

Expect President To Do Battle For His New Program

Observers Believe He Will Do Well To Get Half Of His Program

Washington.—President Dwight D. Eisenhower is ready to turn on the heat, if necessary, to get his program through Congress. Ike is keenly aware of criticism that he is too easy-going, and has hidden his resentment for months, biding his time until he has presented a program to Congress.

His program is now unfolding in detail before Congress. Ike has chosen this as the time for the big battle. He is ready to crack down on the party boys on the Hill if necessary, and has a number of lieutenants hard at work on congressional liaison. The chief Executive is of the opinion that he can get the great majority of his recommendations enacted into law.

The average reporter's view in Washington is exactly the opposite. The general opinion among Washington's correspondents is that Ike won't get half of his legislative program through both houses. But then the President has never yet really come out swinging, and he might surprise people.

The President thinks the fact that elections are coming up this year is an added reason why the Republicans should enact a progressive legislative program. Some members of Congress think this circumstance, though, might have a tendency to make lawmakers up for election less free to support controversial proposals in the President's program.

Ike says the party could be repudiated if it does not give the country a program such as he has outlined and believes it his duty to lead an aggressive fight. That fight might mark the end of the beautiful romance between the President and members of his party in Congress, which romance Ike has been conducting tactfully for a year now.

The time for action has apparently been reached, however, and the inside view is that some bitter days are ahead for the President and some of his aides as they attempt to hold Congress in line with the administration program.

A general feeling of disgust is building up in government circles over the latest trends in France and Italy. Italy is the biggest news right now even though France seems to be in just as much of a mess. That's because things in Italy were thought to be going smoothly only a short time ago.

Our new Ambassador to Italy, Mrs. Clare Luce, arrived in Italy with matters apparently well in hand. Today they are going to seed fast, despite the efforts of this government and its representatives. This the U. S. Ambassador reported recently in secret Washington talks, in which she reportedly asked that the flow of U. S. dollars to Italy be kept coming.

It now turns out that the De Gasperi government won the June elections after all. The June count gave the former Premier less than fifty per cent of the Italian vote. That ended him, and a new government has since taken

Britain's A-Builder

SIR CHRISTOPHER Hinton, whose headquarters are at Risley, Lancashire, is in charge of design, construction and operation of Britain's atomic factories. The British Minister of Supply has lifted the veil of secrecy on the country's advance in nuclear production and indicated a hope for generating England's electricity by atomic power in 20 years.

1948-49 recession appear to be more of a general economic decline than it actually was. Federal Reserve Board officials say the latest index might mean a business pick-up by April of 1954.

The Board says the peak of the 1953 boom was reached in the industrial production index reached 17. A decline from the July peak was also found to have been less than was previously supposed. The Board's findings coincide very closely with those of the Administration's economy experts, who assert that 1954 will be another good business year and that most Americans, and most American businesses, will enjoy profits and conditions which will be close to satisfactory levels of 1953.

Lung Cancer Research Studying Tobacco Tars

Tests to determine if tobacco tars can produce lung cancer in mice have been started by the United States Public Health Service. The Veterans Administration also in another long-range study, is sending questionnaires to 300,000 World War veterans to discover, if possible, if there is any connection between the use of tobacco or snuff and the development of lung cancer.

Promise Business Pick-Up By April

The Federal Reserve Board, in issuing its revised monthly index of industrial production in December, has come up with optimistic news. Officials say the latest index indicates the business level-off in the last half of 1953 was a deceptive one.

The Board supported the opinion of Administration experts who believe business in 1954 will pick up by mid-year. The Board found that the levelling-off point reached by many businesses in '53 was less severe than many have supposed, and also that the levelling-off was partly a result of inventory adjustments.

This inventory adjustment process is the same which made the over and been overturned. De Gasperi does not now have the power in Parliament to throw out those now actually illegally seated and return himself to power.

So the seat of the Roman Catholic Church in Italy, will be threatened with communist domination, if the present trend continues. The communist party is gaining in popularity among Italian Catholics. U. S. observers are as flabbergasted over this situation as they are over the inability of another counted-on ally to measure up, France.

In France the mood is disturbing. The workers are whispering about an eventual revolution and there is a surprising amount of talk about a new strong man as the only solution for France's problems. Many workers who are not communists-inclined admit a revolution may be needed to end France's quandary.

In France, too, the communists seem to be gaining popularity at the moment, incredible as that seems when the communists are daily killing Frenchmen in Indo China. These two leading Latin nations then, France and Italy, are wavering weak in a time of crisis, which causes consternation in Washington.

The question even arises whether they will ever be great world powers again, on their own. If not, the U. S. might have to look to West Germany and Japan to take their place.
