"Entered as second class matter, May 19, 1911, at the Post office at Elizabeth City, North Carolina, under the act of March 3, 1879."

"Buy at 'fom'" is always the best policy, no matter what inducements out of town merchants may offer you for your money. Those who trade at Elizabeth City will hardly find any where such real values as the merchants of this town offer. We believe that this is especially true this year when prices on raw materials are soaring. The Elizabeth City business man bought his stocks early and filled them unusually full, thus anticipating the rising prices. He is still satisfied to dispose of his goods at a fair profit and in many cases the price at which they may be had here is lower than the present wholesale quotations.

The editor is no more nearly perfect than the millions of other mortals who inhabit the earth and a paper that's run by an editor is likely to make mistakes—sometimes in what goes into the paper, sometimes in what is left out, or again in some position taken or not taken. When you think The Advance errs in any point, you are invited to point us to our fault. We like to know whether our readers are for us or against us on any issue.

The United States Department of Commerce counsels the saving of waste paper and rags as a remedy for the shortage of raw material for the manufacture of paper. Those who heed the advice of the government in this matter will not only be paid for their trouble but will help to alleviate a situation becoming daily more serious. Perhaps charity workers may find in the extraordinary value of material which is usually wasted a suggestion.

An out of town friend dropped in to pay us a dollar last week. We reminded him that it was only a few months ago that he had mailed us a dollar extending his subscription into 1917. "All right," he said "make it 1918 unless you can think of somebody that needs this dollar more than you do."

We took the dollar and blessed the friend. Two or three hundred like him would insure us early success.

The Advance congratulates the Poplar Branch High School on its success in the triangular debate this year. We hope for the Poplar Branch team a high place among the competing debaters at Chapel Hill.

The Advance wishes on Dollar Day to have the pleasure of introducing to Elizabeth City merchants a large representation of its family

SPRAY YOUR FRUIT TREES
SAYS MR. FALLS TO FARMERS

To fruit growers of Pasquotank County:

I wish to warn the farmers and fruit growers of Pasquotank county who have not begun spraying, or who have not had success in protecting fruit from insects and diseases by the application of spray material.

If you have only a few trees on your farm there should be special precautions taken to prevent diseases and insects. In order that you may have non-infected fruit for your home consumption instead of an inferior grade, which we realize is detrimental to health.

Spraying has become necessary because of the great numbers of insects and plant diseases which prey on our local forest trees, so numerous have these pests become, and so certain is their destruction that it is impossible to control them without the proper use of spray material.

Frequently several acres of orchard will hardly produce enough fruit for family use, when a couple of dozen trees well cared for would allow a margin of profit after paying all expenses of cultivation, pruning and spraying, and supplying the family as well. The uncared for orchard is not only an expense to its owner, but also a menace to other orchards near by. Insects and diseases multiply among the unsprayed trees and are literally sown broadcast over neighboring orchards. So each owner will not be the only one benefitted by spraying, but, each surrounding neighbor.

No work in the orchard during the entire season is more important, and no work calls for more care and patience than the mixing of spray material. The protection afforded by Spray correctly made of reliable materials is of the greatest value to the grower, but a carelessly made mixture of poor material may cause a serious loss. Therefore every person intending to spray should be sure and have the desired quantity of each product in the right proportion.

In preparing mixture for spraying fruit trees at this time of the season, I shall advise you to use the Bordeaux mixture, including Arsenate of lead. In the following preparation use three pounds (3 lb) Two pounds of Copper sulphate (Blue Stone) (2 lb) and one pound of quick lime with fifty gallons of water. In using the above solution use special precautions in order to prevent clogging of machine.
