

Advertising the State's Resources

Greensboro, July 12—The North Carolina State Publicity Bureau, temporary organization of which was effected at a meeting of some 70 of the state's most progressive men at Raleigh on June 29th, is already receiving the strong endorsement of thinking men in every part of North Carolina, evidenced in expressions of the press and letters of individuals.

This endorsement is given on the general plan of the organization as published from Raleigh following the meeting—to set on foot a campaign of publicity that will place before the people of the outside world a true representation of this state's matchless resources and advantages, agricultural and industrial, to a settler and investor. It is believed that a still stronger endorsement will be given when the full import of this work is understood. The object of the state Bureau, as set forth in full the plan of organization at last Tuesday's meeting, follows:

1st. To study the needs, resources and community progress of the state by sections.

2nd. To secure and create such publicity as will promote the development of North Carolina by bringing of thrift and industry to us, especially to our agricultural lands.

3rd. To acquaint people in one section of the state with advantages and progress in other sections.

4th. To aid in offering homes at fair and reasonable prices and to protect prospective settlers from unjust speculators and false representatives.

5th. To assist each section in securing the class of settlers suitable to that locality.

6th. To cooperate with local community organizations and civic organizations, railroads and any other organization, corporation, or individuals interested in promoting the purpose set forth.

The 70 men who formulated this broad object represented twenty three counties of the state and every congressional district save one. The one congressional district not represented is known to have many a strong man within its borders who heartily approve this movement, and were doubtless prevented from being present by the press of other engagements, or by illness. Many of the states best known progressive men, in fact, were unable to be present because of such reasons, but wrote letters explaining their inability to be present and pledging their earnest support. Strong men were in attendance from Asheville in the West, to Wilmington in the east. The four leading railroads were represented; and it is believed that with such cooperative effort as indicated in the beginning, this organization will accomplish something worth while in placing North Carolina where she belongs—on a plane with her resources.

The earnestness with which the problem of the state's future was debated at the Raleigh gathering, the stability and broad business experience of the men participating in these discussions, and the character of the men selected to guide the destinies of the organization through the dangerous shoals to a permanent organization, all combine to assure the respect and cooperation of every citizen who has the welfare of his state at heart for the work now in hand; and there is existent a feeling that every public spirited citizen, as many of them have already done, will rally to the support of these men who are attempting a great altruistic work for North Carolina that will prove of at least indirect interest to every man, woman and child in her borders. This work it is conceded, will eventually mean a bigger better and more prosperous North Carolina. Therefore, it is argued, every citizen should feel it a personal privilege to lend his aid. They are asked not to wait for personal invitation but to encourage the men who have been elected as officers of the temporary organization which will be truly representative of the state and be, in fact, a state wide organization. The officers were elected to serve until the first annual meeting which is to be held on the first Tuesday in October, are: Henry A. Page, Aberdeen, President; E. C. Branson, Chapel Hill, A. E. Tate, High Point, F. R. Hewitt, Asheville, Clarence Poe, Raleigh, A. W. McLean, Lumberton, and O. L. Joyner, Greenville, Vice Presidents; A. A. Thompson, Raleigh, Treasurer, J. C. Forester, Greensboro, Secretary.

Upon these men rest the gigantic task of perfecting the organization that is hoped to mean the salvation of North Carolina, agriculturally; and industrially; and they seek the aid and cooperation of every man in the state who has hopes for a greater future for his state, and in order that the movement may prove a success commensurate with its object, this aid and cooperation is of vital importance.
