City, 19-13, on the opponent's field.

Williamston earned this right but right now and here this newspaper wishes to offer its congratulations to the Williamston team and its supporters for their comeback during the regular season and the achievement of the State championship.

"The glory and praise is due the town and team but they don't get all of it because the honor, they have gained reflects throughout this entire section. It shows the rest of the State that we, down here in the East, have some pretty fair high school football teams. In particular it shows the strength of the Albemarle conference and in the future State sports writers and high school teams will undoubtedly pay a little more attention when a conference team is mentioned.

"The Green Wave has done an outstanding job. They deserve and have our commendations." The Hertford County Herald of Ahoskie.

Here from Jamesville
Mrs. Herbert Sexton of Jamesville visited friends here Saturday.

Miss Carrow and Mr. Batts Wed In Baptist Church Here Sunday

The marriage of Miss Thelma Louise Carrow, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Carrow of Williamston, and Cecil Rhodes Batts, Jr., of Robersonville, son of Mrs. John Cotten Tayloe of Washington, was solemnized at a candle-light ceremony Sunday afternoon at four o'clock in the Memorial Baptist Church in Williamston. The pastor, the Rev. Stewart B. Simms and the Rev. J. M. Perry, minister of the Christian Church in Robersonville, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Prior to the ceremony Mrs. James Ward, organist, and Miss Jean Ward Mobley and Mr. Hilton Forbes, soloists, presented a program of nuptial music.

The bride, entering the church with her father, wore a wedding gown of white satin, ballerina length, fashioned with a net yoke applied in satin. The long light fitting sleeves were fastened at the wrist with tiny satin buttons and her full skirt fell into a deep irregular band of imported French lace. Her fingertip veil of imported French illusion fell from a satin helmet featuring rows of pearls on matching imported lace. She carried a prayer book centered with a white orchid and ribbon streamers. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.
