

GREAT COAL RESERVES

Twelve Billion Tons Estimated Amount in Four Fields in Colorado.

When the total production of coal in the United States, great as it is, is compared with the known tonnage in the ground it sinks into relative insignificance. Thus, four recently described coal fields in Colorado are estimated by the United States Geological Survey to contain more than 12 billion short tons of coal, or three fourths of the total amount of coal that has been mined and lost through mining processes in the United States since the beginning of the industry. These are known as the coal fields of the Grand Mesa and the West Elk Mountains, Colorado, and are discussed by Willis T. Lee in Bulletin 510, just issued by the United States Geological Survey. These fields constitute parts of the Uinta coal region, in the Rocky Mountain province, and lie partly in west-central Colorado and partly in eastern Utah. The part of the Uinta region described in the bulletin is divided into four more or less distinct fields, called Grand Mesa, Floresta, Mt Carbon and Crested Butte.

The investigations described in the bulletin extended over a period of three years and were made for the purpose of ascertaining the geological relations of the coal-bearing rocks to other formations, of classifying the land by legal subdivisions as coal land and noncoal land, and of determining the value of the coal land by ascertaining the thickness of the coal beds, the character and quality of the coal, its accessibility with reference to topographic features, and its location with reference to lines of transportation.

Because of the uncertainty in many places as to the number of coal beds and the still greater uncertainty as to the variations in thickness, no close estimate can be made of the quantity of coal in the fields. However, a computation based on moderate estimates of thickness gives 12,178,214,000 short tons as the amount of recoverable coal in the Grand Mesa and West Elk Mountain fields.

A copy of Bulletin 510 can be had on application to the Director of the Geological Survey at Washington.

When You Paint

Use PURE Paint and Use Pure LINSEED OIL to add to it at one-half the cost of Paint.

PURE PAINT is made with WHITE LEAD, ZINC and LINSEED OIL—that's the way the L. & M. SEMI-MIXED REAL PAINT is made.

But ALL the OIL needful to make the L. & M. PAINT ready for use is NOT put into the Paint when it's prepared for the Consumer who buys it.

The ADDITIONAL quantity of OIL is put into the Paint by the CONSUMER, as by so doing he SAVES MONEY. Therefore—buy 3 gallons of LINSEED OIL with every 4 gallons of L. & M. PAINT and MIX the OIL with the PAINT.

If the Paint thus made costs more than $1.40 per gallon—If the Paint as you use it is not perfectly satisfactory—Then return whatever you have not used, and get back ALL you paid for the WHOLE of it and besides, the money you paid to the Painter.
