Drawing Will Be Held On Friday Morning

At Half Past Nine O'clock in the Senate Office Building Fate Will Call America's Young Men To the Colors

(By United Press)

Washington, July 19.—At half past nine Friday morning in Room 226 of the Senate office building the drawing will be held which will determine the order in which America's men are to respond to the colors.

The hour has all but arrived when slackers will tremble in their boots and the valiant warriors will lift their heads with pride to answer the call of Uncle Sam.

General Crowder announced today that the drawing for national army men will be held tomorrow.

The exact time and place has been decided upon by Secretary Baker.

The entire registration roll of more than nine million men will be drafted at one time and in amazingly brief time, and the order of examinations to be taken will be determined at the time of the drawing.

This is the process decided upon: Only one thousand and eleven numbers will be drawn.

The first drawing of numbers, from 0 to 10, will fix the order of thousands. Next the numbers from 0 to 1,000 will be drawn.

If the drawing of the thousand group results thus: 8, 5, 0, 2, 4, 3, 1, 6, 9, 7,—that determines the order of the thousand group.

Then, if the drawing from 1 to 1,000 starts: 876; 34; 541; 40; and so on through the thousand numbers, the first number on the master list will be 8,000 plus 876, or 8,876. The second number will be 8,034. The third will be 8,541. The fourth will be 8,040 and so on.

After the 8,000 list is completed, then the next number, 5, in the thousand group is picked up.

Thus following the eight thousands would be the five thousands, the same numbers being added in each case. So in the five thousand group there will be 5,876; 5,034; 5,541; 5,040, and so on.

A LADY SAMMIE IS A PROBLEM

(By United Press) New York, July 19.—Uncle Sam has a woman on his hands today and he don't know what to do with her. She is the first "woman Sammie." To be near her husband, a corporal from Arizona, in Pershing's army, she disguised herself as a soldier; was discovered on the transport and sent back to the United States from France.

A badly perplexed lot of army officers refused information about the amazon today. One report was that she was held incommunicado aboard an army transport now in port. Another was that because the army officers could not figure out that she had violated any law, and since she wasn't a member of the military forces liable to courtmartial, she had been sent ashore to be started home. Major Jewell in charge of affairs around the transport, wouldn't say he knew anything whatever about the lady today except he was "investigating."

If the feminine Sammy is being held, part of the perplexity of Uncle Sam's representatives is explained. Federal officials, it was said, washed their hands of the matter. They insisted they knew nothing at all about it. At Governor's Island, army headquarters for the Eastern Department officials disclaimed all knowledge. Meanwhile there doesn't seem any punishment for a girl to patriots as to don khaki and follow the flag to France.

Put Poison Fly Paper Out of Kiddies' Reach

No matter how zealous we may have been in fly prevention, without doubt the fly will be with us again this summer. We will try to screen him out and disinfect him out, but when he appears indoors we will have to set a direct trap for him in the shape of some kind of fly poison.

There are poisons safe and unsafe, and if we have any little children in the home the kind of fly bait we use deserves a moment's thought. Reports of last summer tell us that 12 children in the states reported (and how many in the unreported states we don't know) died from carelessly touching or swallowing the liquid from so-called poison fly paper. These sheets of specially prepared paper, which are laid in saucers and left around the room, are treated with arsenic, one of the most dangerous poisons and fatal to children.

The saucer lying on table or window sill is a constant temptation to a child, who cannot reason or understand. To put one's finger in the dish and taste it seems quite natural—but deadly. Many other deaths attributed to infant diseases, like summer complaint, have later definitely been traced to tasting fly poison.

Better than this kind of fly bait, if there are children around, is some one of the sticky papers. Their disadvantage, that they are in the way and articles are apt to become fastened to them, is done away with if wire racks manufactured specially for the purpose are used with them. The sheet can be put into this rack and the rack hung on the wall or other place out of reach or danger from blowing about.

Another form of sticky poison is the so-called "sticky tape," which comes in a roll to be suspended from the ceiling or wall. As the roll unrolls and waves in the air the flies are attracted to it and stick to it. Yet there is never any danger of such a tape soiling articles.

There is also a new, peculiar wire-covered poison pad to be hung up on the wall. Flies are attracted to the pad and when they taste its contents they at once die. The pad can be hung anywhere and lasts a season. If a liquid poison is preferred, nevertheless, the simplest is a weak solution of formaldehyde in water in the proportion of two teaspoonfuls to a pint. It may be placed in saucers, preferably out of reach, although it is practically non-poisonous except to insects, and is, in addition, a good disinfectant. Ten cents' worth of this liquid will last a family all summer.

Pyrethrum powder may be burned in badly infested rooms. To prepare it, place a piece of paper in the bottom of the bowl and sprinkle enough of the powder on to cover the paper. Over this sparingly sprinkle some saltpeter. Place the bowl on a tray and light one end of the paper left exposed, when the fumes will arise.

Choose a safe poison. Your child's life depends on the caution you use.
