

NOT ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS LAST SUNDAY

Harriet Riddick, a thrifty old colored woman, a resident of Martin street, has an awful hard time saving up a competency for old age. Several years ago she had a thousand dollars in a bank in this city. The bank "busted" and she lost about five hundred dollars of it. This bank "busting" business made her shy of all banks, so she has kept her money at home since then. Last Sunday while she was away some one entered her home and stole a thousand dollars in cold cash—representing the earnings that she had saved for several years.

While every body knew that aunt Harriet was thrifty, had several houses which she rented out, and saved her money, yet it was a surprise to many people to learn that she had a thousand dollars. The sudden disappearance of her money is not clearly established yet, but the police believe that they will recover it. There was no one at home Sunday, while she was away but her husband, and he being a little near sighted, can not give very much information as to whether anything particular happened around the house.

The first suspicion that aunt Harriet had about the money was the fading of a twenty dollar bill on the door step when she came out. This caused her to go up stairs and make an investigation, and it was then that she found she was short $980.00 counting the twenty that she found on the door steps as a part of the $1000.00.

THE COTTON SITUATION

Crop advisers are in the main very optimistic, frequent showers having had a wonderful effect on the plant which in every section is fruiting heavily from the bottom upward with no reports so far of shedding. The best thing in its favor this year is the steady even growth since seeding, which has given the plant life and strength sufficient to withstand adverse weather conditions should they develop later. Of course all the danger periods have not yet been passed, and it will be only natural from now on to hear of shedding from one cause or another, as it would be unreasonable to expect a pretention of all the fruit that has been taken on even though the size of the plant this year is above normal. At the moment, however, there are no complaints from any source and the trade is already anticipating a Government August report confirmatory of the enormous crop predictions. With regard to the immediate future of the market it is realized that existing quotations for the new months, at least, are now approaching normal, when taking into consideration the fact that short crops have prevailed for the past two seasons; nevertheless, if this year's yield is to approximate anything like 15,000,000 bales, as now freely predicted, then 10-12 cents in the long run would not be considered out of place, unless there is to be a radical change for the better in the cotton trade.

Clinton, Ky.—Mrs. M. C. McElroy in a letter from Clinton writes "For six years I was a sufferer from female troubles. I could not eat and could not stand on my feet without suffering great pain. I had lost hope. After using Cardui a week I began to improve. Now I feel better than in six years." Fifty years of success in actual practice is positive proof furnished by those who have tried it that Cardui can always be relied on for relieving female weakness and disease. Try Cardui today now!

BEEF PACKERS AFTER WILEY A remarkable series of facts which have come to light within the last twenty-four hours indicate that packers of embalmed beef are the influence that have been principally behind the plot to have Dr. H. W. Wiley ousted from public service. Manufacturers of embalmed beef are at present, by virtue of an order issued by the department of agriculture, permitted to use benzoate of soda in whatever quantities they may desire. Dr. Wiley not only opposed the issuance of this order, maintaining that the preservative is decidedly harmful in its effects upon the human system but has worked untiringly to educate the people to the danger lurking in packed meats in which benzoate is used. The result is that several states have passed legislation absolutely forbidding the use of the drug in any quantity whatsoever. Therefore Dr. Wiley has become a standing menace to the embalmed meat industry. "This man Wiley has got to go," was the edict that went out from the embalmed meat manufacturers. Dr. Wiley held that benzoate of soda was harmful to the human system, the packers appealed to the Remsen referee board, especially packed with friends of the food dopers, which board very promptly and obligingly reversed Dr. Wiley. The board held that benzoate of soda in small quantities, specified as five-tenths of one dram per day, was not injurious to healthy persons. But when the order was issued legalizing the use of benzoate, no limitation whatsoever was made as to the amount of the drug the packers might use. Remarkable circumstances attended the issuing of the order letting down the bars to the food dopers. The order was issued on March 3, 1909 and was placed into circulation March 4, the day President Taft went into office. It was signed by George B. Cortelyou, Oscar S. Straus and James Wilson, three cabinet officers as required by law. All of the three were to retire from office the next day and actually retired before the scope of their order became known. This order giving governmental sanction to the use of the product of benzoic acid meat that we were going back 5000 years, for benzoic or its products had not been used in the preservation of flesh since the Egyptians stopped embalming their dead. Chemist Floyd W. Robinson, one of Dr. Wiley's prominent assistants, recently appeared as a witness against benzoate in an action brought by the state of Indiana to prevent the sale of foods containing benzoate, and before Dr. Wiley had a chance to intervene Robinson's dismissal "for the good of the service" followed. "Find the influence that was powerful enough to have the three cabinet officers issue the order legalizing the doping of foods," say Dr. Wiley's friends, "and you will learn the identity of the men who have ever since been plotting to have Dr. Wiley ousted."
