"From that day until Father sent | the old family carriage after her and took ner home she lived a holy life. Just before she got off to Heaven e asked them to write to the prencher that had been true to her out and ask him to come and stand by her open grave while the dirt fell with its dul', remorseless thud. That woman was like thousands of people up and down this country. She was looking on the church as a kind of mutual congratulation society or amusement bureau where fo'ks are

"The hour has come when we preachers must not deal in glittering encialities but stand as a watchman on the wall and describe the state of the heart and character of the life and peri' of the soul. The great need of the twentieth century is a conseerated ministry who will, without modification or evasion, proclaim the gospel. It is not the mission of the minister of the gospel to give to man his opinions or proclaim to men his rotions and views with reference to Biblical discussions or supposed modern discoveries. The preacher is a messenger and it is his high commission to proclaim the word of the Lord and God has said, 'My word shall not return unto Me void; it is quick and powerful as a two-edged sword.' We need to substitute the challenging tones of truth for this cowardly and crudish reserve. The human race has never wandered so far from the paths of righteousness or fallen so deep into sin or gotten so far out into the wilderness or ignorance and superstition that it has not been able to recognize a God sent man. The overwhelming need of the hour is spirit filled, blood washed, fire baptized messengers of God with divine fire burning in their souls to unmast these devices of the devil and to tear down the strong helds of Satan, whether in high places

"The hour has come for plainness of speech in preaching," the evangelist leclared. "I don't believe in beating the air. I'll tell you we preachers have got to get down to business and specify sin and sinners. I ike a minister who tells me the truth and I would walk ten miles to-
