Anyhow many present work enough stock in the proposition to chip in when called to shoot the collection "When Doctors Differ?" The Guilford Medical Society resolution of criticism of Dr. Rankin and the state board of health for its "treatment campaign" is pretty well shot up in the reply which the head of the state board makes. This is not the first time that the Guilford medical a; gregation has figured in opposition to similar matters. Some years ago it figured so figuratively, so to speak, that people around in the rotunda of the capitol building went about talking about a doctor's trust, and the like. The Guilford society seems to be pretty well alone in its criticism of the state board, in the main. But that does not mean that something connected with the pending dispute will not turn up duringthe coming session of the legislature.
