

North Carolina Day At Cherry Point Saturday

Special Show Will Be Put On By The Marine Base Personnel

Cherry Point—A Marine F4U Corsair fighter plane will drop one of the most feared weapons in the United States arsenal, a napalm bomb (Napalm), in a new show of the North Carolinians attending the Armed Forces Day "Open House, Saturday, May 19.

Fire will billow out immediately after the bomb hits the target, and within seconds, searing flames, burning at temperatures from 1,500 to 3,000 degrees, will envelop the target area.

Spectators in the grandstand beside the airfield will be able to view the awesome effects of the bomb without being in any danger whatsoever. Every precaution has been taken to assure the utmost safety for all those attending the show.

Primarily, the napalm bomb is used as a close air support weapon, clearing enemy troop concentrations from the path of the advancing infantrymen.

The bomb has been found effective against personnel in slit-trenches, pill boxes, caves, dug-outs and foxholes. Its victims are usually killed in positions they are in when they are hit. Sometimes they are suffocated without even being burned.

Armored equipment presents no major problem to napalm. When dropped near a tank, napalm decommissions the tank and fries all of its occupants.

Wooden piers, house, warehouses, small surface craft, ammunition dumps, truck convoys, inflammable stores and structures are tailor-made for napalm.

Airmen and ground troops have called it their most effective weapon in Korea. Recent evidence indicates that the Reds hate and fear the napalm "fire" used by the UN troops.

The napalm will be just one of the features of the day-long show. Static displays have been set up throughout Cherry Point. A mess-hall, training building, and barracks will be open for inspection. Gates open at 9 am and close at 5 pm.

Gentlemen Wash

A small boy had taken his mother's powder puff and was in the act of powdering his face when his small sister, aged five, scratched it from him.

"You mustn't do that," she exclaimed. "Only ladies use powder—gentlemen wash themselves!"

Need Honeybees In Defense Plan

Farmers have known for years that honeybees were useful not only as gatherers of honey but also as pollinators of seed, fruit, and fiber crops. Now Uncle Sam has discovered that bees are also vital to the defense effort.

Beeswax, a by-product of honey, is needed for coating war munitions and for the manufacture of airplanes. Although the wax is in short supply, no satisfactory substitute for it is known.

W. A. Stephen, extension beekeeping specialist at State College, explains that bees make their comb out of beeswax. After they gorge themselves with honey, their wax glands secrete a liquid that hardens when it comes in contact with the air. This material is used by the bees as capping for cells of honey and for the cells where the young bees are hatched, as well as for the combs which hold the honey and serve as cradles for the young bees.

Stephen urges beekeepers to save all of their precious beeswax and sell it to dealers. The price is higher now than ever before.

Small amounts of beeswax can be melted down by heating in hot water. It should not be allowed to boil. When it cools a cake of solid wax will be floating on top of the water.

For information on how to handle old combs and large amounts of wax, farmers should write the Extension Beekeeper, State College Station, Raleigh, and ask for Information Sheet No. 3 entitled "Salvaging Beeswax."

Horatio Alger Rise In Denim

Equal to the famous rags to riches success story of fiction's Horatio Alger is cotton denim's climb to fashion prominence.

Only a short while ago the workaday cloth of overalls and clothing worn exclusively by farmers and laborers, denim today is seen in the smartest playclothes, street dresses, and dressmaker suits designed by fashion pacesetters for style-minded women.

The sturdy fabric has been glamorized with the luscious new colors. In addition to traditional blue denim, green, canary yellow, lime, rust, brown and other eye-catching colors are used for denim fabrics. Colorful woven stripes add dash to many denims.

IT SHORE DID!

Two Sanford men went up in the western part of the state recently on a hunting trip. They got far out in the country and finally they wanted to turn off on a side road—but there was a sign which said, "Do Not Enter, Road Ends." They talked it over for a while and one insisted that he knew the road was open so they drove in. They drove for a mile or two and then suddenly the road ended. There was nothing they could do but turn around and drive back out. As they entered the main road again they noticed that some other passerby had scribbled on the back of the sign, "It Really Did End Didn't It!"
