AN EINTOR WHO RETIRED.

many people think the newspaper game is a "gravy train" for those who rule it. Such people never stop to think of the hardships of it, but measure their opinions only by the things they know, nothing about. If the paper has one or two good days, shocked full of advertising, is it at once thought that the paper is literally "cleaning up." They never think of the days when the advertising revenue drops to next to nothing, when the overhead is just the same, and payrolls and rent and other obligations have to be met just the same.

Here is a story of an editor who got rich" and retired. The High Point Biterprise gets the dope from another source, and we are going to pass it along. To the "gravy train" club we would ask that they read it: A newspaper editor leads a fasci-
