HATS OFF TO KIWANIAN.

The Southerner wishes to publicly commend the Kiwanians for their action last night in having the question of cooperative marketing discussed in their hall in Tarboro.

The intention of these men was no to attack any man for his opinion for or against the new system of marketing farm products, but simply to have this matter discussed by prominent men so that the people could hear one or both sides as the case might be.

It might be a good thing for this club to invite speakers here to present the other side of the question. Certainly no harm can be done among intelligent people to hear all sides of one of the most important and burning questions of the day.

The producers and farmers of the east are stirred as they have never been stirred before and they are doing an awful lot of hard thinking these days and times and out of all this discussion pro and con something is going to drop.

The Southerner has its strong convictions on this subject and has time and again expressed them publicly through its columns.

No man who thinks he is right is afraid to hear both sides of a question. And too, no man should object to having both sides of any public question fully and thoroughly discussed.

The proponents of the new system have been heard, now let us hear from the opponents.

The doors are open.

PEANUT PROMOTES PEACE.

(Ralph Smith in Atlanta Journal.) Every man, woman and child is an open market for peanuts; every new-born babe just another customer. Wherever ships sail or human feet tread peanuts find a welcome. They are food for every fowl, and for every animal from the tiniest mouse to the mammoth elephant. No hospital in any country has ever placed one black mark against them. No doctor has ever prescribed against them or because of them. It is a food that has always been man's best friend. When everything else failed him and the things that once so temptingly appeared now nauseate him, the little peanut is ever faithful to its taste, and is as delicious to the shattered tooth of old age as was to the milk tooth of infancy.

No crime has ever been committed or dark plot concocted over peanuts; nowhere, at any time, have they ever been associated with anything, but peace and good will. It is the only food that strangers forever unknown to each other, divide and enjoy. Whenever civilization reaches, the hog of peanuts is the universal emblem of peace, brotherly love and friendship. No man can travel so far in time or distant but that one shell of parched peanuts will take him back to home and mother, childhood, circus days and sweethearts, and nothing else for that instant of time can draw a veil over things he does not to remember, yet would not let the world forget. No circus, no wild west show, no ring bout, no world series could ever be possible without peanuts. Henry Ford is about to buy and build the biggest plant in all the world and it will make fertilizers for peanuts. He now realizes his big mistake when he hit the deep blue sea with his peace ship. If he has loaded it down with hot groobers, right then the war would have ended. And later, when our boys landed, letters come pouring back by the thousands begging piteously—for what? Candied peanuts.

Let's bow in humble reverence to the little peanut because it is the only edible thing God has given us that tastes alike, and the same to every beast, fowl, and human being in the face of the earth.

KEEP YOUR HOGS HEALTHY

Advertisement for Red Seal Lye. Text: 'Clean and Careful Feeding Essential in Successful Hog Raising. Here is a secret of successful hog raising practiced by many stock raisers and prosperous farmers. Don't feed your hogs sour or ill-smelling garbage. Ordinary garbage ferments, forming an acid which is injurious to the hog. Red Seal Lye will remove this acid and make the feed more wholesome. The swill should first be sweetened with Red Seal Lye. Take one tablespoonful of Red Seal Lye and dissolve it in a pint of water. Mix this solution thoroughly with sufficient feed for 10 hogs. One-half a can of Red Seal Lye dissolved in one quart of water will sweeten a 50-gallon barrel of swill. Feed twice daily, night and morning.' Includes image of Red Seal Lye product.
