Cards On The Table

While there is, more or less, a fairly definite trend toward some form of socialized medicine in this county, it is still believed that the trend is not the work of the general public.

According to a report released following the meeting, Dr. Haddock cited the high cost of medical care, lack of personal interest in the patient, failure to tell patients what is wrong with them and speaking in too technical a language.

Another encouraging report comes from Chicago where President John W. Cline of the American Medical Association recently announced an investigation is to be made of charges that some doctors are boosting their fees when they know a patient is covered by insurance.

There is no easy solution to the "bottle-necks", but as long as the profession works for a solution, socialized medicine will wither on the vine. Indifference on the part of the profession to those "bottle-necks" will invite the socialization of medicine.

Easter, 1952

By Ruth Taylor

"Lord, make me an instrument of Thy peace;

love; Where there is injury, pardon; Where there is doubt, faith; Where there is despair, hope; Where there is sadness, joy."

The prayer of St. Francis of Assisi—which I copied from a religious calendar a Methodist friend of mine sent me—is in itself one of the finest of Easter messages.

For what is Easter but the feast of resurrection? The raising of the spirit above the trials of the flesh—the fulfillment of the law of love. It was the resurrection in the body of Him who said: "And the second and greater commandment is like unto it—'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.'"

To make peace permanent we must do as St. Francis prayed: "Where there is hatred, let me sow love." Let us keep our own thoughts clear of hatred and anger. Let us look with eyes of love upon our brothers everywhere.

"Where there is injury, pardon." It is hard to forgive an intentional wrong done. Yet—few people are meaningfully cruel. Ignorance and carelessness are back of most of the evil men do.

"Where there is doubt, faith." We say "In God we trust." But is that enough? Must not we, if we truly trust God, learn how to trust our brother man?

"Where there is despair, hope." There is always tomorrow—and the sun will shine again no matter how deep the midnight seems. He, whose heart has faith, can never be without hope—without the light of belief in a beneficent God who in due time will show the pathway to a better way.

"Where there is sadness, joy." Easter is the promise that "weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." No matter how great the sorrow, the promise of resurrection brings strength to the failing heart.

All these things we pray this Eastertide—but not for ourselves alone. We pray "Our Father" and our prayer must be for all men everywhere. Only in this way may we keep Easter.

In Foul Shape

It has been charged that twenty-six million Americans are suffering from chronic ailments such as cerebral palsy, rheumatic fever, heart diseases, tuberculosis, epilepsy, rheumatoid arthritis, diabetes and cancer. That's bad. Now, add nervous disorders, tensions to that list and aggravate the combined total with our greed, moral laxity and mad rush through life, and one can't help but feel as if the ole country is in foul shape.
