CARD GAMES.

The Earliest Played In England Were Imported From Spain.

Spain is generally believed to have sent us our first card games. "El hombre," or "the man," corrupted by us into "ombre," was probably our earliest card game in England, and that must have come from Spain. Also the oldest packs of cards found in England show Spanish symbols, such as cupus, maces and swords. Another popular English card game in the sixteenth century was trump, clearly a form of the Spanish game triumfo.

Cards could be bought in 1545 for twopence a pack. These were very wretched specimens and most inferior to those produced by the Cardmakers' company of London, in which Charles I. created a monopoly, with the financial genius of his race, by buying them up cheap and selling them at a high price. In this he was a more open rogue perhaps than his father, who forbade card playing in Scotland and indulged in it himself at every opportunity.

Cards have always been a royal game. Queen Elizabeth played cards and lost her temper over them frequently. She was no Anne of Austria, to play "like a queen without passion of greed or gain." In her reign was commanded to be played "at Wyndsore a Comedie or Morral devised on a game of the cardes," which resulted in the performance by the children of her majesty's chapel of "Alexander and Campaspe," in which the pretty lines

His Ancestors.

An Irish gentleman was recently atbended by an eminent London physician, who, pausing and looking at him with an inquiring glance, said:

"I should like to know, sir, if your tamily have been long lived?"

"Long lived, is it?" responded the patient thoughtfully. "Well, doctor, I'll just tell you how it is. Our family is a west of Ireland family, and the age of my ancestors depended entirely on the judge and jury who tried them." -Strand Magazine.

Craik-I called on Miss Pruyn last night, and no sooner had I entered the parlor than her mother appeared and demanded to know my intentions.

Significant Silence.

"What has become of your son, the young inventor, who used to advance such startling theories?" asked a friendly man of an old negro known to the Washington Star. "I never hear of him any more.'

"No, sah," replied the shrewd father, "he's re'lly inventing something now."
