NOTICE TO READERS

The Southerner is always anxious to improve its reading value and make its columns more valuable, both to its readers and advertisers, and in view of a rapidly increasing circulation, it desires to extend its local news.

All subscribers, or readers, who have any personal items that would be of general interest are asked to send them in daily, especially from the adjoining towns of Pinetops, Macclesfield, Farmville, Hookerton, Leggett, Speeds and Whitakers.

It must be remembered the Southerner is the county organ, the only means of disseminating the news of the surrounding territory which adds greatly in drawing the people together and in making the social life more attractive. None can live unto himself alone.

TROUBLES OF THE RICH.

People who have acquired the habit of living in a large and expensive way find a great many real annoyances nowadays. With the difficulty in getting domestic servants, and the uprightness manifested by many of them, it is a question if the millionaire gets any satisfaction out of a big and handsome estate.

Many of them feel that they are taken advantage of and robbed at every turn. They pay for a lot of service to shield themselves from annoyances. And yet they may get more irritation and friction than the average citizen finds in his quiet home.

It is said that in some exclusive resorts patronized by the wealthy, it is hard to dispose of these big estates if they come on the market. The expense of running them is probably three times what it was ten years ago. It means a good deal of care to keep them going. A man needs an enormous income in these times to keep up such a place in good shape.

Many of the people living in these handsome estates are very kind-hearted and charitable, and desire to do their share of community work and help on all good causes. But they must sometimes feel that they cut themselves off from common humanity to some extent, when they build palaces for themselves. Perhaps present conditions will lead them to tire of this exaggerated scale of living.

In England most of the great estates have been cut up into small holdings by the burden of taxation and the exigencies of war. It may come to that in this country. Probably a lot of the people in these palatial mansions would really enjoy getting on some ordinary street where they would live closer to their neighbors, see more of every day life, and escape many annoyances due to elaborate housekeeping.

Among the politicians there are anxious inquiries as to the price of campaign workers on the hoof.

Summer boarders in the country manifest strong desire to see the silo milked.

SEE NORTH CAROLINA FIRST
"See America first" has been a popular slogan. It has persuaded some people who had contemplated very costly trips to Europe to learn about their own country before they familiarized themselves with another continent.

"See North Carolina first is also a good slogan. People will travel all over the country to see famous places and will never have missed some of the remarkable sights in their own state.

There are many very interesting things in North Carolina. There are scenes of natural beauty equal only by those of Switzerland; cities and towns, centers of historic association, industries known all over the world. A man is a better citizen of his state and a better booster for its interests when he knows its resources and achievements.

THE NEED FOR CO-OPERATION

Daniel Willard is frequently referred to as "the Jim Hill of the East." Hill, the Empire Builder, and the greatest of Western railroad men, many years ago prophesied that the terminal facilities in great cities would soon be outgrown, and his warnings have proved to be correct. Mr. Willard was a pillar of strength to the United States government when the war made it necessary to pool the interests and facilities of the country's railroads. There have perhaps been few railroad men whose opinions have carried greater weight than his. His testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission has evoked general approval. It is important, he says, especially in times of car shortage, "that the shippers should load cars as quickly as is economically possible and practicable after they are received. The shipper should also furnish prompt and definite billing instructions, and the instructions so furnished should take the car if possible to its ultimate destination. Much delay is caused by the practice of billing cars subject to order or reconsignment in transit, and numerous other devices that have come about from time to time. All arrangements of this kind are in effect a special privilege aside from the service of transportation, and in times of car shortage such privileges are at the actual expense of those whose business is interfered with because of their inability to ship at all.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS.

Sir Jesse Boot, the English "drug store king," who is reported to have sold his 600 retail pharmacies to an American syndicate, began life as the son of a farm laborer. Not content with the small wage he earned as a farm laborer, Sir Jesse's father opened a little apothecary shop. His son, attracted by the business, decided that the public wanted such stores, provided they were conducted in an up-to-date manner. So he opened one on new lines in Nottingham, and from that humble beginning there developed the greatest concern of its kind in the world, with hundreds of branch stores in "all parts of the United Kingdom and numerous factories for making its own goods. Although for many years a cripple, Sir Jesse Boot has always controlled this tremendous business. His best motto, he says, is "Hard work."

The speeding motorists are not trying as some people suppose to kill off all the pedestrians. They want enough left so that they can enjoy seeing 'em jump.

The Mexican theory of dealing with Americans is to spit in their faces so as to make them more polite.

Formerly the college graduates used to frame their diplomas and hang them in the parlor. Now they frame their athletic ribbons.

Women with large feet are not reported to be opposing the move for longer skirts.

The motorists who get smashed up as the result of doing some risky thing, were of course only going to do it just this once.

When business depression comes, the people can't find work, and when prosperity comes, then a lot of 'em won't work but persist in going on strike.

"We felt we needed a builder. We had heard of Ziron and thought it must be what we needed. It certainly was. We took it faithfully, and after a week or such a matter we began to feel better. My wife felt like cooking,
