A Very Popular Name

PERHAPS it will surprise you to know that more than half of ALL the national banks of the whole nation are "First National Banks." There's reason for this. The name "First National" tells an interesting story. When you see a bank of that name you know a good many things about it without asking any questions. You know that it is the oldest national bank in the place. You know that it is organized, supervised and managed according to the national banking laws. And you know that it has plenty of capital and surplus and that its officers and stockholders are reliable men. And you know too that these banks are always members of the great Federal Reserve System which has done so much to make banks safer and stronger than ever before. THINK IT OVER!
