and until his death in Venice, he was engaged in one military campaign after another. His MEDITATIONS were written during a busy life; some even on the eve of battle, defending his beloved Empire.

It will probably be surprising to discover that a Roman Emperor in the second century wrote of learn-

In North Carolina... after a swim, beer is a natural

On a hot summer day, a dip in a cool stream can be wonderfully refreshing. Equally refreshing when you're relaxing afterwards with friends is a hearty glass of beer. There's hardly another beverage around that suits what you do for fun as much as beer. Camping, hiking, or just lounging on a lawn chair—beer brings to each just the right touch of extra good living.

Your familiar glass of beer is also a pleasurable reminder that we live in a land of personal freedom—and that our right to enjoy beer and ale, if we so desire, is just one, but an important one, of those personal freedoms.

In North Carolina... beer goes with fun, with relaxation ing "good morals and the government of his temper," from his grandfather; of "modesty and a kindly character" from his father; and "abstinence, not only from evil deeds, but even from evil thoughts... as well as simplicity in his way of living..." from his mother.

There is the admonition to begin each day by saying to oneself (that today, "... I shall meet the busybody, the ungrateful, arrogant, deceitful, envious, unsociable... but I wish have seen the nature of the good that it is beautiful... I can neither be injured by any of them, for to one can fix on me what is ugly, nor can I be angry with my kinsman, nor hate him..."

Personally, one of the most beautiful passages in all the MEDITATIONS is found in the fourth one where he writes: "Men seek retreats for themselves, houses in the country, sea-shores, and mountains; and thou art wont to desire such things very much. But this is altogether a mark of the most common sort of men, for it is in thy power whenever
