Offering Free Nursing Class

The shortage of professional nurses and related medical-technical workers has become so acute that the board of directors of Norfolk General Hospital announced yesterday it has authorized a special class to begin February 1, 1954, for the enrollment of 25 qualified high school graduates in the institution's School of Nursing.

Charles L. Kaufman, president of the hospital, said those selected for the class will be given scholarships at no cost to the students for the three-year training course which will qualify them as graduate professional nurses.

The unprecedented action is linked with a nation-wide shortage of nurses which Walter L. Beale, superintendent of the hospital, described as second only to the shortage of primary and secondary teachers and "is equally threatening in its implications for the welfare of the country."

Supply Inadequate

Beale said that while "we have more graduate nurses today than ever before, more graduates actively practicing, and more training non-professional nurses, the supply is by no means adequate to meet the increasing demands for care." He added that more nurses are going into industry, public health, doctor's offices and in related fields than ever before.

The three-year scholarships, which are valued at about $3,000 each, will be offered to qualified high school graduates over 18 years of age in the order in which applications are received and processed. High school principals, counsellors, physicians, ministers and others are being urged to lend their voices in encouraging young women to enter the school and qualify for a profession which, in recent years, has been enjoying increasing monetary and other rewards.

Beale said Norfolk General Hospital is not alone in facing a growing nurse shortage, but is feeling it more acutely than some other institutions, as it has the largest non-government plant in Virginia, accommodating close to 375 patients.

Illustrative of the problem, Beale said, the hospital could easily have accommodated 45 new students when the regular class opened last month but found only 17 of the applicants were qualified. The school as a whole, he said, could easily train 135 nurses but actually has only 55 enrolled.

Inducements Offered

He said various inducements are being offered to high school graduates here and elsewhere to choose nursing for their life's work, and pointed out that Norfolk General has all the facilities, educational and recreation advantages that should be attractive to young women studying at the school.

An additional advantage at Norfolk General, according to Miss Mary Love Green, director of nurses, is the location here of the Norfolk Division, College of William and Mary-VPI, which offers the student body certain of the necessary courses leading up to a diploma.

Miss Love said the special class should be of interest to high school students who are graduating in February, but pointed out that graduates of earlier years will be considered.

Beale said prospective students who are interested should direct inquiries regarding the new class to Miss Love.

Regular Meeting Bear Grass Club

The Bear Grass Home Demonstration Club held its regular monthly meeting, Oct. 21 in the home of Miss Bessie Malone. The meeting was called to order by the President Mrs. Chesley Jones. The club collect was repeated after which we sang "America—The Beautiful" and "It's a Good Time to Get Together."

The roll was called with 20 members being present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. We were very glad to welcome two of our old members and 3 visitors and adding one new member back. Our devotion was given by Mrs. N. R. Rogerson taken from the 23rd chapter of Proverbs, after which we stood and repeated the Lord's Prayer together.

A report on the club house was given by Mrs. Jay Price. There has been $155. donated as well as 10 pounds of nails, 7 gallons paint and 500 ft. lumber. There is more material to be given at a later date.

Thursday October 29th was set as the day to clean up the house. Mrs. Harrison reminded us that November 6 was achievement day and each club is to furnish enough food for its own club. Bear Grass as hostess is to furnish the drinks or coffee for the entire group. The lunch is to be served cafeteria

Recipes Of The Week

Good care and careful planned use of your electric range pays dividends in low operation and maintenance costs.

Here are some suggestions for economical use of your equipment:

1. All foods, except protein dishes (meat, milk, cheese and eggs) should be started on HIGH. As soon as steaming, turn to LOW. You might use your time signal to remind you to turn switch to position for lower heat. This not only conserves electricity, but prevents spill-overs, excessive evaporation, and those burned pans you hate.

2. Don't underestimate the importance of your pots and pans. These utensils should not be too large nor too small for the size of your surface units. Avoid using pans warped or rounded on the bottom. A flat-bottomed utensil makes good contact with the heat-

Churches Support Relief Program

Methodist Churches in this area brought their church year to a close this week and sent their pastors to a close this week and sent their pastors to the annual session of the North Carolina Conference in Durham.

In Williamston, Pastor R. E. Walston announced that there would be no morning or evening worship at First Methodist Church but he urged his congregation to come to church on Sunday morning at the Sunday School hour and give Martin County's CROP (Christian Rural Overseas Program) campaign a good beginning by contributing both used clothing and money. The clothing will be distributed by Church World Service in areas of need around the world. Money contributions will be used to purchase peanut butter for famine stricken peoples overseas. Mr. Walston pointed out that a North Carolina manufacturer sells peanut butter to Church World Service at about thirty cents a pound. Thus Martin County's gift to the fund provides an outlet for one of the County's chief products and provides labor and business for a North Carolina industry. It also provides nutritious food for starving people.

"With all this to motivate our giving. We should be generous," said Mr. Walston.

Gifts of money or clothing may be placed in receptacles in the church on Sunday morning. They will be turned over to the distributing agencies.

ing unit and uses heat more efficiently. Straight sides conserve the heat in the utensil. A tight-fitting lid holds the steam and shortens the cooking time.

3. Why use the oven for one cake, pie or pan of rolls? Bake several of these foods at one time. Extra baked goods can be frozen and used at future meals.

4. You can cook a whole meal in the oven, broiler, deep-well cooker or surface units. Using all these units for one meal is extravagant. Your instruction booklet gives suggestions for foods that cook well at the same temperature and for approximately the same length of time.

5. A clean range cooks better and faster. Dirty reflector pans and oven surfaces absorb heat instead reflecting it. This results in a great waste of current. A clean range will also prevent smoking and odor as well as heat loss.
