THERE IS A LOT OF FUN IN BEGGING FOLKS FOR LAND FOR SEA SHORE PARK

But There Is Luck in it Too, and One Never Knows Until He Asks For it; Park Commission Announces First Goal of More Than 10,000 Acres in Sight; Would Bring Great Improvements to Three Counties on Coast

"It's an interesting experience, going about the country begging folks to give land to help North Carolina create a Seashore National Park, and there is a lot of fun in it too," says Victor Meekins, who as secretary of the Park Commission reported last week at a meeting in Raleigh that more than 10,000 acres are either deeded or pledged to public ownership, which means that the work of continuing toward the final goal of 62,000 acres must go on.

In the past 15 months Meekins has travelled about the country from New England to Ohio, talking to folks about the park, and visiting people who own land on the North Carolina coast in the three counties of Currituck, Dare and Hyde which embraces the proposed National Park. "It is a splendid experience, and one gets some new impressions, and learns some worth while ideas," he says. "We don't always get land, but we do get helpful ideas in nearly every case, and most of the time, I am taken out and fed before being refused, so I get let down easy. And many men have given us large acreages of land, because they know the development of the park is our only hope of getting something for an asset that at present is doubtful."

"The bulk of the more than 11,000 acres deeded and pledged, comes to North Carolina as a gift from people who are not residents of the state," he continues. "But there are people who know the benefits our people face, and who have grown to love the people of Hyde, of Currituck and of Dare because they have been good neighbors. They know we have a good proposition, and they want to help us achieve it."

"We appreciate this great help from outside people, and now we are going to turn to our home folks for some help. Many of them have small tracts of land, but are unable to donate it. All we ask of them is a reasonable price, and if they will give the state options at a reasonable price, I shall go out and ask for money to buy this land as a further gift to the state. I have been told by a few people of means, that they would donate some cash to the cause, provided the people would be reasonable in what they expect for the land."

And so plans continue toward obtaining the 62,000 acres required in the 125 mile stretch of coastland, which would give North Carolina the only Seashore National Park in the country. The area doesn't embrace the villages along the coast, but leaves large parts for future development. Most of the land contemplated in the Park is land of no particular value at this time for development. Without the establishment of the park, it is extremely doubtful their status as to value would ever change.

The legislation providing for the Seashore National Park provides that no Federal money may be used to buy land. But the National Park Service already has spent several hundred thousand dollars in planting grass, building sand fences, and making other improvements to restore the natural state of the coastland where by trees and shrubbery may again be a part of this beautiful and interesting region.

And so the State of North Carolina undertook, without funds, to obtain land for the park. Various persons have donated large acreages. Among these people are: C. and Ogdon Phipps of New York; Ben Lamb and Joyce O'Hara of Washington, D. C.; Stanley Wahab of Ocracoke; Miles Clark of Elizabeth City; L. D. Pierce of Providence, R. I., and many others donating smaller acreages.

There are many others who have tentatively pledged lands. Not an acre has been bought. Persons of means who do not have land, may donate cash to buy lands from those not able to donate land. But in no case will unreasonable prices be paid.

The State of North Carolina has already had the foresight to forestall any attempt to profiteer on land. Legislation providing the power of eminent domain permits condemnation proceedings for any (Please turn to Page Three)

MAIL GIFTS THIS WEEK AT LATEST

Postoffice Employees Cannot Make Deliveries on Time Without Cooperation of Public

Some of the public—but not enough—are heeding the warnings of the Post Office Department that Christmas gifts must be mailed this year earlier than ever before, if reports from seven of the largest post offices in the United States prove to be typical. Six of these offices, queried on Christmas mailings, reported that gift parcels had started moving through the mails from 10 to 12 days earlier than in previous years. The seventh reported some rise in parcel post but no broad gain in Christmas mailings. Christmas cards—one of the most difficult problems because of the public's habit of mailing them in a last-minute deluge—also have started to move, but in only small numbers.

But, postal officials warn, the early mailings are not yet in sufficient volume to prevent delay in deliveries of gifts until after Christmas unless mailings are increased sharply at once, and practically completed by December 15. Wartime burdens on transportation and on the postal service make it essential that the peak of mailings be far earlier than in normal times.

"Postal employees are going to do their best, as always, to see that the Christmas mails are delivered on time," said Ambrose O'Connell, First Assistant Postmaster General, in charge of postal personnel. "Postmasters all over have done splendid work in calling the unprecedented problem to public attention through newspapers and radio, and in preparing to meet the rush of mailings."

"But this year deliveries on time are impossible unless the public mails its parcels earlier than ever before. We have reduced the age limit for extra personnel from 18 to 16, but the thousands of persons being hired are inexperienced and relatively slow in handling mail. And there were already many thousands of inexperienced workers in the service, replacing men who have gone into the Army and Navy."

"Yes," said one of his English listeners, with feeling, "we've got trains like that here, too."

PLANS LAUNCHED TO OBSERVE 40TH FLIGHT BIRTHDAY

Ceremonies at Kill Devil Hills Followed by Banquet Thursday Night Dec. 17

Dec. 17, 1943, a year from now, will be the 40th anniversary of the first flight of a power driven heavier than air machine. To observe this important event properly, plans were begun here at Manteo this week, a year ahead.

Secretary Melvin R. Daniels of the Kill Devil Hills Memorial Association, began making plans some weeks ago, but the event dates from December 17, 1942. On Thursday, the usual ceremonies and laying of a wreath in honor of Wilbur Wright took place at the granite memorial atop Kill Devil Hills.

On behalf of Dare County Senator D. B. Fearing presented a wreath, and Mayor Jerome Flora of Elizabeth City brought a wreath and greetings from the people of Pasquotank. Short addresses were made by Allen H. Watkins, President of the Association and Attorney D. L. Russell of Manteo.

News Commentator W. E. Debnam in Raleigh gave ten minutes time to the occasion over a Raleigh station.

At night, a banquet was scheduled for seven o'clock at the Manteo high school, for the election of officers for the ensuing year. Important national associations dealing with aeronautics will be asked to participate with the Kill Devil Hills Association in plans for a suitable observance next year, the scope of which will depend entirely on the status of the war situation.

If the war situation should be relieved to the point where travel may be resumed, then a large affair will be arranged. If travel is not feasible on the 40th anniversary, then suitable observances, possibly with the issuance of a special stamp, or medal, will be attempted.

The Association will make a drive for new members, in order to raise funds for the work of arranging a suitable celebration. Mr. Orville Wright of Dayton, Ohio, co-inventor of the airplane was invited to attend the services this week, but the Association received his regrets he was unable to come to the site of the first flight at this time.

Wilbur Wright died about the year 1912. The two men, whose scientific achievement is one of the world's greatest, made history at Kill Devil Hills one bleak day, 39 years ago.

SIX AND A HALF MILLION FROM BEER IN THIS STATE

Raleigh, Dec. 17.—North Carolina's beer industry will pay more than $6,000,000 in federal, state and local taxes for 1942, according to the Brewing Industry Foundation's North Carolina Committee.

This amount is far ahead of the total payments of $4,934,959.55 in 1941 and $3,124,482.79 in 1940. Available figures show that the industry has paid the state $2,555,061.05, the federal government $3,229,597.16 and the cities, towns and counties $155,000 so far this year—a total of $5,939,658.21. These totals are based on 11-month collections for the state and local units and ten months for the federal government.

It is anticipated the state's collections will top $2,750,000 and the federal government's share will range between $3,700,000 and $4,000,000 for the 1942 calendar year. There will be only a nominal increase in collections by the local units.

Love and Kisses Can Be Sent Overseas, But How

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 17.—Did you know that love and kisses, Christmas greetings, happy birthdays, birth announcements and requests for money may now be sent, via cablegram, overseas, for the small amount of around 60 cents? Well, they can, according to Captain Robert H. McCormack, Chief of Postal Section, headquarters, Fourth Service Command. And, conversely, they may be sent this way from "over there."

Of course other messages may be sent also, just so they are brief, and the fixed text is adhered to. Naturally, the cablegrams must be submitted through the proper channels, and must be properly addressed, out-going messages showing full name, Army serial number, APO cable address and the routing word. This type message will consist of not more than three of the fixed authorized texts. Thus, for $1.20 you could cable: "Hearing your voice on the wireless gave me a wonderful thrill. Glad and proud to hear of your decoration. Everybody thrilled. Many thanks for parcel."

These EFM cables, except for Christmas greetings, are discontinued until after December 27. You may send the Christmas messages, however, at any time through December 25, and after the 27th any of the messages or combinations.
