LEADERLESS DO-NOTHINGS.

Every day that passes brings forth more and more evidence that the day of the political bosses in the state and nation is fast fading away.

The power that used to be wielded by the so-called bosses in Washington City has forever gone from them and the people are taking to doing their own thinking.

Only recently this old time power of the bosses has been attempted, but every time it has lost out.

In a recent issue of the Southern Independent this question is referred to in a most telling manner. It says:

A few years ago the country revolted over the rule of bosses in the United States Senate and House of Representatives. Cannonism in the Lower House and Aldrichism in the Upper House brought forth the political trigger of the nation.

Now, the Congressional pendulum has reached the other extreme.

From the day when each body included a dozen or more outstanding figures our government has swung to the point where neither Senate nor House is able to offer a single example of real leadership.

There are independent men, and industrious men. There are learned and experienced legislators. There are men representing all viewpoints on the country's problems. But of statesmen able to combine enough qualities to get thought transmitted into action there is an utter void.

The sins of bossism were the sins of commission. The sins of the leaderless flock of Congressmen we now possess are sins of omission. Bossism at least had the virtue of doing something, whether that something was right or wrong. Congress, now at its lowest ebb since the Union was formed, does practically nothing. A bossed Congress earned its pay but the country could well save the $7,500 salaries of the five hundred members of the two houses.

REPUBLICAN PRESS CONDEMNNS SENATE-TARIFF BILL.

Here are some additional editorial opinions on the Fordney-McCumber Tariff Bill from leading republican papers:

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, the leading republican organ of the south west, says: "The bill seems to have applied the principle of protection to everything, without regard to present world conditions and without regard to our altered position in relation to the world's trade. If our tariff does not permit fair competition with the other countries how are we to maintain the world trade that is now so essential to our prosperity?"

The Boston Transcript, the grand-mother of the New England Republican press, expresses the opinion that party guidance is thrown to the wind with respect to the tariff and says this is undoubtedly due to the prevalent chaotic conditions of interest and of views. It then adds: "There may be some consolation in the fact that it will take a long time to straighten out this chaos of views and that the tariff will give an opportunity to get rid of some of the injustices involved in the tariff bill. But in the meantime, the manufacturers of the country are carrying all or most of the expenses involved by the war without the market which the war created and are consequently pretty nearly paralyzed. In this situation they are to some extent prepared to regard strikes as a blessing and are content to let the tariff re- spond at the switch."

The Ohio State Journal, soundly republican, but with a sense of humor constantly stimulated and aroused by this administration, says: "Economic conditions in the world have changed so much since the war that the tariff problem is vastly altered. We are the creditor nation now and the only way in which our debtors can pay is in their products. Our agricultural and manufacturing interests need, as never before, a wide, free foreign market. No one apparently, except the hard-shelled old high protectionists, who is wrong about it, has a clear idea of just what ought to be done. This is one of the cases where it is better to do nothing than to do the wrong thing."

While it takes millions to build warships, there is one thing comforting it takes only money in the thousands to junk them. Recently congress has been asked for an appropriation of $70,000 to junk warships under the treaty.

One great headline in one of the daily newspapers reads that the European situation, however critical, may be averted by a big loan. The Russians seem to think that Mr. Morgan can fix up things satisfactorily. It remains to be seen.

CHANGES HEADQUARTERS PEKING, May 3.—A general change in Tso-lin's headquarters was announced by General Wu Pei-fu, central Chinese leader reported killed in action. Foreign legations are investigating his death.

Delegation to Hampton, Va. NEW YORK, May 3.—A delegation of men and women left today for Hampton, Va., to attend the 54th anniversary of Hampton Institute, the object of the pilgrimage being to link more closely the north and south in developing the institute.

This fact proves that white Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Tonic and Blood Purifier, and acts through the blood upon the mucous surfaces of the body, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions.
