

CROWDS GROWING LARGE AS THIRD WEEK OPENS

McLendon Revival Swinging Into "Stride" By Leaps and Bounds; "Sail On" is Sermon Sunday Afternoon

EVANGELIST GOES A HUNTING

Cyclone Mack's Tarboro's revival swings tomorrow into its third week with the attendance and interest mounting by leaps and bounds.

His bombastic, sardonic, withering word picture of the devil, at times slightly humorous, was heard last night by an audience smaller by only a few hundred than the throng of more than 5,000 that heard his own story Thursday night.

The campaign is rapidly getting its stride. With the opening of the third week it promises fulfillment of the McLendon prophecy that there will be a real spiritual revival in the town.

Last night's requests for prayers ran above three hundred, exclusive of scores and scores of little children who sought the evangelist's hand.

Three Services Here Sunday.

Sunday will be the biggest day of the campaign so far. It will be featured, classically speaking, by the most beautiful sermon in the McLendon repertoire, "Sail On."

Tonight Mack is going to preach on "Salvation." The Saturday afternoon service was abandoned because so many folks who have been able to attend on other week days cannot get away from business on Saturday afternoon.

Big Negro Service Monday Night.

With the musical director of C&F University here to lead the singing, and a number of leading negro preachers over the State coming, the greatest evangelistic service for negroes ever held in North Carolina will be put on at the tent Monday night.

where Jesus' disciples returned from their evangelistic tour and were rejoicing because devils were subjected under them to behold Satan as lighting fall from Heaven.

"Now we see where the angels kept not the first estate, where God did not spare them that sin, and where they fell from Heaven. Now what was the cause of Satan being cast out?"

"Turn with me to Isaiah the 14th chapter and read, 'How art thou fallen from Heaven, O Lucifer, a son of morning: how are thou cut down to the ground which did weaken the nations.'

"The devil is a powerful spiritual being, but not omnipresent (present everywhere) he is able to move as swift as thought and has a host of helpers. We have a lot of lase teachers today that are telling us that Satan is just the principle of evil that comes from within an abstract principle of evil and that he is not a person.

"The Book says that hell was prepared for Satan and his angles and if you go to hell over these sermons and the songs of the people and the commands of God and the blood of Jesus Christ and the striving of the spirit and the teachings of the scriptures and the solicitude of your friends and the tears of your mother, you will go to hell as an intruder, because hell was not prepared for you, but for the devil, and his angles. James, in writing to the 12 tribes, tells them that the devil is orthodox, being that he believes and that is more than the majority of your people do.

"This light competitive speech that we hear in regard to the devil is fully unwarranted. There is no being in Heaven, earth, or hell that has more power than God Almighty himself. In Judges 8:6-9 we read where the archangels and the devil contended for the body of Moses and the angles said, I will leave thee for the Lord to rebuke. It seemed that the devil had more power than this great archangel. He has power to deceive, and no marvel for Satan himself is transformed into an angle of light.

"In his sermon on 'The Devil,' Mack said in part last night: 'In the Bible we read that God created all things that are in Heaven and that are on the earth, but the devil has not always been a devil. We read of archangels in the Bible and we read of a being by the name of Lucifer and it seems that this being had the pre-eminence, or, in other words, the ascendancy above the other angels, Michael or Gabriel. Then we read in the 12th chapter of Revelations where there was a war in Heaven and a great host of angles was cast out, and in Judge the 6th verse we read where the angles kept not their first estate, but left their habitation, and in Peter's second letter we read where God spared not the angles to sin, but cast them out. We read

RED CROSS FUND IS STILL FAR BEHIND IN TARBORO

The Red Cross drive is not meeting with the hearty response that their cause demands. Two afternoons ago, three young ladies of the town went from one end of the business district to the other, into every store, and they did not secure a single subscription to the roll call.

It is certain that every citizen in the stores visited were not members of the Red Cross for the coming year. Many citizens feel that when they paid a dollar to the Red Cross two years ago, or last year, that they are members of the organization for life. A dollar makes one a member for one year only. To become a life member it is necessary to join for $50 and every cent of that amount goes to the national organization.

The Red Cross drive will not officially close until satisfactory results are obtained and if necessary will be continued through the official date for closing, Thanksgiving day, until satisfactory results are obtained. The necessity of keeping the county nurse is evident and believed to be a good cause by all, but more subscriptions are necessary to maintain the department. Will not the people of Tarboro come forward and each one see personally that they become a member of the Red Cross and subscribe as liberally as possible.

N. C. LIVESTOCK ASSOCIATION.

The North Carolina Live Stock Association will hold its annual session at Elizabeth City on Nov. 30, Dec. 1 and 2.

More than one hundred delegates attend these annual meetings, and Tarboro can secure one of these meetings if the town wants it.

There is nothing greater that could come into any town or county, that would stimulate the cattle raising than the gathering of these men who are personally interested in this business.

BOLDT CONVICTED MANSLAUGHTER HAS ESCAPED

Hamburg, Germany, Nov. 19.—Former Lieut.-Comdr. Boldt, who was convicted of manslaughter for having the life boats of a Canadian hospital ship fired upon after the vessel had been torpedoed in 1918, escaped from prison in Hamburg, where he has been since the trial.

Boldt was tried and convicted by the German government and placed in the Hamburg federal prison to serve the sentence. He escaped today and no clue of his escape or his whereabouts has been secured. The officials have started searching parties out in hopes of returning the prisoner to Hamburg, where he will have another hearing and probably receive an extension on his sentence.

CAROLINA AND FLORIDA PLAY.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Nov. 19.—It was announced at Chapel Hill today that the Carolina football team would play the University of Florida at Jacksonville on December 3.

COLD WEATHER COMING.

Washington, Nov. 19.—A cold wave is predicted over the South for Sunday. An intensely cold wave has struck the Northwestern States with the weather below zero in several States.

Nina Koskoff Russ Soprano Coming Here

Nina Koskoff, famous Russian soprano, is coming to Tarboro and will sing a week's engagement at the Colonial, Manager Paul McCabe announced this morning.

Miss Koskoff has been singing in this country but a comparatively short time but already she has been acclaimed as one of the coming operatic stars. The engagements she has so far filled in the South have won for her the highest praise of the critics and her fame has been heralded throughout the length and breadth of Dixie.

When Miss Koskoff came to this country, she attracted the attention of opera directors in New York and Chicago and for a time she lingered between the calling to the larger field and strong desire to spend sometime in the Southland. She gave way, for the time, to her personal feelings in the matter and Tarboro like other Southern cities, is to be congratulated that she is to be here. She will sing twice daily next week.

Thursday night of next week the Wake Forest Glee Club will be at the Colonial.

LAGGING INTEREST REVIVED IN TRIAL OF ARBUCKLE

San Francisco, Nov. 19.—Due to the long and dry period that it took the court to select a jury to try Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, the public interest has been somewhat lagging for the past few days. The jury being completed yesterday afternoon gained back the lost interest in the trial.

The introduction of evidence begun this morning and found much more interest created among the people of San Francisco and the court room became crowded when testimony opened up, the larger majority of the court room was filled with women.

JAPAN'S ATTITUDE UNKNOWN.

Washington, Nov. 19.—The precise attitude of Japan is becoming more and more the big interrogation point in the arms conference between the delegates of the nine nations assembled again to talk about the Far East matters.

It was Japan to whom they looked for the hint that would reveal just what trend is to be taken by the negotiations as they affect China.

THE SOUTHERNER'S SATURDAY SERMON

(REV. BERAM E. BROWN) Let us walk honestly, as in the day: Romans, 13:13.

This sermon shall be about honesty. There are so many various ways of being dishonest, that we must narrow down our definition of it to one particular kind. For instance, you can be dishonest with yourself, or with other men or with God; you can be so in your heart, or in your acts; you can be so in your talk, or in your silences; you can be dishonest in the use of your time, or your love, or your service, or your money. You can be dishonest and at the same time honestly think you are honest. You can even be honest, and through a distorted conscience, think you are dishonest, like the young man in New York recently, whose conscience would neither let him keep or give away a million dollars his father left him, because he had not earned it himself. You can be dishonest with good intention, like a preacher who makes up an anecdote and tells it as something that really happened; or you can be honest with evil intent, like the candid friend who tells you an unpleasant truth hoping to make you feel bad, or stir up trouble. So, as there are so many varieties of rascality, we must confine ourselves to the subject of dishonesty in the matter and property or money.

1. The most usual form of dishonesty, and the wickedest, is keeping for yourself possessions that other people need more than you do. It is the basest form of dishonesty because it is the safest. The burglar or the pickpocket runs some risk of having to pay for his ill-gotten gains by enforced labor, but the selfish and stingy man who will not share his property with God or his needy fellowmen, thinks he is playing safe in his sin.

2. Gambling: that is dishonest, even if played according to the fair rules of the game, for three reasons: a. It is an effort to get something for which no equivalent return of labor or value is given. (b) It is an attempt to get pleasure and profit at the expense of another man's loss and pain. (c) It is an effort to get possession of another man's property against his will—for although the loser goes into the game voluntarily, it is the bitterest of pills to him to see the winner pocket the gains.

3. Not paying back borrowed property: No dishonesty sits more lightly on the sinner's conscience than that; in no sin is the sinner's mind more ingenious in finding excuses than in that. God once gave a prophet power to work a miracle suspending one of nature's most rigid laws in order to send back to its owner a borrowed axe. 2 Kings, 6:5.

4. Plain stealing: That seems to be a most infamous sin indeed, because somebody stole my automobile Thursday night. That car had been used for over two years, and not one single time for either profit or pleasure, not once, but for no other purposes than to take people to church, or to carry help to sick people, or take patients to the doctor or the hospital, or carry sorrowing people to the burial of their loved one. It was sent out to the County Home to bring people in to the revival that night, and as a result of that use of it, somebody stole it. And there is no earthly prospect of my ever having money enough to get another.

Washington, Nov. 19.—Negotiations between Henry Ford and the government officials over Mr. Ford's offer for the Muscle Shoals power plant has come to a sudden halt. This matter will be considered in a conference at a later date.

EXPERTS HARD AT WORK WAR BE MADE DIFFICULT

Public Don't Want To Save Money, But Put Stop To War

HUNTING PARTY CATCHES TWO COONS, TWO FOXES

The hunting party for Cyclone Mack, returning at noon today, brought back two coons and two foxes and by the testimony of the evangelist himself reported the pistol killing of a whooping-big hawk early this morning. Henry Patrick, Mack's all-time hunting companion and man of many parts, killed the big bird with a 38-calibre pistol, shooting from a distance of approximately 25 yards. The first shot wounded and the second shot killed the hawk. The coons were caught last night, Mack and "Pat" returning here at daybreak and leaving immediately to join in the fox chase between here and Greenville. Joe Pennington and Will Felton, of Tarboro, were in the party.

BUSINESS WOMEN'S BANQUET.

The banquets for business men on Thursday night and for the business and professional women on Friday night were a "howling" success and those who attended both functions are loud in their praise of the ladies who were responsible for the delicious meals. Mrs. W. W. Quinn was the general chairman of the refreshment committee, and was ably assisted by representatives from the various churches. The girls came pouring in last night from all directions and soon the Kiwanis hall was nicely filled with chattering femininity.

After the supper Miss Palmer told the story of the writing of the poem, "The House by the Side of the Road," and Mrs. John Pender sang it in a soulful way to the tune of "A Perfect Day."

Mrs. Goode, the pianist of the party, who has been doing much fine work in Tarboro, both in the meetings in the tent and in the homes in town, charmed the audience with a piano solo, followed by a pianologue entitled, "Foolish Questions," and was obliged to respond to an encore. This time she gave a reading entitled, "How to Manage a Husband."

Mr. Jones, who has won the hearts of the people of Tarboro by his genial manner and who is considered one of the finest leaders of song that Tarboro has ever been privileged to follow, was unable to take any part in the program on account of hoarseness, but many of the girls decided to join the choir and help with the musical part of the work from now on.

The Rev. Mr. Lapsley, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, made a splendid address which was full of wit and humor and was all too short for those who were present and who enjoyed it immensely, but he was determined to make his speech in the time specified—five minutes. At the close of his message he introduced Mr. McLendon, who told some most interesting snatches of his life story including his love affairs, how he met his wife, wooed and won her, and how she has helped him through the years.

After the program the girls formed in line, Miss Ora Lee Brown and Mrs. Umstead, taking the lead and marched in a body to the tent where seats were reserved for them and where they all enjoyed a stirring message.

The many friends of Dr. L. E. Norfleet will be glad to learn that he is much better after several days of sickness.

By F. HUNTER CREECH.

Washington, Nov. 17.—The naval experts of the various powers are hard at work in closed committee meetings. They are trying to prepare a report for submission to a conference at an early date. It becomes more apparent that the British will insist upon a more drastic naval limitation than that proposed in the Hughes' speech.

The entire British delegation continues a special committee that meets each day for the consideration of all problems from the British point of view. British technical experts are also in attendance upon these meetings. Yesterday they discussed naval armaments with a view to determining the British policy.

They will probably insist upon definite limitation as to submarine tonnage, contending that the conference was not called for the purpose of making war as cheap as possible, but rather, to make war as difficult as possible—thereby lessening the chances for war. This view will appeal to the American people. The American public, undoubtedly, believes that the object of this conference should be, not to save money but, to put a stop to war.

China is reported to have offered a complete program for the Far East, and Secretary Hughes is reported to have reaffirmed the "open door" policy. The entire Oriental situation is involved, and all existing treaties and covenants will probably be brought in for overhauling.

Premier Briand will likely bring before the conference at an early date the question of land armaments. He will hardly submit a program, though he, doubtless, has one—but will likely stress the military needs of France.

The question of land armaments will involve many things, and there are those who may try to tack on to them the economic and financial situation of the world. Mr. Hughes has repeatedly stated that the financial discussion must not be brought into the conference. However, large holders of European war securities—whose values have depreciated with depreciated European currency—undoubtedly would like to inject the matter into the conference, with a view of tricking America into underwriting their almost worthless securities and, in effect, push off on to America the war debt of Europe. It is to be hoped that Mr. Hughes, and the American delegation will stand firm against any proposition that might develop into such a situation.

The organized farmers of the country desire disarmament. Charles A. Lyman, secretary of the national board of farm organizations, has issued the following statement: Farmers perhaps more unitedly than any other group favor reduction of armaments. The national board has repeatedly stood out against compulsory military training, believing it an incentive to war. While there must be adequate protection for nations as for individuals, farmers believe some method for avoiding war should be used and look upon this council as a significant and hopeful sign of the future."

EDGECOMBE FARMER DIES AT HIS HOME NEAR PINETOPS

Mr. Levy E. Edwards, a prominent Edgcombe farmer, died at his home near Pinetops yesterday, and will be buried this afternoon at Pinetops in the family plot near Pinetops.

Mr. Levy was 66 years old and was well known throughout this section. His death will come with much regret to his many friends.
